Hannay, captured the young lady and marched back to Brink's hall where music was awaiting. Just as the merry party reached the hall, a jolly crowd of young people drove in from Thief River Falls and dancing was soon made the order of the evening. Anniversary News

Over 400 people were served on Saturday, October 2, at a dinner reception held at Paradis' Inc., honoring Ron and Dallas Paradis on their 50th wedding anniversary. The evening began with Mass at St. Joseph's led by Father Tim Bushy. Beautiful music was provided by Cherity Wicks, Eric Monson of Hamilton, MT, Joan Brenkon, and members of the St. Francis choir. Ron and Dallas renewed their vows with their children beside them. Roses were presented by each of their 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Following Mass, the couple motored to the reception in a 1949 Plymouth owned by Dwaine Jenson, the same make and model of car they had used on their wedding day, November 3, 1949.

At the reception a delicious meal was greatly enjoyed by all. The beef was prepared by Tom Smith, while the other dishes were provided by Third Base. The Cozy Bar took care of beverages and the cake was made by Elva Fiedler of Goodridge. John and Valerie Walker, Doug and Karen Rock, Karen Konickson, and Lynn Gallent served the buffet dinner.

The evening's program began with a sing-along led by Mary Jane Paradis, Judy Olson, Dave and Barb Rodahl, Charity Wicks, Eric Monson, Kenya Paradis, and Aurel Parenteau (who sang in French) Clarence Gagnor, a ring bearer in 1949, was the Master of Ceremonies. The wedding dress was modeled by Lacey Saga attended by Blair Nelson and Amanda Paradis, escorted by Ryan Paradis. Then stories about the honored couple were told by Marc Parenteau, Gary Landreville of New Ulm, and Vern Landreville of Walker. Harold Cyr could have told many more stories if time had allowed. Ethan Paradis had special gifts of a golden "chaput for Grandpa and a sexy garter for Grandma. An entertaining rendition of the belly dance was performed by Parnell Thibert and Aurel Parenteau. A video of family photos completed the program. Old time dance music was played by the Country Playboys, beginning with the Blue Skirt Waltz.

Many guests traveled a long distance to be in Brooks for the occasion. Florida "snow bird" neighbors, Edward and Marilyn Noble came from their home at Siren, WI, and Eraine Beconobech, and Howard and Judy Jonesich came from Chisholm. Also attending were Loren and Tammy Thibert of Esko, LaVerne Marier and daughter, Judy Parsons of Hugo, Leon and Evelyn Lussier of Grand Rapids, and Ted Lussier of Cohasset. Also attending were Dorothy Paquin of Milwaukee, WI, Ruth Carriere of South Milwaukee, WI, Grace Stucy of Oak Creek, WI, George and Katy Simenson of Cudahy, and Gary and Tena Mercil of Lakewood, WI. Other long distance guests included Jerry and Kris Paquin of Billings, MT, Merv and Larri Millem of Brainerd, Louis and Mae Witcherman of Kimball, Dennis, Pam and Angie Parr of Bismarck, ND, Tim Paquin of Warroad, and Louis Paradis of Roosevelt. Other guests came from Fargo, Grand Forks, and Drayton, all in North Dakota. Minnesota locals came from Moorhead, Dilworth, Hawley, Crookston, Fertile, Maple Lake, Erskine, Fosston, McIntosh, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Bemidji, and Oklee. Grandchildren also traveled from afar. They included Heidi Paradis and friend, Jeremy Bleedow of Eden Prairie, Chad and Sarah Overland (celebrating their one-year anniversary) of Milene, and Lea Sage of Natick, MA.

Ron, Dallas, and family wish to thank everyone who helped with the celebration and those who attended for making it an evening full of fun, friendship, and happy memories.

Thief River Falls
1998 Annual Consumer Report on the Quality of Tap Water

Dear Customer: We are pleased to present a summary of the quality of the water provided to you during the past year. The Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) requires that utilities issue an annual "Consumer Confidence" report to customers in addition to other notices that may be required by law. This report details where our water comes from, what it contains, and the risks our water testing and treatment are designed to prevent. Thief River Falls Water Department is committed to providing you with the safest and most reliable water supply. Informed consumers are our best allies in maintaining safe drinking water.

We are proud to report that the water provided by Thief River Falls Water Department meets or exceeds established water-quality standards.

Call us for information about the next opportunity for public participation in decisions about our drinking water.

Overview

Water Source

The City of Thief River Falls obtains its source water from the Red Lake river. The intake pipe and pump station are located approximately 150 feet north of the Thief River Falls dam. This site allows use of the river within the City as a reservoir for the raw (untreated water) supply. During 1998, staff from the Thief River Falls Water Department participated with other stakeholders and the Minnesota Departments of Health, Pollution Control Agency, and Agriculture in writing a source water assessment program for use in this state. This plan was submitted to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for review. In the future, a source water assessment will be conducted on the Red Lake and Thief rivers. This will provide information on potential sources of contaminants. As a means of source water protection, personnel from the City, Canadian Pacific Railroad, Pennington County Sheriff and State of Minnesota agencies conducted an emergency response drill simulating contamination of the river in the City. C.P. Railroad maintains an emergency response kit in a building adjacent to the river. The Thief River Falls Fire Department is trained in deployment of a containment boom for use in the river. In addition, mutual aid agreements provide equipment and trained personnel from private industries and emergency response and remediation businesses.

What Does This Table Mean?

The table shows the results of our water-quality analyses. Every regulated contaminant that we detected in the water, even in the most minute traces, is listed here. The table contains the name of each substance, the highest level allowed by regulation (MCL), the ideal goals for public health, the amount detected, the usual sources of such contamination, footnotes explaining our findings, and a key to units of measurement. Definitions of MCL and MCLG are important.

Maximum Contaminant Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal or MCLG: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Water-Quality Table Footnotes

1. Highest single measurements and lowest monthly percentage of samples meeting the turbidity limits for our filtration technology.
2. The treatment processes used by Thief River Falls will remove lead if present in the source water. The 90th percentile test result was .005 mg/l.
3. This is the value used to determine compliance with federal standards. It sometimes is the highest value detected and sometimes is an average of all the detected values.
4. Range of test results was 32.5 - 113.2. The TTHM mcl of 100 is for the sum of four contaminants.
5. The 90th percentile was .1 mg/l. The action level is 1.3 mg/l.
6. The State of Minnesota requires all municipal water systems to add fluoride to the drinking water to promote strong teeth. A natural source of fluoride is erosion of natural deposits.
7. The sum of this contaminant and the other three THMs must be less than 100 ppb.
8. The sum of this contaminant and the other three THMs must be less than 100 ppb.

Although we run many tests, only the listed substances were found. They are all below the MCL required.

Explanation of Violations

Turbidity

Duration: The turbidity violation started on October 2 and ended October 4. There were four measurements in excess of the 0.5 ntu limit. The range of turbidity was from 0.56 to 1.2. This violation was due to mechanical breakdown of plant equipment.

Health Effects: Turbidity is a measure of the cloudiness of the water and is used because it is a good indicator of the quality of water and has the potential for interference with disinfection. Turbidity has no health effects. However, turbidity can interfere with disinfection and provide a medium for microbial growth. Turbidity may indicate the presence of disease-causing organisms. These organisms include bacteria, viruses, and parasites that can cause symptoms such as nausea, cramps, diarrhea, and associated headaches.

Action Taken: In conformance with the requirements of Safe Drinking Water Act, public notice was given in the Thief River Falls Times, and additional notice was included in a monthly newsletter with the utility bills. Malfunctioning equipment was repaired.

Lead

Duration: The action level for lead was exceeded from June 1993 until 1996 when three rounds of sampling demonstrated continuous compliance.

Health Effects: Infants and children who drink water containing lead in excess of the action level could experience delays in their physical or mental development. Children could show slight deficits in attention span and learning abilities. Adults who drink this water over many years could develop kidney problems or high blood pressure.

Action Taken: A corrosion control study was conducted to determine the best treatment and operation process for Thief River Falls. The results of this study were submitted to the Minnesota Department of Health. Subsequent operational test of the process proved the successful. The process was approved by the Department of Health. There have been no violations since 1996. Public notice was given to inform customers in reducing their exposure to lead.

Although we run many tests, only the listed substances were found. They are all below the MCL required.

Unregulated Contaminants

The Thief River Falls Water Department does not test for cryptosporidium. The presence of this pathogen is assumed to be in the raw water supply. As such, the Thief River Falls Water Purification Plant utilizes the multiply barrier approach to purification. The facility consists of five treatment basins, filtration, and disinfection. Microbiological agents such as the protozan, cryptosporidium, are removed during the coagulation, sedimentation, and filtration process. There have been no reported disease outbreaks from Thief River Falls drinking water in the recorded history of operations. However, the possibility for contamination always exists. The plant staff is certified and attends annual seminars to maintain and improve their skills. These seminars and membership in organizations such as the American Water Works Association provide a means to continual improvement in operations. The Thief River Falls Water Department did not test for radon. Radon is found in some ground waters and can be released into homes during usage such as showers and clothes washing. Since this community obtains it's water from a surface source, radon has not been a concern.

Additional Contaminants Monitored

The disinfection by-products regulation for trihalomethanes applies to water systems over 10,000 population. As such it does not apply to Thief River Falls. In spite of this, we have monitored for disinfection by-products for over 10 years. Results of that monitoring are listed in this report. It should be noted that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has proposed to apply the regulation to systems less than 10,000 sometime in the next three years. As such we are preparing for compliance now.

Required Additional Health Information

To ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes limits on the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

(A) Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife.
(B) Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban storm runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.
(C) Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, storm water runoff, and residential uses.
(D) Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organics, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff and septic systems.
(E) Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally-occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health. Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than is the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

National Primary Drinking Water Regulation Compliance

City council approves expanded Y2K plan

■ Debate over additional pay for Thief River Falls utility worker becomes heated

Thief River Falls City Council approved an insurance plan Tuesday night that would increase its coverage for Y2K problems. A lengthy discussion over a request for overtime, also stirred up emotions at the meeting.

Mark Thune of the Thune Insurance Network explained Tuesday that because of the city's efforts to become Y2K compliant, the city was in a position to obtain additional insurance coverage. Prior to Tuesday evening, the city had coverage through the League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust covering $25,000 in losses due to Y2K and an additional $5,000 for additional losses. Efforts by the city to become Y2K compliant now makes it possible for the city to obtain expanded coverage of up to $750,000 and $25,000 for additional expenses. The deductible would be similar to other policies held by the city, $25,000 with a yearly aggregate of $50,000. The expanded coverage policy would cost $2,973.

City Council representative Dale Wennberg said he didn't believe in Y2K and wondered why the city had to have additional expenses.

Barry Froiland, who has been in charge of identifying and solving the city's Y2K problems, explained that most of the problem probably won't be with the city's computers, but with embedded chips. He also explained that despite state legislation, some companies have reserved the right to sue in the event of a loss due to Y2K.

Don Barron, city council representative, asked whether vendors would guarantee that the embedded chips were Y2K compliant?

Froiland and Superintendent of Utilities Arlo Rude, indicated that they do not guarantee that the chips are Y2K compliant.

Jean Heinrichs, city council representative, said the city would look pretty stupid if after all this work, wasn't protected in case something did happen.

But Wennberg said the expanded insurance proposal was ridiculous, and just another fund-raiser for insurance companies.

Examples of what the expanded Y2K coverage would cover include: the extra cost to have an officer directing traffic at an intersection because the traffic lights aren't working; the extra cost for personnel needed to operate the water system manually; the cost to rent a generator to keep the lift station running while the power is out. Examples of things not covered include: the cost to diagnose and fix the Y2K problem in equipment or to replace equipment that's been rendered unusable by a Y2K problem; the extra overtime or other costs the city incurs to have necessary personnel standing by or on duty and prepared to respond in case a Y2K problem develops.

The council approved a motion to purchase the expanded coverage. Wennberg was the only council representative to vote against the motion.

A request for additional compensation for an employee who worked extra weekends was narrowly approved by the council.

The public utilities committee recommended that Dale Narlock, line superintendent, receive $3,500 in additional compensation for being on-call 24 weekends of the year.

Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities, explained that Narlock was required to be on-call 24 weekends of the year to approve work done on high voltage lines.

Jean Heinrichs explained that Teamsters (journeymen-lineworkers, line sub-foreman, and apprentice) are being paid for being on call, but Management, Administrators, Professionals and Supervisors (MAPS) employees are not. Heinrichs, a member of the public utilities committee, described Narlock's situation as unusual.

Council representatives said they didn't have anything against giving Narlock additional pay for work above and beyond the call of duty, but the discussion became emotional when Narlock attempted to explain why he has to sign-off on work completed by top-salaried employees.

It started when it was explained that Narlock had to be on-call so frequently because he has to sign-off on work completed by the journeymen-lineworkers. Narlock, Arlo Rude and the line sub-foreman are the only people who can sign-off on their work.

But Mayor Mark Borsheim wanted to know why, if the journeymen-lineworkers

Local resident volunteers for Red Cross

This was the scene in South Philadelphia after being visited by Hurricane Floyd in September 1999. There was damage to approximately 1,100 local homes. The area was assigned Disaster Number 208 by the American Red Cross, which set up six service centers and several shelters in the area to assist local residents with disaster recovery. (Photo courtesy of Warren Freeman.)

A Day in the Life of the . . . Red Cross Service Center Staff

■ Local resident helps East Coast victims

by Donna Myhrer

(Myhrer, who recently spent two weeks as an American Red Cross volunteer in Philadelphia following the Hurricane Floyd disaster there, prepared the following article describing what the Red Cross does at a national disaster and how the organization accomplishes these responsibilities.)

Hurricane Floyd recently devastated much of the eastern coast of the United States. Most of us have seen television news footage of the flooding which accompanied the hurricane in North Carolina. Other areas were affected as well, such as parts of New Jersey and southeastern Pennsylvania, including the city of Philadelphia, where there were more than 1,100 damaged homes. In the entire area touched by Hurricane Floyd, the American Red Cross now has provided assistance to over 17,000 families with 12,000 Red Cross volunteers and staff having been deployed to help in this disaster.

The process followed by the American Red Cross in these areas has been to open shelters and service centers to provide for immediate emergency needs of the disaster victims and then to conduct outreach efforts to locate and serve victims who were unable to travel to the service centers. Mobile feeding units are [illegible] the area for a few days after the disaster. In Philadelphia alone, nearly 13,000 meals were served by these "Mass Care" volunteers and staff in either shelters or from the mobile feeding units. In the service centers, "Family Service" workers listen to each victim's account of how he or she was affected by the disaster and then often can provide disbursing orders written to local merchants to replace groceries, clothing or household items such as bedding and towels lost in the disaster.

One of the difficulties of providing the Red Cross services is that often in a large national disaster (just like in the Red River Valley flooding of 1997) many of the people in the area who commonly do volunteer work for the Red Cross are themselves among the victims of the disaster. Because of this, the Red Cross then may bring volunteers and staff from other parts of the country to assist those who need their help.

The first [illegible] a disaster victim meets at the service center is someone in "Registration." At the St. James Episcopal church, operated as Service Center #1 in South Philadelphia, this person was usually Harry McFarland of Indiana, PA, who has served in the American Red Cross system since 1992 and has worked at nine national disasters. McFarland, a retired elementary principal, explains that the responsibilities of the registration workers are to answer questions posed by the clients, get basic information for the Family Service forms and to try to watch out for any duplication.

City's emergency management plan gets approval of council

For years, the City of Thief River Falls has placed its confidence in Pennington County's emergency management plan to get through disasters, natural and man-made. But over the years, the job of emergency management director, typically held by the sheriff, became more complicated and time consuming. Last January, the City of Thief River Falls took specific steps of naming an emergency management director and developing its own working emergency operations plan.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, who has been named emergency management director, said that most cities in the state rely on counties because they are part of the counties, but often, cities seem to be affected more by disaster and also have many resources.

Chief Froschheiser, who was directed to develop, presented the plan to the council during an adjourned meeting of the council last recently.

Froschheiser said, "The plan is a mirror of the Pennington county plan for a couple of reasons. We did not want to recreate the wheel and more important, did not want our dispatchers confused with two different plans."

This thick document, nearly two inches thick, sets forth a glossary of terms, operating policies and procedures, sets forth responsibilities for city officials, and addresses such practical concerns as notification and warning, direction and control, emergency public information, evacuation, traffic control and security, damage assessment and much more. It also addresses concerns that might crop up during any type of disaster, such as health and medical, debris clearance, fire protection, and standard operating procedures.

Chief Froschheiser said that probably one of the most important benefits of the plan is that it brings together a lot of data in one book. Specifically, Froschheiser said he likes the resources section of the manual which includes personnel and equipment available for emergency operations.

City ordinance, which mirrors State law, sets forth the reasons for an emergency management plan: Because of the possibility of the occurrence of disasters of unprecedented size and destruction resulting from fire, flood, tornado, blizzard, destructive winds or other natural causes, or from sabotage, hostile action, or from hazardous material mishaps of catastrophic measure; and in order to insure that preparations of this City will be adequate, to deal with such disasters, and generally, to provide for the common defense and to protect the public peace, health, and safety and to preserve the lives and property of the people of this city. The plan specifically:

- creates an emergency management organization responsible for city planning and preparation for emergency government operations in time of disasters;
- establishes rules and authority to provide for the exercise of necessary powers during emergencies and disasters;
- creates a plan to provide for the rendering of mutual aid between this city and other political subdivisions of this state with respect to the carrying out of emergency preparedness functions; and
- creates a plan to comply with provisions of Minnesota statutes which requires that each political subdivision of Minnesota shall establish a local organization for emergency management.

Chief Froschheiser said that in all likelihood, he and some of his officers could respond to an emergency without looking at the book, but as the years have passed, there are many more law enforcement and emergency response employees. Many of these employees are not as familiar with the city and its resources.

Chief Froschheiser thanked city directors for their assistance in putting this plan together and especially Lynette Derouin for hours of

Playground equipment at Lion's Park installed by many volunteers

It was satisfying to see a dream become reality Wednesday as representatives of the local chapter of the Lion's Club and city employees worked side-by-side to install new playground equipment at Lion's Park in Thief River Falls.

At one time, the park was known as "Wizard of OZ Neighborhood Park," or the "Water Tower Park". In 1980, the Thief River Falls City Council named the 2.7-acre park, Lion's Park. It bears the name of the organization because Lion's Club members have donated considerable time, energy and resources to the park.

Recently, club members realized that the park needed improvements. A steering committee was appointed to look at current codes for playground equipment, discuss the proposals with the city and ask vendors to prepare quotes and sketches. The steering [illegible] and later the entire membership settled on three components, including new playground equipment, a sand volleyball court, and a nine-hole frisbee golf course.

The club held fund raisers to raise over $30,000 needed to purchase the equipment from Earl F. Anderson Co. of Bloomington. The total cost of the project has been estimated at over $50,000. The club would then rely on volunteers to install the equipment.

Wednesday, over 50 volunteers, including numerous members of the Lion's Club and city employees, provided the muscle, time and energy to install the equipment under the direction of one supervisor.

Ag Committee to hold hearings

The Minnesota House of Representatives Agriculture Policy Committee has announced that it will be holding hearings in northwestern Minnesota on Friday, October 29, to discuss drainage issues and the excessive flooding on agricultural production land. The meetings are two of several the committee has held throughout the state to hear from farmers on the situation in rural Minnesota.

"With the excessive rain and flooding we have had in northwestern Minnesota, I felt I should have the committee members come up here in person to see and hear from farmers about the situations they face," said committee chairman, Rep. Tim Finseth (R-Angus). "The farmers up here don't have the time to drive six or seven hours down to St. Paul to explain their problems."

The first hearing will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. in the Roseau City Auditorium, 100 2nd Avenue Northeast, Roseau. The committee is looking for testimony from local farmers in order to better understand their various flooding problems.

The second hearing will be held in Thief River Falls to discuss drainage issues that affect agricultural land. The meeting will be held in room D60-D61 of the Northland Community and Technical College from 3 to 5 p.m.

"I want to make sure farmers have a say in the setting of state drainage policy," Finseth said. "Here is an opportunity for them to speak directly to legislators."

Both meetings are open to the public and farmers are encouraged to attend and share their ideas. The Agriculture Policy Committee is a bi-partisan, standing committee of the House of Representatives, and has direct influence on state-wide farming legislation.

Due to construction at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls a temporary entrance now routes patients, families and visitors past the construction. Several signs have been set up just outside of the building to direct people to the new entrance. Dick Spyhalski, chief executive director, said the temporary entrance will be in use Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Because the temporary entrance does have steps, individuals who require use of handicapped entrances are encouraged to use Altru entrance or, if necessary due to an emergency, the Emergency entrance. Both entrances are handicapped accessible. After 5:30 p.m. each day, the front entrance will be made accessible with a ramp.

Abundant Life Church receives matching grant

Abundant Life Lutheran Church of Thief River Falls recently received $450 from Lutheran Brotherhood, a fraternal benefit society, through the Society's Congregational Matching Funds program.

Lutheran Brotherhood matched the amount that the congregation raised through Lenten Lunches and Sunday brunches served by the youth during the course of the year. Abundant Life youth will use the funds they raised and the matching funds from Lutheran Brotherhood to send youth to retreats, Bible camps and the National Free Lutheran Youth Convention.

As a member-owned not-for-profit fraternal benefit society, Lutheran Brotherhood is an organization of more than one million Lutherans joined together for financial security, volunteer service, and benevolent outreach. Lutheran Brotherhood's mission is to work together to provide financial security for members and to serve Lutherans, their congregations, institutions and communities.

Mn/DOT installs new pedestrian signs in state

If you've noticed the bright fluorescent, yellow-green pedestrian signs going up along the state trunk highway system recently, that's exactly what the Minnesota Department of Transportation wants — your attention to pedestrians in the crosswalks and in school zones.

According to Kristie Billiar, Mn/DOT state pedestrian safety coordinator in St. Paul, "the new signs will serve as reminders of Minnesota's pedestrian right's law that requires drivers to actually come to a stop for pedestrians at all marked or unmarked intersections where traffic signals are not in operation. Billiar added, "the law also states that at intersections where there are traffic signals, motorists and pedestrians must obey the signals."

Last year, over one-third of the children under the age of 10 who were fatally injured in traffic accidents were biking or walking when they were struck, this according to the Minnesota Motor Vehicle Crash Facts for 1998, published by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

As the new school year gets into full swing, Mn/DOT urges parents to teach their children how to prevent accidents by demonstrating safe walking practices and talking to them about behaviors which would put them at risk for a car-pedestrian accident.

Billiar added, "motorists and pedestrians share in the responsibility to follow crosswalk safety principles and should respect each other's rights by observing the law."

With the installation of these new signs and increased driver and pedestrian awareness, Mn/DOT anticipates we will see fewer car-pedestrian accidents.

Breast cancer awareness the focus of October events

Attention to disease results in more research, more answers and less deaths

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

On Thursday, October 28 Northwest Medical Center will sponsor a Luminary Walk in honor of those who have fought a battle against breast cancer.

The luminaries will consist of lighted candles placed inside small paper bags bearing the names of those honored.

Across America activities take place during the month of October — National Breast Cancer Awareness Month — for the purpose of providing a nationwide educational campaign for audiences including women of all ages and ethnic backgrounds, the general public, state and federal governments, health care professionals and employers.

Basic Facts About Breast Cancer

Breast cancer, like most other forms of cancer, is named for the part of the body where the cancer starts. The breasts are glands that produce and release milk after a woman has had a baby. The glands that make milk are called lobules, and the tubes that connect them to the nipple are called ducts. In addition to lobules and ducts, the breast consists of fatty, connective and lymphatic tissue.

There are several types of breast tumors, and most are benign, caused by fibrocystic changes. While noncancerous cysts of the connective tissue can cause breast swelling and pain, they are simply abnormal growths which do not spread outside the breast and are not life threatening.

The four most common types of breast cancer include lobular carcinoma in situ (LCIS), ductal carcinoma in situ (DCIS), infiltrating (invasive) lobular carcinoma and infiltrating (invasive) ductal carcinoma.

A tumor that hasn't spread beyond the area where it began is called in situ, and although not a true cancer, the condition increases a woman's risk for developing cancer later. For this reason, a woman with LCIS should have a physical examination two or three times a year as well as an annual mammogram.

DCIS is breast cancer in its earliest stage (stage 0). The cancer is confined to the ducts, and nearly 100 percent of women with cancer at this stage can be cured.

ILC accounts for between 10 and 15 percent of all breast cancers. Starting in the lobules, it can spread to other parts of the body.

Accounting for nearly 80 percent of all breast cancer, the common IDC starts in the duct, breaks through the wall of the duct and invades the fatty tissue of the breast. From there it spread to other parts of the body.

Causes and Risk Factors

While the cause of breast cancer remains unknown, certain risk factors are linked to the disease, increasing a person's chance of getting the disease.

Simply being a woman is the main risk factor for getting breast cancer, and while men can get the disease, it is fairly rare. Age is another factor with the chances going up as a woman gets older.

Research has shown that there are genetic risk factors with between five and ten percent of breast cancers linked to changes in certain genes. Studies show that some breast cancer is linked to mutations or changes of the BRCA1 and BRCA2 genes. If a woman has inherited a mutated gene from either parent, she is more likely to develop the disease with about 50 to 60 percent of these women developing breast cancer by the age of 70.

Family history also plays a role in breast cancer. Women who have close blood relatives with the disease are at a higher risk than women who have no family history of breast cancer. While relatives can come from either side of the family, having a mother, sister or daughter with breast cancer almost doubles the risk. Also, a woman with cancer in one breast has a greater chance of developing a new cancer in the other breast.

While white women are slightly more likely to develop breast cancer, African American women are more likely to die of this cancer. Asian and Hispanic women have a lower risk of developing the disease.

Other known risk factors include women who have had chest area radiation as children or young women. These women have a significantly greater chance of developing breast cancer.

Having a small increased chance of developing the disease are women who began menstruating before the age of 12 and who went through menopause after the age of 50 and women who did not have children or had their first child after they were 30 years old.

Risk and Lifestyles

While a direct link has not been established between smoking and breast cancer, smoking is known to affect the overall health and increase the risk for other cancers. Alcohol, on the other hand, has been clearly linked to an increased risk of developing breast cancer. While women who consume one alcoholic drink a day have only a slightly increased chance of developing the disease, those who have two to five drinks a day have about one and one-half times the risk of women who drink no alcohol.

Women who use birth control pills and those who use estrogen replacement therapy for the relief of menopausal symptoms should discuss the risks of breast cancer with their physicians. While the link between birth control pills and breast cancer remains unclear, studies show that the risk may be slightly higher for current and recent hormone replacement therapy users.

With regard to diet, there may be a link between being overweight and a higher risk of breast cancer, especially for women over the age of 50. However, the connection is complex and may be related to whether a woman gained weight as an adult or has been overweight since childhood. While studies of fat in the diet have yielded conflicting results, there is evidence that breast cancer is less common in countries where the typical diet is low in fat.

Although a great amount of research to date has not linked breast cancer to exposure to pollutants, research continues in this area. Other research shows no direct link between miscarriages and the disease. While some studies have shown that breast feeding for a period of one and one-half to two years may slightly decrease breast cancer risk, other studies show no impact on the disease.

Prevention and Early Detection

There is no certain way of preventing breast cancer, and currently, the best strategy is to reduce risk as much as possible and follow the guidelines for finding breast cancer early.

The American Cancer Society recommends that women over 40 have a mammogram and clinical breast examination every year and that women between the ages of 20 and 39 have a clinical breast examination every three years. It also urges every women over the age of 20 to perform a breast self examination every month.

A recent press release from Northwest Medical Center states that recent changes now allow NWMC to accept self-referrals for mammograms. This means that a patient who is planning to have a physical may now have a mammogram before the physical and have the information available when she visits her doctor.

While medicare and most insurance companies cover the cost of annual mammograms, patients in question should check with their insurance companies regarding coverage. For those who are non-symptomatic and not covered by insurance, NWMC offers a screening mammogram for an affordable cost of $55. This fee must be paid at the time of registration. However, if you wish your insurance company to process your claim, simply inform the staff when you are registered, and they will direct the billing to your insurance company.

Breast Cancer Statistics

An estimated 180,000 new cases of breast cancer are expected in the United States in 1999, and an estimated 43,300 women are expected to die of the disease this year.

Breast cancer is the leading cause of death in women between the ages of 40 and 55 and the leading cause of death from the disease in women between 25 and 35.

About 77 percent of the women with newly diagnosed breast cancer will be over the age of 50.

Although breast cancer is primarily a disease that affects women, men can also be at risk and should report any change in their breasts to their doctors. In 1999, an estimated 1,300 men are expected to be diagnosed with breast cancer.

The Good News

Since the early 1990s, death from breast cancer has declined. This is due to better breast cancer treatment and the discovery of tumors earlier through screening mammography.

Today, the majority of women with a diagnosis of breast cancer are cured with proper treatment, and while patients with advanced disease cannot usually be cured, the disease can often be controlled for several years.

With an amazing rate of progress coming from ongoing research, there is promise for curative treatment for most patients in the future. In 1999, new as well as old drugs have been approved not only for the treatment of breast cancer but also for the use of preventing the disease.

However, even with the outstanding progress that has been made, women cannot become complacent about breast cancer but continue to practice the three-step program for breast health, speak out to keep breast cancer research a high priority and become knowledgeable about preventive strategies and treatment protocols.

The avalanche of information provided during Breast Cancer Awareness Month and the many activities held during the month have helped to bring the disease to the attention of women, legislators, medical professionals and the general population. This has lead to more research, better treatments and more hope than ever before for the prevention and cure for breast cancer.

The Luminary Walk at Northwest Medical Center honoring women who have fought a battle against the disease will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, October 28. Anyone wishing to honor someone may call the hospital at 683-1477 or stop by and fill out a card in person.

Those participating in the walk will be invited to come into the north lobby of Northwest Medical Center where X-ray department staff will provide refreshments and information about breast cancer.

Everyone is invited to view the luminaries, reminding us not only of those who have fought against breast cancer but also to be aware and mindful of our own breast health.

Adaptive devices were used by some of the children participating in a recent area Special Olympics event at Family Bowl in Thief River Falls. Represented were teams from Crookston, Warroad, East Grand Forks, Warren/Alvarado, Ada/Borup and Middle River/Goodridge.

Throughout his scouting experience, Camp Wilderness has played a very important role with Matthew attending camp each summer and completing the COPE course in June of 1998.

For his Eagle project, Matthew chose to work at the environmental nature area at Challenger school, designing and building a seating area for teachers to use for their classroom trips to the nature area. The projects consists of seven six-foot benches installed in a handicap accessible gravel area. The project was completed with the help of the scouts and parents of Troop 59, friends and family members.

In addition to scouting, Matthew is involved in a number of other activities. He is a member of Redeemer Lutheran Church where he plays in a worship brass ensemble and is a member of the youth group.

A 10th grader at Lincoln High School, Matthew plays the bass trombone in the wind ensemble, pep band and jazz band. He also participates in cross country, basketball and is a varsity letter winner in tennis. His plans for the future include attending college and pursuing a career in the computers field. Matt also plans to remain active in Boy Scouts.

Following the Eagle Court of Honor a reception was held in Matthew's honor in the church basement. Troop 59 and Pack 59 are sponsored by Zion Lutheran Church. Jim Floks is the current Scoutmaster.

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent
School District 564

Dear Citizens of Independent School District #564:

The week of October 18 is an opportunity that you as parents need to take advantage of in your school system. It is the time for parent-teacher conferences--a time for you as parents to be actively involved and communicate with your child's teachers. I'd like to offer some suggestions as you look at preparing for these conferences. I know that many of you may have already attended those conferences, but if there is something that you missed, don't be afraid to call your child's teacher and ask for another conference at a later date.

1. Be prepared to ask how your child is doing in all of the subject areas.

2. Ask your child's teacher about some of the positive things that your child is doing in school.

3. Don't be afraid to ask what the goals of the curriculum are as it relates to your child's educational program.

4. Ask what the curriculum and instructional objectives are in that class for your child in that grade.

5. Ask how your child is doing in respect to what is expected in the classroom but not in comparison with other students in the class.

6. Ask the classroom teacher how you can communicate with your child's teacher on a regular basis.

7. Ask how you can be of help to the teacher in strengthening the educational program that we have in Thief River Falls and, specifically, for your child.

Parent-teacher conferences are exactly that--conferences. They provide an opportunity for parents, the school and teachers to become partners in working with your students. It is also an opportunity for you to find out from your child what some of the things are that they would like to have asked of their teacher.

When you have completed your parent-teacher conferences, be sure to talk to your child about the things you heard at the conference. Be sure to reinforce the positive statements that are made regarding your child and also let them know that you have taken an active interest in what they are doing in school academically. Be sure to attend your parent-teacher conferences as they are scheduled no matter where your child is in school--whether it's elementary, middle school or high school. It is critical for you as parents to take an active role in your child's educational program.

I'd like to use the remainder of this column to identify the goals that we've established for the school district. In order for us to identify where we are headed, we need to know how to get there and goals allow us to do that.

Goal #1: To create a Thief River Falls partnership for learning. This is a goal that was adopted in 1994 to the Strategic Plan and is still a relevant goal today. The rationale for this goal is that education is a dynamic process which must include all stakeholders in the learning process. One way of doing that is certainly by your active participation as a parent in your parent-teacher conferences, in volunteering in your school system and by taking an active part in the educational process in Thief River Falls.

Goal #2: Expand the technological network to include community access, utilization, instructional use, informational resources, communication link and management tool. In looking at technology as an instructional tool, it is a way to enhance and expand the learning knowledge of students. Technology is used as a tool to enhance instruction, communication and data collection. It is an integral part of the educational process.

Goal #3: Develop a quality learning system. Learning must be present in an environment that is quality in nature and must be delivered in a safe, caring and nurturing environment. Our school district recently adopted a crisis response plan. Over the last year, we have also adopted a zero tolerance policy for any kind of inappropriate, unacceptable behavior in our schools we want to assure you that our schools are a quality learning system that includes a safe environment where students and staff can learn.

Goal #4: Develop a quality human resource program. We want to make sure that we are hiring only the highest quality people to work in our school system. We have established a high standard and we expect every employee to comply with that standard.

Goal #5: Develop an efficient process for fiscal resource allocation. Fiscal responsibility is one of the primary focuses of a public agency. This responsibility must be taken with all seriousness and must be done in a way to assure that expenditures result in increased student achievement.

Goal #6: Develop a facilities management system that assures ISD #564 facilities are maintained as a safe environment. The facilities in School District #564 are well maintained. We must continue to maintain these facilities so they are in an environment that is conducive to learning.

We establish goals every year in the school district. We look at where we want to go and how we want to get there. Goals are developed by the School Board, but it takes the whole community to implement and assure that these goals are being met. I invite you as citizens of Independent School District #564 to give me feedback regarding these goals. I would like to know if we are on target, if we're missing a target or if we need to take a different direction. I invite you to call me and ask for a copy of our goals so you will know what your school district is doing. You can reach me at 681-8711 and I'd be glad to send you a copy of these goals.

As we look at the fact that we are fast approaching the end of our first nine weeks of this school year, I'd like to say that our school year has started out very positively. We've had an extremely good start and that sets the tempo for the rest of the year. This is done through the efforts of our quality staff who are committed to the education of students in this school district. It is also done through the commitment that you as a community have given this school system.

There is one additional item I would like to bring to your attention and that is the discussion of an alternative schedule at the high school. This column, however, does not allow for a comprehensive discussion of the positives and negatives of an alternative block schedule. Instead, I invite you to call the high school to find out when the next Open Forum is scheduled. This will be an opportunity for you to get the facts about an alternative block schedule.

I look forward to an exciting school year. I look forward to a fun school year. Again, I invite any citizen who has a concern or issue to give me a call at 681-8711 or drop me a note at 230 South LaBree Avenue, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. This is your school system. ...Simplicity

The following was supposedly written by a young student of Columbine high school in Colorado, the place where the shootings took place. Isn't it just too true? And I'm sure we can all think of many things to add to the list:

The paradox of our time is that we have taller buildings, but shorter tempers; wider freeways, but narrower viewpoints; we spend more, but we have less; we buy more, but we enjoy less.

We have bigger houses and smaller families; more conveniences, but less time; we have more degrees, but less sense; more knowledge, but less judgment; more experts, but more problems; more medicine, but less wellness.

We have multiplied our possessions, but reduced our values.

We talk too much, love too seldom, and hate too often.

We've learned how to make a living, but not a life; we've added years to life, but not life to years.

We've been all the way to the moon and back, but have trouble crossing the street to meet the new neighbor.

We've conquered outer space, but not inner space; we've cleaned up the air, but polluted the soul; we've split the atom, but not our prejudice.

We have higher incomes, but lower morals; we've become long on quantity, but short on quality.

These are the times of tall men, and short character, steep profits, and shallow relationships.

These are the times of world peace, but domestic warfare; more leisure, but less fun; more kinds of food, but less nutrition.

These are the days of two incomes, but more divorce; of fancier houses, but broken homes.

It is a time when there is much in the showroom window and nothing in the stockroom; a time when technology can bring this message to you in a flash, and a time when you can choose either to make a difference or just hit delete.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

I spent two hours at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City a couple of weekends ago. That wasn't long enough, to say the least.

The Met has over two million works of art in its collection. Of that two million, about 100,000 are on display at any one time. The rest are in a warehouse somewhere until they get a chance to be displayed.

Do you know how long it would take to see just those 100,000 works of art? I figured it out. If I were to spent 10 seconds on each piece of art, it would take me over a month-and-a-half of eight hour days to get through that small bit of the museum's collection.

If each of those works of art is worth a thousand dollars, the whole collection would be worth two billion dollars. But you couldn't get any of them that cheaply! Some are worth many hundred thousand, and many others would sell for millions apiece.

I suppose market value is a profane way to measure the value of great art. The Met is packed every day with people from all over the world. There are lines waiting for the place to open at ten in the morning, and they aren't there to shop.

I don't know much about art. The word "museum" makes me yawn. I have asked the question many times: How can a painting sell for $30 million, as one of Van Gogh's did a while back? Isn't that as ridiculous as paying Michael Jordan $30 million to play basketball?

Who knows. But after I spent an afternoon looking at just a few works of art, I began to appreciate the value art can have for a person's spirit and intellect, apart from its staggering dollar value.

Just as I was tired and ready to leave, I ran across little carving of gold so delicate and beautiful that I was entranced by it for far longer than the allotted ten seconds.

The carving was no bigger than a post card. Some prince had ordered it made for his favorite wife. It took a craftsman years to make.

It was a jungle scene, and featured vines intertwined with birds and other animals, all finished in intricate and perfect detail.

Most amazing to me, the carving was from eighth century Iran. I didn't know Iran existed in the 8th century!

Such is the value of a museum. One realizes seeing these high achievements from people of thousands of years back that our modern world isn't the pinnacle of creation. We probably aren't close to being the richest civilization in history, if one puts any value at all on things of beauty.

CONRAD HOLTEN
For Council Member At-Large
NOVEMBER 2nd, 1999
Our city's property taxes are ranked 2nd highest in the state. How much higher do they need to be? We must cut taxes.
We have a bond indebtedness of over $12 million. Can we afford to bond for more questionable projects? No.
There are several new fees proposed to generate revenue, such as: Brush Pick-up, Leaf Vacuum Service, Street Lights, and Emergency Services. There is also a Water Rate Increase proposed for March 1, 2000.
Why all the New Fees? Why the Rate Increases? Why keep Raising Taxes? Why keep Spending Reserves? Why keep Bonding for more money?
It's time for a CHANGE. We need to control spending, pay our bills, and build-up our reserves.
Vote For CONRAD HOLTEN

Paid for by the committee to elect Conrad Holten for council member at-large, Sherry Borsheim, Treasurer.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Cereal Box Puzzles

After the last crumb has been crunched and the free prize has been plucked, an empty cereal box makes a wonderful inexpensive jigsaw puzzle. To make one puzzle, cut the front panel off a box, laminate it with clear contact paper, and then cut it into large interlocking pieces. If desired, code the back of the pieces with a numeral for easy identification. Place the pieces in a plastic resealable bag; then challenge your youngsters to reassemble the front of the box. Who knew a cereal box could be so much fun?

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Pinkwater, Daniel. Rainy Morning. One rainy morning the Submarine family hadn't been expecting guests, but what were they to do when a wandering wildebeest, a small European circus, and Ludwig von Beethoven showed up on their doorstep? Why, invite them all in for some tea and muffins, of course!

Rex, Michael. My Fire Engine. When an alarm sounds at the firehouse, a little boy lives out an age-old fantasy of fighting fires, saving lives and being a hero. Everyone is safer, until next time.

PARENTING TIPS
Halloween and Your Child

Your young child is beginning to feel security within the home and family. He or she trusts you as a parent and believes that you will protect and guide him or her. She knows what friends look like and what to do when they come over.

Then October comes and we begin to talk about Halloween. He begins to see scary faces and weird decorations in the stores, in people's houses and yards, maybe even in your own home.

Young children may need extra care during this time. Very gently explain about this dress-up day. However for the young child perhaps the emphasis should be on pumpkins, jack-o-lanterns and non-scary costumes of animals rather than witches and ghosts. Your young child still does not know what is pretend and what is real.

Take time for several weeks before Halloween to talk about what will happen. Talk about the store decorations. Slowly decorate your house and let your child help you.

But remember on Halloween that your child may still not be ready. It may really scare her. Please don't push her. It may take several years. The best thing you can do is to understand how he or she feels. "I know these masks scare you. Stay close to me. I will not let anyone hurt you."

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As you talk with your child about Halloween be sure to give him/her an opportunity to tell you how he/she feels about the holiday and its symbols.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Taryn Pream, Lincoln High School

Close your windows! Pull your shades! Lock your doors! It's that time of year again...that great and wonderful adventure we students like to call fund-raising.

Almost all students fund-raise sometime in their school career. And almost everyone knows just how stressful it can be. It's no picnic. Everyone deals with it in his or her own way...some more originally than others, but it's dealt with just the same.

Let's look at two subjects: Bob and Pete. Bob is your typical overachiever. He excels at everything he does and approaches new ideas with excitement and exuberance. Pete is quite the opposite. He hates the idea of fund-raising and occasionally approaching people by going door to door. In fact, he hates asking people for money or donations.

Bob and Pete attend a required fund-raising meeting for a school trip. The fund-raising representative is jumping all over the place, telling them exactly what they can get if they "sell this many items." Pete slides down in his chair. His stomach feels as if it could erupt. Another fund-raiser? he thinks. And who really wants that special calculator complete with dried out highlighters in four different colors?

Bob is quivering with excitement. He is drooling over the awards. He pictures himself doing his math homework with that really swell calculator with the four different colored highlighters. What a nifty prize! I can't wait to get started. I only have to sell 300 items to get that really cool watch too! he says to himself.

Bob and Pete receive their fund-raising materials and get to work.

Bob sets out, going door to door the second he gets out of school. He rings each doorbell, not once, not twice, but six times just to make sure that there is someone home. After the door opens, Bob takes a deep breath and rattles off his speech to his latest victim. "Hi. I'm BobfromthehighschoolandIwasjust (deep breath here) wonderingifyouwouldliketopurchasesomethingfrommeasitsupportsmy (another breath) classtriptoCostaRica." Immediately after his speech, Bob plasters on a smile so wide you could walk on water using his teeth.

Pete, however, sits around for a couple days until he decides maybe he should at least make an attempt to sell this stuff. Pete rings the doorbell once and waits about five minutes. When the door opens, Pete begins his "campaign" speech.

"Hi. I'm Pete. Do you wanna buy something from me?" Following this, Pete manages a weak smile.

After the order has been taken, both boys response with a "thank you." But Bob also adds a little extra to his appreciation. "Thanks so much!! Is there anything that I can do for you, like wash your car or mow your lawn or something?" Doing this usually results in the sale of about eight more items. Bob has the system all figured out.

When it came time to return the fund-raising materials to school, Pete has sold sixteen items and got a nifty calculator with four different colored highlighters. Bob has sold 301 items. He was able to get the watch--which broke within a week.

What's the point of this tale? Not to fund-raise? To fund-raise until your eyes pop out? To sit around and pretend to fund-raise? To try and get that really nifty calculator with four different colored highlighters?

It's not any of those things!

The purpose of this little story is to show the people of Thief River Falls that even though it seems like there are about eight million fund-raisers going on at once, we all have the same goal in mind--a class trip, new uniforms, equipment, or other things that take place during the school year. So next time someone comes knocking at your door, please remember that even though this may be your seventh or eighth box of chocolates/raffle ticket/coupon book, we thank you for being supportive of our students and their activities.

He says that often in a disaster family members may be staying at different shelters or with different friends and relatives and may not be in contact with each other, so it may happen that two or more members of the same household may visit the service center at different times with the same needs for replacing clothes, groceries, and so on. The registration desk keeps one copy of each initial form (called a "901") which keeps this kind of duplication of services to a minimum when information is compared from the client's driver's license or other picture identification to earlier client's names and addresses.

McFarland says that in the first few days of the operation of a service center, there may be long lines of clients and so often he tries to make appointments for meetings with the case workers for later so that the people won't have to stay at the service center all day.

If the Registration or Family Service staff wants more information about the amount of damage to a home, they call in "Damage Assessment." Hilbert Felton of Mountaintop, PA, is both a specialist in Mass Care and a technician in Damage Assessment. In 1997 he spent some time in Hallock helping with a shelter for those evacuated from their homes by the flooding of the Red River of the North. Within the past month, Felton, a retired piano repairman, has been working in Damage Assessment in South Philadelphia. The first stage of this operation is to drive through neighborhoods and record visible damage like water marks on the buildings, block by block. Later this information is used to help the "Family Service" staff determine the kind of needs a family might have when they visit the service center. If, when the client describes the damage, there is a large discrepancy between their estimate of the damage and the earlier assessments, a home visit will be scheduled for a Damage Assessment person to meet with the client at the home and record the damage estimates there. Felton says he has been with the American Red Cross at seven national disasters, including Georgia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the Red River Valley.

Pat Simkins of Indiana, PA, (or someone like her) is usually the second person the Philadelphia hurricane victim will meet. As a "Family Services" technician, she listens to the clients' descriptions of where they were, how much damage their homes received, in general what happened to them during the disaster. Simkins, a retired elementary teacher, who has done regular volunteer work with a Bloodmobile for 20 years, says that this is her first trip to a national disaster for the American Red Cross, although she has served on the board of her chapter for four years. While interviewing the clients at the service center here in Philadelphia, she recorded what happened to the client and, if they expressed needs such as replacement of clothing or groceries, she would either provide a disbursing order or a referral to FEMA, the Salvation Army or St. Vincent de Paul. In addition to seeing clients, at the rate of about two per hour, she assists at the service center with the telephone hot line answering questions for clients who call in.

When Simkins has a question about how much she can help or how to go about it, she goes to a "Family Services" specialist like Gail Johnson.

Gail Johnson of Hale, MI, was stationed with the Red Cross in Breckinridge during the Red River Valley flooding two years ago. In Philadelphia following the Hurricane Floyd disaster, she serves as a Family Service Specialist and oversees the work done by all the Family Service staff. She looks over most of the forms which the case workers (or Family Service technicians) fill out to make sure they are done correctly. If a disbursing order is written incorrectly, such as not naming the recipient correctly or writing different amounts in the spaces provided for the dollar value of the disbursing order, there is a possibility that the merchant who receives it won't honor it and the disaster victim may have to return to the Red Cross service center to replace it. If some of the other information is missing or incorrect, such as the name of the county or the address of the merchant who will receive the disbursing order, the Red Cross national office may be delayed in reimbursing the merchant for the food or clothing providing in disaster relief.

Johnson, who is 60, is retired from a position with General Motors as a supervisor in the parts department. She has been to about ten national disasters in Louisiana, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, Nevada and Texas, as well as the one in Minnesota and North Dakota. She has served in Mass Care, Damage Assessment and Records and Reports. In her local chapter, she regularly helps to make comfort kits for disaster victims.

Anne Shanahan, a registered nurse from Harrisburg, PA, has been involved with the American Red Cross for six years. She was stationed at a shelter in Crookston during the Red River Valley 1997 flooding for two weeks, and has assisted at seven other national disasters, including Louisiana, Florida, Missouri, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. She is asked to meet with clients by the "Family Service" case workers if there is a medical component to their needs. Maybe the person was injured by the disaster. Maybe he or she needs medications replaced, that were lost in the flooding. Sometimes the American Red Cross can replace a chair lift, breathing equipment or other health-related equipment lost in a disaster. She does some of her work at the service center, but might also visit a hospital or client's home if necessary.

Shanahan is also responsible for maintaining the health of the American Red Cross staff while they are on a Disaster Services Human Resources (DSHR) assignment like this one. If a volunteer becomes ill or injured, she can make arrangements to send the person home or help the volunteer get medical assistance at a clinic or hospital.

Harriet Harman of Huntington, WV, a retired school counselor, has been with the American Red Cross for about five years. She also is a counselor for victims of breast cancer and a court advisor for domestic abuse cases. She has been present at four national disasters, two in West Virginia, one in Arkansas, where a series of 38 tornadoes attacked the area, and this one.

Disaster Mental Health is a fairly recent division from the overall Disaster Health Services of the American Red Cross. The shock and stress of a disaster can sometimes be overwhelming for those experiencing it. Her primary responsibility is to assist both "Registration" and "Family Service" staff to keep everyone in a calm mood. Sometimes, Harman says, someone asks her to help talk with a client and at other times she notices very tense body language and she will offer her help. To help defuse a stressful situation, she may listen to a client, distract noisy children with a teddy bear or donated toys or comfort someone who is showing signs of distress, like crying.

Like the Disaster Health Services, her concern is not only with clients, but also in helping the Red Cross volunteers who may be suffering stress. She says that sometimes when the disaster is right there, in the volunteer's face, he or she starts to feel compelled to work long hours without taking breaks, "because the need is so terribly overwhelming." It is part of Harman's job to watch the volunteers to make sure that they take regular breaks, eat their meals and have a chance to relax at times.

Michelle McCaffrey of Wayne, PA, a staff member of the Southeastern Pennsylvania chapter of the American Red Cross, is kept very busy in the "Public Affairs" function of this disaster. She says that early in the disaster, there are constant requests by the local and national media for updates of damage reports. Everyone wants to know how many people are affected, where shelters are being opened and what help is available. Later she helps to distribute signs in the affected neighborhood to let people know where they should go to apply for assistance and when the service centers are open. She also gathers information from the volunteers at a service center so that "Public Affairs" can send out press releases to home town papers all over the country about the person's involvement.

One of the "Records and Reports" volunteers is a woman named Patricia Creeraft of Saegertown, PA. Pat has worked in "Damage Assessment" as well as in the "Records and Reports" function of the American Red Cross. Like the Sesame Street character, "The Count," she spends most of her time counting things. "Family Service" case workers make up files on the clients and these are kept by "Records and Reports." Daily reports about how many people received disbursing orders and what these were for, are also made and sent by courier to the local headquarters.

Patricia Creeraft and I. Donna Myhrer (also serving in the "Records and Reports" function for this disaster), both grew up in northwest Minnesota. Pat Simkins and her husband, Ron, traveled across northern Minnesota on a vacation earlier this summer. Michelle McCaffrey has a brother attending college in Winona, MN; Harriet Harman has a grandson attending St. Cloud State University. Hilbert Felton, Gail Johnson and Anne Shanahan were here in 1997 providing flood recovery services. Some of the officers and specialists in the Philadelphia Red Cross headquarters, including Ella Meese, Rolland Fall and Lou Pierce, were all stationed at the Grand Forks Red Cross flood recovery office within the past year. With the American Red Cross, it's always a small world.

The American Red Cross is estimating that $25 million will be needed for relief efforts to cope with the devastation of Hurricane Floyd. If you wish to assist the American Red Cross with help for those affected by Hurricane Floyd and other disasters, you may send a donation to: The American Red Cross, Beltrami County Chapter, 310 Fourth St. NW, Bemidji, MN 56601 or call 1-800-HELP-NOW. If you send a check and write "Disaster Relief" on the memo line, the money will be used only for food, clothing and accommodations, etc. for national disaster victims and clean-up kits for their homes. If you wish the use of your donation to be restricted to smaller disasters in the local area, please indicate that on the check's memo line.

The Disaster Health nurses of the American Red Cross, such as Anne Shanahan shown here on the left, have two responsibilities. They work with disaster victims on health-related issues, but also monitor the health of the Red Cross staff. Here Anne is checking the blood pressure of Merlon Henegan, 69, (right) a local volunteer who has been employed by "Seniors at Work," a local government program for the past two years. She was serving as a volunteer at Service Center #1 assisting by checking and clarifying the legibility of the Family Service files.

Service Center #1 was located in the Sunday school building of the St. James Episcopal church in South Philadelphia. The building was constructed in 1859 as an addition to the church building next to it, which was built in 1762 by Swedish Lutherans. It offered a large reception and waiting room, a large room for interviews with clients and record-keeping duties and a large kitchen and break room. Medicare Part B will help pay for a mammogram

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Once again, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), the federal agency that administers the medicare program, is taking this opportunity to urge female beneficiaries to take advantage of the breast cancer screening benefit available under Medicare.

The risk of getting breast cancer increases with age regardless of family history and other well-known risk factors but, unfortunately, many older women don't realize this, and they don't get mammograms regularly. HCFA wants to change this, by encouraging women to get a screening mammogram every year. A mammogram is the best tool available to detect breast cancer early, when it can be treated most effectively.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 expanded Medicare coverage of screening mammograms. Effective January 1998, Medicare began paying for an annual screening mammogram for all female beneficiaries age 40 and over. This change made Medicare Part B coverage consistent with the frequency recommendations of most major breast cancer authorities. Also, the annual Part B deductible, currently $100, no longer applies to this service, so women needn't wait to take advantage of this benefit.

Medicare still pays 80 percent of the approved amount and the patient still must pay the 20 percent Part B coinsurance for this service. If the patient's physician or supplier does not accept assignment of their Medicare claim (that is, accept Medicare's approved amount as payment in full), the patient is responsible for all permissible charges in excess of the approved amount. Permissible charges may not exceed 15 percent of the Medicare approved charge.

Beneficiaries need to know about this important change in their benefits as well as other important improvements in Medicare coverage of preventive benefits and early detection services. This promotion is one of HCFA's educational campaigns aimed at helping Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries become informed consumers of health care services as well as encouraging them to obtain covered preventive health care service. HCFA works with its claims processing contractors and other partners such as Peer Review Organizations, State Health Insurance Assistance Programs, and health advocacy and senior groups to educate people about these benefits.

HCFA is also working in partnership with the Centers for Disease Control and prevention (CDC) and the Cancer Information Service of the National Cancer Institute (NCI), part of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), to draw attention to the importance of early detection of breast cancer and to a woman's continuing need for mammograms as she ages. Through an interagency agreement, NCI has modified some of its promotional materials to focus on older women. One of the important messages about mammograms that these pamphlets, posters, bookmarks and other items convey is that mammograms should be done "Not just once, but for a lifetime."

Women who would like more information about breast cancer prevention, screening and treatment can contact NCI's Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or visit their Internet web site at: http://www.nci.nih.gov. Medicare information is available through HCFA at 1-800-MEDICARE, 1-800-633-4227, or on our Internet web site at http://www.medicare.gov/.

Northland will host its first football playoff game Saturday

MCCC Football Playoffs
■ Semifinals Saturday, Oct. 23 - Ridgewater (7-1) at Northland (6-2), 1 p.m.; Vermilion (5-3) at Rochester (8-0), 2:30 p.m.
■ Championship Saturday, Oct. 30 - at University of Minnesota-Duluth, 1 p.m.

Saturday, Northland Community and Technical College will make its fourth appearance in the Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs. But this time, it'll be different. This time, the Pioneers, by virtue of winning their first-ever outright Northern Division title, begin post-season play at home. They will host Southern Division runner-up Ridgewater in a 1 p.m. MCCC semifinal match-up at Prowler Field.

Northern Division runner-up Vermilion is at Southern Division champion Rochester that afternoon in the other first-round playoff game. Winners will meet in the state finals a week later at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

Northland has never won a playoff game. The three previous post-season appearances resulted in first round losses to Rochester in 1993, Normandale in 1994 and Rochester again in 1997.

The 1993 team that earned a share of the Northern Division title finished the year 6-3 – the best record in the history of the Northland football program that began in 1976. The Pioneers went into the playoffs as the Northern Division runner-up in 1994 and 1997.

The current team has matched that 1993 win total with a 6-2 regular season record, which included identical 3-1 finishes against both Northern and Southern Divisions teams. The Pioneers started the year with a four-game swing through the South, beating Central Lakes 28-26 and Fergus Falls 16-8 before losing at Ridgewater 31-7. They bounced back to finish the first half of the schedule with a 21-14 win over Minnesota West.

Against Northern Division rivals, Northland out-scored Hibbing 50-43 and lost to Vermilion 30-20 before finishing with wins over Itasca 21-7 and Mesabi Range 24-16 last Thursday to nail down the pennant.

Ridgewater has lost just once this fall, a 52-6 late-season division title-deciding pasting at the hands of Rochester. In addition to the Week 2 win over Northland, the Willmar school has beaten Mesabi Range 21-13, Vermilion 20-0, Fergus Falls 35-0, Minnesota West 30-22, Hibbing 32-7, and Central Lakes 37-6 in Saturday's regular season finale.

"Ridgewater presents a lot of problems," warned Northland coach Dan Willoughby. "They're huge. They've got good size on both the offensive and defensive line. They're tough to handle up front."

Offensively, Ridgewater relies on runningback Mike Williams and two quarterbacks – Dan LaMott and Adam Hoffman. "They're pretty balanced, offensively," noted Willoughby. "They're probably the most balanced team, as far as running and passing, that we've played. They don't have a lot of different plays, but they run out of a lot of different sets."

Willoughby said the Pioneers will try to force the hand of the Ridgewater offense by overloading against the run. "If they're going to beat us, they're going to have to throw the ball," he said.

There is also a challenge in facing the Ridgewater defense that likes to line up in a 5-2, compared to the 4-4 preferred by most of the schools in the MCCC. "They're the only team we've faced that will run the 5-2," explained Willoughby. A penchant for playing their safeties up close to the line also creates a different look to the Ridgewater defense, mentioned Willoughby.

Northland's attack features the inside pounding of fullback Scott Olsen and the outside running by halfback Matt Hitchen.

"If we're going to beat Ridgewater, we need to have everybody on the same page, offensively and defensively," said Willoughby. "When we got beat down there, we didn't have all 11 guys working together. And we weren't very aggressive. Offensively, we let them come at us instead of us going out to block them, and defensively, we didn't attack the ball like we normally do."

The Pioneers will once again play without their starting center/quarterback combination. Jason Cummings, a 5-7, 230-pound sophomore center from Frazee, is sidelined because of a concussion, and Ben Mosack, a 6-0, 170-pound freshman quarterback from Motley, is out because of a shoulder problem.

Questionable for Saturday is Jayson Robinson, a 5-11, 200-pound sophomore strong safety from Thompson, ND, who is plagued by a hamstring pull.

Northland Starting Offense
■ Center - Seth Vettleson, 6-1, 185, freshman, Oklee.

■ Free safety - Mark Besemonn, 5-10, 165, sophomore, Hibbing

Win keeps NCTC in volleyball race

There's something about Fergus Falls that brings out the best in the Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team.

The Pioneers played their best match of the season, according to head coach Mike Zachow at the time, in a 3-1 win at Fergus Falls back on Sept. 29.

They duplicated that effort Monday in another 3-1 victory over the Spartans, this one in a must-win situation on the Pioneers' court.

"We looked good," smiled Zachow after the 15-7, 15-8, 8-15, 15-9 decision. "We've played our two best matches of the season by far against Fergus Falls."

Northland needed this one; Fergus Falls could have used it. Last week, a 3-2 loss to Itasca all but knocked the Pioneers out of the Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament picture. It put them in a position of not only needing to beat Fergus Falls and Central Lakes in their final two starts, but requiring some help in other MCCC results.

Well, they got the help over the weekend, and they got the first of the necessary wins by beating Fergus Falls, handily. If the outcome would have been reversed, the Spartans would have clinched the fourth and final Northern Division state tournament berth and the Pioneers would have been eliminated.

That sets the stage for tonight (Wednesday) when Northland hosts Central Lakes at 6:30 p.m. A win puts the Pioneers in the state tournament and ends the Fergus Falls season. A Northland loss tonight closes the curtain on their schedule and sends the Spartans to the state meet.

With all that on the line, Northland turned in an impressive show against Fergus Falls. In near-identical fashion, the Pioneers dominated play at the start of Games 1 and 2, building early leads that easily withstood belated Fergus Falls comebacks.

It was 14-2 in the first game following a kill by the Pioneers' Tami Johnson. Fergus Falls managed to make it 14-7 on an ace by Cathy Selvig, but Jamie Schwarz ended it when her drive through a double block fell in for the final point.

The scenario repeated itself in the second game when a service ace by Shelli Eriksen put Northland up 14-3. Again, the Spartans rallied, pulling within 14-8 on a kill block by Selvig before an Amie Kotrba ace put the Pioneers up 2-0 on the scoreboard.

Northland's front row controlled play in those two wins. "Our hitting and blocking were sharp," agreed Zachow. "We did a real nice job at the net."

Fergus Falls showed some spark in Game 3 by building a 10-4 lead and winning 15-8 when Selvig won out on a final-point tie-up at the net.

"We were a little off in the third game," admitted Zachow, "but we picked it up again in the fourth game."

Indeed they did. A block by the Spartans' Alayna Follingstad produced a 6-6 tie, but Kristin Halvorson picked up a point and an assist (on a spike by Schwarz) to give the Pioneers a lead they would never surrender.

Selvig had a kill to keep the Spartans within 10-9, but Eriksen produced a side-out kill, then went to the service line for an ace. Kotrba followed with a point off a tap, and Sandy Brekke, coming off a knee injury that has sidelined her for almost two weeks, also scored off a change-up at the net to make it 13-9.

A long rally then ended when Fergus Falls was called for four hits, and Kotrba wrapped it up with a kill off a blocker.

"It was nice to have Sandy Brekke back in there," noted Zachow. "She played well, but she didn't do it alone. Amie Kotrba, Jessica Johnson, Kristin Halvorson, Jamie Schwarz...they all played well."

Northland is 13-11 for the year; 7-6 in MCCC play. The Pioneers lost a 3-1 match to Central Lakes Sept. 22 in Brainerd.

Cross country meet postponed at Park Rapids course Monday

Weather forced postponement of Monday's Park Rapids Invitational boys and girls high school cross country meet. Thief River Falls was scheduled to run in the race.

Sandy Brekke of Northland won this battle at the net with Fergus Falls' Steph Peasley during Monday's Minnesota Community College Conference volleyball match in Thief River Falls. The Pioneers beat the Spartans 3-1.

Jessica Johnson of Northland received this Fergus Falls serve in the first game of Monday's Minnesota Community College Conference volleyball match at the Northland gym. A 3-1 win kept the Pioneers in the race for an MCCC state tournament spot.

Thief River Falls, after back-to-back losses to Section 8AAAA leaders Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls, will close out its 1999 regular season high school football schedule tonight (Wednesday) with a 7 p.m. game against East Grand Forks at Prowler Field.

The two teams are not sectional opponents (the Green Wave is in 8AAA), but the long-time rivalry supereedes the different post-season placements. Thief River Falls is looking to finish 5-3. Injury-riddled East Grand Forks is still without a win.

While Thief River Falls is coming off losses to Detroit Lakes 26-6 and Fergus Falls 27-14 that dropped the Prowlers out of the lead in the Section 8AAAA points race, a home site for Tuesday's first round of playoff games is assured. A win over the Green Wave will nail down the No. 3 seed; a loss would drop them a notch to No. 4.

East Grand Forks started the 1999 schedule with close losses to Big Lake 25-23 and Park Rapids Area 22-21 before a never-ending series of injuries raised havoc with the season. In the last five weeks the Green Wave fell to Wadena-Deer Creek 40-15, Staples-Motley 35-8, Perham 29-13, Warroad 51-0, and Crookston 34-0 Friday.

At Fergus Falls last week, the Prowlers scored on their second play from scrimmage – a 39-yard run by Nick Drees.

Ten carries on a 75-yard Fergus Falls drive went to Brian Larrivy, who scored on a 3-yard second quarter run that was followed by a Luke Draxten kick for a 7-6 Otters lead.

A 35-yard run by Drees, a 13-yard Brad Bulger touchdown pass to Brian Loe, and a Drees conversion run put the Prowlers back on top 13-6.

On what Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm called the "biggest play of the game," Fergus Falls defensive back Justin Arneson fielded a Thief River Falls fumble and sprinted 59 yards for a touchdown in the final seconds of the first half.

The Prowlers managed to stuff the Otters on a two-point conversion attempt to retain a one-point edge at halftime, 14-13. But the damage had been done.

Larrivy, who was called upon to handle most of the Otters' ground game duties in the absence of two injured runningbacks (Chad Hopponen, David Karst), had carries of 11 and 18 yards during a 6-yard third quarter drive that ended with his 2-yard run and a 20-14 Fergus Falls lead.

It became a two-touchdown spread when Fergus Falls quarterback Ben Brimhall threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Tim Erickson before the third quarter closed.

Thief River Falls had a chance to cut into the scoreboard spread when a 56-yard run by Drees helped set up a first-and-goal opportunity with four minutes left. But the Prowlers' threat ended at the Fergus Falls 2-yard line.

"I thought we played well," said Mumm. "We played a great football team tough. We played with them toe-to-toe. But I'm still disappointed with the loss. We didn't make the plays we needed to make to win the game. We missed some tackles and we didn't make some blocks in critical situations. We played well, but you want to improve every game and play your best at playoff time, and I don't know if I can say we made a step forward in this one."

Drees had a strong night with 197 yards on 20 carries. Larrivy wound up with a 36-carry, 173-yard game for the 6-1 Otters.

Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes head into the final week of the season deadlocked atop the Section 8AAAA standings with 53 points each. If they both win tonight, the Otters will gain the top seed and a first round playoff bye because they are playing Class 5A Bemidji and the Lakers will meeting Class 4A Duluth Central.

In Section 8AAAA, you pick up 10 points for a win, or 2 points for a loss, against 5A opponents; 9 points for a win, or 1 point for a loss against 4A teams; 8 points for a win vs. 3A competition; and 7 points for a win over teams in Class 2A or below.

Tuesday's playoff openers will have the No. 7 seed at No. 2; No. 6 at No. 3; and No. 5 at No. 4. The Saturday, Oct. 30, semifinals will have the 4-5 winner at the No. 1 seed, and the 2-7 winner playing the 3-6 winner at the site of the higher seed. Championship game will be played Thursday, Nov. 4, at the Fargodome.

Dennis Nabben (right) of Thief River Falls and Dennis Rollheiser of Forest Lake formed a power boat racing team for one last time to compete in the Oct. 9-10 Grand Nationals in Jasper, TN.

Dennis Nabben makes last run

■ TRF power boat racer competes in Tennessee

by Mike Lundgren

It was a short season for Thief River Falls power boat racer Dennis Nabben, who competed for the first and only time this year at the Oct. 9-10 Grand Nationals in Jasper, TN.

Nabben won an American Power Boat Association national title and APBA high points championship in August 1998 at Independence, IA. He tried adding to his collection of honors at the World Championships that October, but wound up blowing an engine on his first run.

The frustrating end to a highly successful season was part of the motivation to climb back in the boat this fall after having sat out the entire 1999 racing season.

The World Championships were renamed the Grand Nationals this year, but unfortunately, the results were the same as engine trouble again sabotaged the efforts of Nabben and Dennis Rollheiser of Forest Lake, his crew chief.

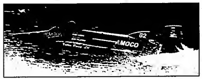
Nabben was racing against 26 other drivers for top honors in the 1400-pound modifieds, which ranks in the middle of six classes of competition based mostly on how much money you want to put into the sport – just a step below pro gas, and a couple of notches behind the unlimited class. The boats in his class were reaching 105 miles per hour for the quarter-mile drag races.

The field was pared through head-to-head competition in two divisions, with the top five boats qualifying for the finals.

Nabben advanced into the final round. But on his last qualifying run, the engine went south. "I felt it going earlier," he said, "and after the last race, I told Dennis we were done."

That ended a frantic scramble by Nabben and Rollheiser to even put a boat in the water in time for the event.

The boat sat in the driveway of Nabben's Thief River Falls home all summer. The motor was not repaired after the final 1998 race. Cost of competing and the distances involved just to reach a race site, kept the boat in drydock. A power boat racing schedule that used to include stops in Minnesota and Iowa now doesn't cross the Mason-Dixon Line. To race, Nabben would have to drive from the northwest corner of Minnesota to sites in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, and Texas.



Competing in the Grand Nationals in Jasper, TN, Thief River Falls power boat racer Dennis Nabben was in the 100 mile-per-hour range on the quarter-mile drag course during the Oct. 9-10 event that closed out his 7 1/2-year racing career.

However, Nabben admitted the urge to compete never left him. And with a little prodding from Rollheiser, his long-time racing cohort, they decided to give it another shot this fall.

But getting back into racing was not an easy task. The motor had to be rebuilt, a project undertaken by a St. Louis, MO manufacturer at a cost of nearly $1,700. And delays in the process, meant a last-minute scramble to put the package together.

"We didn't know until Tuesday if it would be done in time," said Nabben, who left town Wednesday at 4 p.m. and did an all-nighter to reach St. Louis the next day. They installed the motor, tested it briefly, then took off for Tennessee.

The hurried job by the manufacturer might well have played a role in the engine's malfunction, according to Nabben.

However, he was quick to praise the help supplied by the Mercury Support Van at the race site. That crew went out of its way to take care of an o-ring problem that threatened to keep him out of the event all together. "They were great," said Nabben. "They didn't have to do it. We don't even run Mercury, so in essence, we were the competition. But they still went out of their way to help us – at no charge. It's people like that who make racing special."

Despite the failure to complete the mission, Nabben did not regret the undertaking. "The 27 best boats in the nation were there, and even though we didn't finish, we still ended up tenth. We had some fantastic runs."

The trip ended his 7 1/2-year racing career, said Nabben. That fact was made official since he didn't come back with a boat. One of the reasons for going to Tennessee was the opportunity to put his rig up for sale. It's unlikely an add in the Thief River Falls Times classified section would have produced many buyers. But at the race site, a $14,000 offer was received and accepted. That didn't come close to covering the $40,000 Nabben estimated he had invested in the boat and motor that he has raced the past four years. But it was within his price range.

"It worked out okay," said Nabben. "We're disappointed we didn't finish, but if we would not have gone down there, we would not have sold the boat, and that was one of our objectives. It (racing) will definitely be missed, but there comes a point where you have to make a decision to move on, and we did."

Nabben ended by expressing gratitude to several people who were instrumental in getting him up and running one last time through financial or technical support, including Rick Kezar (Arctic Cat Generators), Tom Greelis (Family Bowl) and Sheldon Peterson (Sheldon's Auto Parts) of Thief River Falls, and Steve Ballard (Hammerhead Graphics) of Clearbrook.

Lundeen's serving sparks RLCC past Bears in 3-0 match

A strong performance at the serving line by senior Kelsey Lundeen played a major role in a 15-1, 15-11, 15-8 Red Lake County Central win over host Clearbrook-Gonvick Monday in the Mustangs' final 1999 regular season high school volleyball match.

With the Bears ahead 11-5 in Game 2, Lundeen took over with 10 straight service points, including two aces. She finished the night with 24 points at the line and nine aces. The winners missed just three of 96 serves during the match.

A balanced Red Lake County Central attack featured Heather Schiefert with 10 kills, Lundeen 8, Amanda Spong 7, and Sylvia Hilgeman 6.

"They (Bears) have some really good blockers," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray, "but we did a good job covering and picking those blocks up."

Red Lake County Central setter Emily Brustad finished with 28 assists.

The Mustangs will take a 19-6 record into post-season play.

Gators handle Fort Frances

David Truscinski ran for two touchdowns and threw for two more Friday as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River won a 35-12 high school football meeting with Fort Frances, ON.

The Gators limited the visitors to 15 yards worth of first half offense while building a 29-0 intermission lead.

"We really played well in the first half," noted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "Our starters didn't play a whole lot in the second half. We got to play a lot of kids."

David Truscinski scored on runs of 7 and 57 yards. He threw touchdown passes to Kurt Truscinski and Ian Rinde covering 37 and 22 yards, respectively. Kagen Wange added a 23-yard touchdown run for the winners, who improved their record to 3-4 heading into the 1999 regular season finale tonight (Wednesday) against Warren-Alvarado-Oslo in Middle River.

Fort Frances didn't get on the scoreboard until the final moments of the game with a touchdown/onside kick/touchdown combination.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River finished with 276 yards on 44 rushing attempts, led by David Truscinski with 5 carries for 84 yards, Wange 14 carries for 82 yards, and Josh Smith 9 carries for 74 yards.

David Truscinski was 7-for-12 passing for 115 yards. Smith caught three passes for 50 yards.

Kasey Scharf stood out at defensive end, according to Neibauer, and David Truscinski complemented his offensive exploits with a pair of interceptions in the Gators' defensive backfield.

It was a solid effort, but still not perfect, pointed out Neibauer, who watched the Gators lose a 30-yard touchdown run and an 80-yard touchdown pass to penalties. "We can't be making those kind of mistakes in the playoffs," he warned.

Marshall Co. Central is 3-0 winner over Ponies

Marshall County Central made hard work out of a 3-0 high school volleyball sweep over host Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Monday.

The Nordics had a 9-1 first-game lead, a 9-3 second-game edge, and a 12-2 third-game head start, but won by only 15-12, 15-11, 17-15 margins.

"We've got to learn to finish off an opponent," said Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We played well, but we made it tougher than it had to be."

Emily Kragness played a solid match, said Jorgenson, in helping to keep offensive pressure on the Ponies.

The win, coupled with a 5-11, 15-5, 15-9 Friday victory over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, improved the Nordics' record to 17-6 heading into a regular season finale against Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Tuesday.

Mandi Blawat played well in the win over the Wolverines, pointed out Jorgenson. Her well-placed hits kept the Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke defense off-balance most of the night.

The Nordics lost the services of Tera Davidson, one of their top hitters, to an ankle injury in the final moments of the Monday match at Warren.

Chelsea Haviland is champion in diving at UND Invitational

In a match-up of defending state champions, Chelsea Haviland of Thief River Falls out-pointed Cristi Lindsey of Bismarck Century to win the diving portion of Saturday's University of North Dakota Invitational girls high school swim meet.

Haviland, who won the 1998 Minnesota Class A state diving title, collected 450.65 points. Lindsey, last year's North Dakota state champion, finished with 412.20 points.

The only other top-six place finishes for the Prowlers against a large field of mostly North Dakota teams included a fifth by Haviland with a 2:20.25 in the 200 individual medley and a sixth by the 200 freestyle relay team of Cami Hendrickson, Kristin Naplin, Andi Sorvig, and Haviland in 1:49.72.

"It was a huge meet – like the North Dakota state championship," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Mary Helen Houfihan. "We did pretty well, especially considering the fact we were coming off a hard workout in practice Friday. It was a good meet for us."

Thief River Falls will host Warroad Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in the Prowlers' final 1999 home appearance at the Franklin Middle School pool. Warroad had an impressive fourth place finish in Saturday's 18-team event.

Wolverines are swept by Bears, Nordics 3-0

Back-to-back 3-0 high school volleyball losses to Lake of the Woods and Marshall County Central has created some concern for Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz.

"We're not clicking right now," admitted Schulz. "I thought we would have played better, but we're not."

Lake of the Woods defeated Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 15-6, 15-6, 15-5 Thursday. Marshall County Central swept the Wolverines 15-11, 15-5, 15-9 Friday.

The two losses dropped Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke to 10-13 heading into a Tuesday regular season finale Tuesday at Kittson County North.

Keli Weterworth received a Fosston serve and passed the ball to a Thief River Falls teammate during Thursday's high school volleyball match in the Lincoln gym. Katy Hook looked on. The Greyhounds beat the Prowlers 3-0.

Knights edge Mustangs 21-20

A 3-for-3 night in the extra-point department by foreign exchange student Giovanni Quattrin spelled the difference Friday as Climax/Fisher edged Red Lake County Central 21-20 in high school football at Plummer.

It was a battle for the No. 2 seed in the upcoming Nine-Man Section 7 playoffs. The Mustangs took a 4-3 record into their final 1999 regular season game Tuesday at Win-E-Mac.

Climax/Fisher began the game with a 14-0 lead on a quick score by Byron Peterson, and after stopping a Red Lake County Central drive, a short run by Darrin Hollands.

"We started a little slow," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Our defense stepped up after that. It was a hard-hitting, physical game. A beautiful night for football; I'm sure the fans enjoyed it."

The early 14-0 scoreboard spread stood up until the third quarter when Red Lake County Central got back in the game with two long kick returns by Andy Gustafson, who went 95 yards with the second half kickoff and a few minutes later fielded a punt and went 62 yards.

A 5-yard run by Matt Hruby capped a drive with 2:20 left in the third quarter to put the Mustangs up 20-14. But the officials ruled the Mustangs were just short of the goal line on the key conversion run – a play that would later cost them.

Midway through the final quarter Peterson caught a game-tying touchdown pass from Nick Beiswenger, and Quattrin added the kick for the win.

Climax/Fisher limited Red Lake County Central to 129 rushing. Gustafson led the way with 49 yards on 8 carries, while Hruby had 40 yards on 6 attempts.

Hruby wound up playing quarterback for the Mustangs when season-long starter Carl Dugstad developed a shoulder problem late in the week. The new signal caller, who is normally a runningback, was 1-for-4 passing for 30 yards. "Matt did a good job, but he just didn't have enough time to get everything in," explained Brantl.

Defensively the Mustangs were led by Hruby with 6 tackles, 14 assisted stops and a fumble recovery; Wade Westlake, 6 tackles, 6 assists; Chris Nelson, 2 tackles, 12 assists; Chris Lessard, 4 tackles, 6 assists; Adam Koralewski, 4 tackles; 5 assists; and Brent Nelson, 3 tackles, 9 assists and a fumble recovery.

Providence College rally overtakes Northland 3-2

Providence College came back from a 2-0 deficit to beat Northland Community and Technical College 7-15, 11-15, 15-5, 15-7, 15-13 Friday in a volleyball match played at Otterburne, MB.

"We played well," said Northland Mike Zachow, "but they (Providence) really picked it up after the first two games. It was a good match."

An overflow crowd that Zachow estimated to be over 400 fans packed the small gymnasium and provided an enthusiastic response to play on both sides of the net. "The crowd was huge, and they cheered for good plays on both sides," he explained. "It was a lot of fun. I'm looking forward to going back up there to play basketball."

Zachow coaches the Northland women's basketball team that will open its 1999 season in Otterburne, located on Highway 59, some 40 miles across the U.S./Canada border. "We go to a different country for our shortest trip of the season," quipped Zachow.

It was the second meeting of the year between the two teams, with Providence winning a 2-0 match in Northland's Oct. 9 Pepsi Triangular.

Contributing. On October 19 at 2:27 a.m. an officer stopped to check a vehicle in the Lincoln High School parking lot. As a result, 18-year-old Ricky Ray Boutain, Thief River Falls, was cited for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. A 13-year-old male faces a charge for curfew violation.

Consumption under age. On October 18 at 10:46 p.m. police received a complaint of loud music in Riverview trailer court. The following were cited for consumption under age: Paul John Kazmierczak, 20, Strandquist; Chad Steven Kasprowicz, 20, Stephen; Alex Rodney Anderson, 19, Thief River Falls; Jim Thomas Rogus, 19, Strandquist; Darren Pat Szczepanski, 19, Thief River Falls; and Mathew Thomas Kasprowicz, 19, Thief River Falls.

Accidents. On October 19 at 7:56 a.m. police received a report of an accident at First and Horace. Tammy Jane Audette, Thief River Falls, was driving a car west on First Street and a car driven by Aleesha Ann Brown, Thief River Falls, entered the intersection traveling south on Horace. Brown thought Audette was going to turn. The vehicles collided. Police estimated damages at $1,000 to the Audette vehicle, and $100 t the Brown vehicle.

On October 18 at 12:23 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Third and Main. Ludwig John Stusynski, Strandquist was driving a car west on Third Street and was unable to stop in time for a vehicle stopping in front of him and being driven by Jessica Leeann Loe, Thief River Falls. Police estimated damages at $700 to the Stusynski vehicle, and $1,000 to the Loe vehicle. A passenger in the Loe vehicle complained of a sore neck and shoulder. Loe complained of a sore back.

On October 15 at 11:45 a.m. police received a report of an accident at Fourth and Knight. Nicholas Henri Boucher, Brooks, was driving a pickup south on Knight when a car driven by Carol Ann Klamar, Gatzke, entered the intersection at Fourth Street traveling west. Christopher Dale Fontaine, 19, Grand Forks, was cited for consumption under age, and was picked up on a warrant for failure to appear in Red Lake county on a charge of consumption under age. Jesse Lyn Fortune, 19, Minneapolis, was cited for consumption under age.

Assault. On October 15 at 4:22 p.m. numerous reports were filed with the law enforcement center about an individual beating up a woman in a parking lot south of Thief River Falls. The man allegedly ripped the glasses off the woman who was driving a vehicle and threw them out of the vehicle. The vehicle stopped and an argument ensued during which the man allegedly swung at the woman and kicked at the steering wheel so hard that it broke off. Rodney Melvin Nissan, 37, Thief River Falls, was cited for fifth degree assault and possession of a small amount of marijuana.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

typing, researching, copying and putting the plan together.

Another impetus for creating the plan had to be the numerous emergencies experienced by residents in the past few years. Those emergencies included blizzards, ice storms, and power outages which resulted in the use of shelters, and cooperation and interaction of many different emergency response and law enforcement personnel for one specific reason. The emergency training exercise held this summer with CP Rail was really a test of the plan as well. Fortunately, it was also in place when a real fuel oil spill occurred about three weeks after the drill.

Once the changes and corrections have been made, the plan will be given to city officers and dispatchers at the law enforcement center, Northwest Medical Center and local industry that have emergency management plans of their own, like Digi-Key and Arctic Cat. Members of the public who might be interested in reviewing the plan will be able to do so, once it is complete, at the Thief River Falls Public Library, City Hall, or Pennington County Law Enforcement Center.

The plan was not meant to be static, or unchanging. Chief Froschheiser said it will be updated on a yearly basis.

are at the top of their pay scale, and state-qualified journeymen, but not able to perform the work without someone signing off on it? What does it take for the journeymen to be competent to do the work on their own, he demanded.

(The line sub-foreman, and the two journeymen-line workers are at the top of their pay scale: $19.97 per hour for the sub-foreman, and $18.47 per hour for the journeymen-lineworker.)

Other council representatives expressed the concern that granting overtime pay to a MAPS employee would set a precedent and they would be seeing more MAPS employees asking for overtime pay. (MAPS employees include superintendents and division leaders.)

Narlock attempted to explain that rules allow that while a person can be qualified on high voltage, according to the state, it doesn't mean they are competent according to Arlo or himself.

When pressed about the standards the journeymen need to be "competent", Narlock said there are no standards.

This was unsatisfactory to the city's attorney Paul Ihle who said there have to be identifiable standard, or "we'll get murdered on the stand. You just can't say I know it when I see it."

Mayor Borsheim said he wanted to know what it's going to take to get these people certified, and said he thought it was absurd that it's so vogue.

Getting back to the issue of awarding additional compensation to Narlock was difficult, but in the end, the council approved the recommendation by a vote of three against, four in favor, and with the Mayor abstaining. (The Mayor is a city utilities department employee.)

The next motion approved by the council was a request to have the utilities committee come up with a list of identifiable factors which would result in the journeymen-lineworkers becoming certified as competent to work on high-voltage lines.

The council approved a recommendation approving a contract for private development in the tax increment finance district located in the area of the former Knox elementary school. The contract sets forth the conditions needed to be met by the contractors planning to construct six homes in the area, and the city's obligations.

The council approved a contract for building official services with E-GADS out of Bemidji until the city could hire a building official. The city is currently interviewing individuals for the position and the contract with E-GADS is seen only as temporary.

The council approved a recommendation to purchase a 1994 Chevy S-10 pickup for the police department (dog catcher) from Anderson Brothers.

The council approved hiring Ryan Rude to fill the vacant sanitation workers position (part-time).

The council approved a recommendation to post the public works maintenance-custodian position (new) for the internal transfer process under the Teamster Contract.

The Council approved a recommendation to amend the MMUA and General City Drug and Alcohol plans with the revised "Post Accident Testing Process".

The Council approved a recommendation calling for a public hearing on Northwest Medical Center's plan to buy out the 1997 medical office general obligation bonds and renovate the existing facility using limited obligation revenue bonds.

The Council went on record supporting the Pennington County Board's position in their negotiations with SwisPennCo.

The following items were approved from the Consent Agenda: approved a salary progression raise for Kent LeMoine; approved a final pay request of $25,982.62 for Park Construction Company for the Wastewater Treatment Pond Improvement Project; approved a progression raise for Sean Huset; approved a salary progression raise for Carl Kezar; approved a revised job description and DBM evaluation for the payroll/secretary's position; approved a new job description and DBM evaluation for the community development secretary position; approved submitting the city's unclaimed checks to the State of Minnesota and removing them from the city's accounting system; approved a proclamation declaring the week of October 25-29 to be Minnesota Manufacturer's week; approved a tax rate increase for the 1999 tax levy, collectible in 2000.

Two burned in Oklee fire Friday

Daniel Smith and a son were taken by ambulance to Northwest Medical Center where they were treated for burns following a fire at a mobile home in Oklee on Friday. They were later released from the hospital.

Red Lake County Sheriff's department received a report of the fire at 218 Bourden Street in Oklee at 9:16 p.m. on Friday, October 15. The sheriff's department, Oklee Fire department, Oklee Ambulance Service, Plummer Fire Department and Plummer First Responders all responded to the call.

Playground equipment at Lion's Park

Director, said she was very pleased with the improvements and found it very satisfying to see so many people volunteer their time for a park, which will be enjoyed by many children.

Vigen said the children getting off the bus were just amazed at what had taken place at the park in just one day. One child noted that where there had been boxes that morning, there were swing sets that afternoon.

Vigen said volunteers completed the playground at about 6 p.m., but asks that the equipment not be used for a week so that they can get the pea-rock and the cement to cure.

For Regan Rohl, who was president of the Lion's Club a couple of years ago when the idea of improving the park was suggested, it was particularly gratifying to see something start as an idea and become a reality.

Rohl said he was very pleased with how the city and 14 corporate sponsors came together in a cooperative effort to improve the park. Rohl said Ron Lindberg and Madelyn Vigen were instrumental in coordinating everything and deserve to be complemented.

Rohl said they are still looking for funds to complete the last elements of the project. He said the balance of the work won't be completed until next spring.

The THE TIMES SECOND FRONT

Volume 88, Number 42 Wednesday, October 20, 1999

Students, faculty and staff turned out for an impromptu pep rally for the Northland Community and Technical College Pioneers who left Thursday in pursuit of the northern division title.

Freedom to Farm bill gets low marks in state survey

Over 97 percent of people responding to a recent survey said changes are needed in current farm policy, says Kent Thiesse, extension educator with the Association of Minnesota Counties and the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

However, there is considerable variation as to what the changes should be, Thiesse says. Survey participants were also asked to give the current "Freedom To Farm" policy a letter grade.

Results were A, 3 percent; B, 8 percent; C, 21 percent; D, 21 percent; and F, 48 percent.

The University of Minnesota Extension Service developed a summary of the seven-year "Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act" (FAIR) or the so-called "Freedom To Farm" government farm program. This information was distributed to farmers, agri-business professionals, and local leaders during August 1999.

It was primarily distributed during FARMFEST, the Rural Summit, and the statewide Citizens' Forums. It was also published in several media outlets and sent out to all county Extension offices in Minnesota.

Over 300 farmers and other leaders, mostly from Minnesota, responded to the survey, which listed potential revisions to the current Federal Farm Bill. Thiesse says the most popular revisions were raising commodity loan rates, re-establishing the "farmer-owned reserve" program, and allowing USDA to require "set-aside" acreage in return for program participation.

Over 70 percent of the survey respondents would like to see consideration given to expanding CRP acreage nationally. Thiesse says a very large percentage also supported quick passage of emergency farm assistance to help farmers through the current economic crisis.

Nearly 70 percent of the farmers and others who responded to the survey wanted to see revisions in federal crop insurance programs, with a strong showing of support for "revenue assurance" type insurance programs. About half wanted to review foreign trade agreements, increase foreign food aid programs, have incentive programs for development of "value-added" ventures and require mandatory price reporting for livestock.

An emergency aid package for farmers is currently being finalized in Washington. This package will likely provide some much needed cash income to farmers this fall to help with cash flow needs, Thiesse says.

However, Thiesse says most farmers, agricultural leaders, and political officials recognize that this emergency aid provides only partial and temporary relief and does not address the on-going negative cash flow situations that crop and livestock producers are experiencing. This (1999) is the second year in a row that Congress has passed significant emergency farm legislation to help farm operators cope with low commodity prices and to provide assistance to areas of the country affected by natural disasters.

Some political leaders agree with the survey respondents that changes are needed in the current Farm Bill and other federal agricultural policies. Again, there is considerable variation on the types of changes needed in the "Freedom To Farm" program, if changes are needed at all.

"This issue is likely to get considerable discussion by Congress, USDA and other national agriculture leaders in the next few months," Thiesse says. Many leaders have also pointed out that we need to go beyond just farm policy and look at "rural policy."

This philosophy aligns closely with goals of the Rural Response Coalition, which includes the Association of Minnesota Counties, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, the Minnesota Bankers Association, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and College of Agriculture, Food, and Environmental Sciences.

"One of the criticisms that we hear from political leaders in Washington and St. Paul is that farmers and agricultural organizations can never agree on what is needed for agriculture and rural policy," Thiesse says. "Many feel that there is more of a 'me' approach than a 'we' approach to policy suggestions by many individuals and groups. While this may have been true in the past, there seems to be more of a cooperative spirit among many farm organizations and other agriculture groups than in recent years."

"Many counties had good community discussion groups in conjunction with the 'Citizen Forum' series this past summer. Communities should look for opportunities to bring area leaders together to continue discussions on critical local issues and to look at potential federal and state policies that may offer some longer term solutions.

"Local officials, agricultural professionals, and other local leaders need to work together to develop the best strategies to involve local residents in these discussions."

Go Big Blue! Students, staff and faculty of Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls, turned out Thursday afternoon to support their football team, as The Pioneers; left Thief River Falls in pursuit of the northern division title.

Foundation at NCTC sells bricks for wall

On Wednesday, October 6, the St. Hilaire Lions Club became the first organization to purchase a brick in the Northland Community and Technical College Foundation wall. The brick will be imprinted with the organization's name and placed in the new student commons area that will be completed in the summer of 2000.

The proceeds from selling the personalized bricks, will go towards student scholarships at Northland Community and Technical College. Each brick is $50 and can be purchased as a memorial, birthday or graduation gift. Each brick can be imprinted with your name, graduation date, "In memory of --", or the name of an organization or business. This is a great way for individuals, organizations and businesses to show their commitment to NCTC and at the same time provide scholarships to students.

If anyone in the community is interested in purchasing a brick or donating to the NCTC Foundation please contact Josh Christianson, executive director of NCTC Foundation at 218-681-0751.

The weather in northwest Minnesota gave us all a chance this week to get in the last of the fields and gardens. The beet harvest is still going in high gear but with this nice weather they could finish this week.

At Morris and Hazel Anderson's farm, a flock of sandhill cranes were in the cornfield near the buildings and on Saturday when I was there, they were making so much noise with their loud rattle that it could drown out conversations outdoors. These birds are huge and so many that they might take offense if you came near them.

The Senior ladies met on Thursday with Barbara Brelf as a guest. Delphine Brelf served the lunch and Elphie Adlis won the door prize. These ladies are busy and keep a lot of things to sell for gifts. Elphie told me that her quadriplegic niece has returned home after the hurricane was over and now she is going to school for her master's degree in religion and psychiatry. That takes spunk and she is to be congratulated for her attitude.

Bob, Pat, Dionna, Tylor and Cassie Lindstrom, Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom, and Ted and Lorie Johnson of Osage and children Jaimie, Alissa and Andy attended the wedding on Saturday, October 2, of Nathan Lindstrom and Jodi Hayes at Northwestern College Chapel in Roseville. The reception was at the Grand in Stillwater. Morris and Marcelyn were guests from Sunday until Tuesday at the Ted and Lori Johnson home at Osage.

Hazel Anderson arrived home after a stay in Grand Forks. All their children were home for Sunday to do up the fall gardening like bedding down Hazel's perennials and digging up those which have to be stored and planted again in the spring. Chana Clark, who lives in Fargo went to Montana and her mother, Dorothy Chaffee of Wibaux, MT, came back with her to stay with Hazel for a spell. Other children were Jim and Cindy Woltarlund of Grand Forks, Paul, Kristopher and Kenny Anderson, and Kathy, Josh, Jared and Alissa Britten. When you get that group of workaholics together they can turn out a month's work in a day. Now Hazel can just relax and take it easy.

A couple of weeks ago, after a long spell where the hummingbird feeder became empty every day, the birds disappeared and the feeder remained full. Roy was certain that they had hitchhiked on the geese and were now in sunny Mexico, or at least in the sunny south. So he took the feeder in before the stuff would freeze and break. Today there was one who was hunting for the food and came back several times to the old spot and finally gave up. The geese that have been leaving are all going west from here toward the freeway. This almost verifies that they use the freeway for a flying lane and after that experience we had a couple of springs ago when we met a flock coming north when we were going south, I hope to outdrive them or stay far enough behind them.

Greetings
I have some news from my office I want to share with you.

Name Change
In February 1999, Midwest Vision Center changed its name to Vista Optical. In addition to changing our name, we added over 300 new frames to our current frame inventory. This will provide you with over 700 frames to choose from.

A Personal Note
My office at Vista Optical is my personal optometry practice, which means I work both independently and in harmony with the store. Please contact my office at (218) 681-5606 with any concerns you might have. Since this is my full-time practice, it is important to me that your vision needs be met and we have a continuing relationship over many years.

The most important thing you can do to preserve your eyesight is to visit your optometrist for regular checkups. Like the rest of your body, your eyes will change gradually as you age. However, unlike the rest of your body, your eyes rarely hurt if something is wrong. I will advise you when it's time to be re-examined.

See You Soon

Organ Donation Support up, among highest in nation

by John Wingate
spokesman for LifeSource

Support for organ and tissue donation in the upper Midwest is among the highest in the nation, according to the latest year-to-date figures. Two-thirds of families in the region who were offered the option of donation after a loved one died said "Yes." Nationally, about 40 percent of families give permission for donation.

Despite this strong regional support for organ donation, the donation rate is down slightly compared to the record increase seen during the same time one year ago, according to LifeSource, the non-profit, federally-designated organ donation organization for Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and western Wisconsin.

"While there is a normal ebb and flow to the donation rate, any regional decrease is always a concern because the waiting list for lifesaving organs grows 15 percent year year," said Susan Gunderson, LifeSource Chief Executive Officer.

LifeSource is asking individuals to consider organ donation and to discuss their wishes with loved ones. This is important because family permission is required for organ and tissue donation to take place.

"The family has complete control, deciding if organ and tissue donation will take place, and if so, which organs and tissues will be donated," said Gunderson.

Many families have not discussed individual organ donation wishes. As a result, opportunities to save the lives of others may be lost. "Discussing this issue in advance, makes it much easier for the family to make this important decision and carry out their loved ones wishes at a difficult time," Gunderson added.

Many people believe that having the donor designation on the driver's license is adequate but it is not. The license is a good indicator of one's wishes but it does not qualify as legal consent for donation. Only the family can provide that.

Currently, more than 65,000 Americans are waiting for organ transplants; more than 1,600 of them live in the LifeSource region which comprises Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and portions of western Wisconsin.

So far this year, 107 people in the Upper Midwest have become organ donors, extending the gift of life to nearly 400 men, women and children. During 1998, an unprecedented 174 donors extended the gift of life to approximately 600 people.

Myths and Misconceptions

Numerous myths and misconceptions about organ donation often cause individuals to delay making a personal commitment about becoming a donor.

Recently, Americans were surprised to learn that a human kidney had been offered for sale on an internet auction site. Was the story true? Is it possible for someone to sell their own kidney to the highest bidder?

The answer, of course, is no. It is against federal law to buy or sell human organs. The Internet organ auction was a prank.

Unfortunately, the auction story may have needlessly raised questions in some peoples' minds about the integrity of the donation and transplant process, causing them to delay making a personal commitment about becoming a donor.

Elsewhere, an urban myth about stolen kidneys continues to make the rounds. Recently, employees of a major corporation received a memo warning them about the "kidney heist."

Here's how the story goes. A business traveler is heavily drugged at a hotel, awakening several hours later in a bathtub full of ice. A note instructs them to call 911 because one of their kidneys has been removed for "black market" transplant. The setting for this scenario is often a popular business or tourist destination such as New Orleans or Las Vegas. This "urban myth" has caused the organ donation and transplantation community more than a few headaches in recent years by feeding unfounded fears and misunderstandings about the organ donation process.

Of course, there is absolutely no evidence of organ theft activity ever occurring in the United States. It is illegal to sell organs in the U.S. and the sophistication of the nation's donation-transplantation network makes it impossible for a "rogue" organ to make its way into the system.

The recovery of organs is a highly-refined, technically-challenging surgical procedure that must be performed in a hospital by skilled physicians, nurses and other specialists. While fantastic "urban myths" may offer sensational material for gripping storytelling, they do great harm to our society's lifesaving organ donation and transplantation process supported by 92 percent of people in the Upper Midwest.

It's not society's fault

(Editor's note: The following editorial by Paul Jacob, national director of U.S. Term Limits in Washington, D.C., makes some good points about individual responsibility and the gun violence that has received so much media attention. I tend to agree with much of what he says, particularly in regards to the need to accept and assess responsibility for actions taken by an individual.)

Another horrible shooting spree leaves more people dead and injured, this time in a church in Ft. Worth, TX. What can we do to stop these acts of violence?

First, we should stop blaming ourselves. A headline in my newspaper screams, "America the Violent." But this is not America's fault. It's too easy to blame society. You and I are part of society. I'm not to blame for these shootings — and I don't think you are either.

Stop blaming guns. People throw around the phrase "gun violence" as if no people are involved in these brutal acts, just guns. Politicians are certainly ready to play politics with it all. My state representative recently sent out a letter saying, "I voted for no guns at school." This is truly absurd. Did some legislators actually vote to put guns in schools? Of course not.

When it comes to politicians, I admit I'm usually tempted to blame them. Politicians seem to do their darndest to screw up an awful lot of things. But these shootings are not the fault of politicians. In fact, most analysts agree that none of the gun laws or other measures being emotionally debated in Congress would have prevented any of these terrible killings.

Nonetheless, no one in Washington dares admit that our government is not to blame for the problem. Don't misunderstand: it's not that our political leaders truly accept responsibility. Rather, because the underlying premise in Washington life is that the Capitol's elite holds the answer to every single problem afflicting mankind; our modern-day witch doctors must indeed legislate on any issue that detracts from their perceived utopia.

But the simple truth is that all of life's answers cannot be found in Washington.

Stop blaming the media and video games and movies. I find much of today's entertainment to be morally void, if not patently offensive. But none of it has the power to put a gun in a person's hand and pull the trigger for him.

The Ft. Worth minister spoke of not allowing the forces of evil to overwhelm the forces of light. The spectacle of murder and mayhem at schools and churches certainly captures the public's attention. While it's depressing to most of us, these murderers seem to feed off that enormous publicity. Not measuring up in life, they become world famous in death.

The massive media coverage allows these tormented souls to in effect spew their hatred at the whole world. It's even more perverse that in this scenario the world would respond by wringing its collective hands and seeming to blame the innocent for what the guilty have done.

Decreasing the media circus may stop some of the demented copycats. And the news media already appears to be scaling back their coverage. We can help TV scale back by unilaterally turning off such coverage. But again, we must not mistakenly place blame on those who watch the coverage.

Who then should we blame? The killers. That's where the moral responsibility lies. They're the ones that did it. It's sad that we need to be reminded of this.

The idea that society is somehow to blame when individuals do wrong has consequences. If society is at fault, then individual behavior will deteriorate as the social leverage against bad behavior decreases.

The hallmark of a civilized society is individual responsibility. When we blame others for what criminals do, we send the wrong signal. It's not society's fault. Let's teach our kids that every individual is responsible for his or her own actions, whether the actions are good or bad.

American Red Cross volunteer

Fifty years ago the American Red Cross had a chapter in Pennington county. Since then the cost of maintaining individual county chapters has been prohibitive and many of these former organizations have merged into multi-county units or, in some cases, closed down. Today the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall and Pennington are covered by the Beltrami County chapter of the American Red Cross in Bemidji. The counties of Red Lake and Polk are covered by the Red River Valley chapter office in East Grand Forks.

George Stowe, executive director of the Beltrami County chapter, is making plans to expand services in this part of the state by trying to organize Disaster Assistance Teams (DATs) in several parts of the region. Ideally he says that there should be four teams, each consisting of a Health Services professional (usually a nurse), a Damage Assessment person, a Family Services case worker, and a Mental Health professional, on call in four different locations, including Bemidji, Marshall/Kittson counties, Lake of the Woods/Roseau counties and probably in Thief River Falls. These trained volunteers would be the first to react to disasters such as single family house fires as well as assessing needs in larger disasters. If needed, the DAT members would call Bemidji to request Mass Care items, such as cots, blankets or food, in the event of a large fire, tornado, flood or other major disaster.

Anyone wishing to sign up for training and become a volunteer for the American Red Cross may call 1-800-969-7798. Training may be provided locally for groups of six or more people. In some cases, an individual may also be included in a training event in East Grand Forks, since the two chapters work together. Mr. Stowe has also indicated that he is interested in speaking to local groups on behalf of the American Red Cross.

The same training one receives to become part of the local DAT is also the basis of signing up for working in the Disaster Services Human Resources system and agreeing to travel to other United States disasters with the American Red Cross, such as my recent trip to Philadelphia to assist with flood recovery of victims of Hurricane Floyd.

If you wish to assist the American Red Cross with help for those affected by the recent East Coast hurricanes and other disasters, you may send a donation to: The American Red Cross, Beltrami County Chapter, 310 Fourth St. NW, Bemidji, MN 56601 or call 1-800-HELP-NOW. If you send a check and write "Disaster Relief" on the memo line, the money will be used only for food, clothing and accommodations, etc. for national disaster victims and clean-up kits for their homes. If you wish the use of your donation to be restricted to smaller disasters in the local area, please indicate that on the check's memo line.

Stanley Ranum Awarded Contract For Addition To Eagles Aerie Home

"At a special meeting held Wednesday evening, the local Eagles aerie voted to accept the low general construction bid of $56,248.50 which was submitted by Stanley Ranum of Thief River Falls, covering the addition to be built on the Eagles building.

"This added construction will be 44 x 85 feet, with full basement, to follow along the lines of the present structure, a one-story building, the walls to be of cinder block, building brick and stuccoed exterior."

Elks Lodge Lets Remodeling Job

"The board of trustees of the Elks lodge last Wednesday evening awarded the contract for remodeling the second floor of the Elks building to Erickson, Solheim and Ness, local contractors. The work involves the enlargement of the lodge rooms to accommodate the present membership of 450. This will be made possible by moving the offices south of the present lodge rooms to a new location in the east end of the building, where the present large waiting room will be eliminated.

"Bids on furnishings for the enlarged quarters will be opened this evening, it was announced by George W. Werstlein, exalted ruler."

Council Acts To Raise Salaries Of Mayor And Aldermen Next Year

"Having in mind the increasing duties and responsibilities associated with conducting municipal affairs, the city council took action at an adjourned session last night to vote a salary increase to the mayor and council members to take effect when the new city administration takes over next January. The action means that the officials will draw $40 per month instead of $25 per month as at present."

Area Trade School Plans Taking Shape

"Superintendent W. G. Claffy last Friday received word from Harry Schmid, state director of vocational training, that the department had formally approved the application of the local board of education for designating Thief River Falls as the site of an area vocational school to serve students in northwestern Minnesota counties.

"Arrangements are being completed, it was announced, whereby former servicemen may qualify under the GI Bill to receive financial aid while attending the school here. Eligible to attend free are young men and women ages 16 to 21, while older students will be required to pay a tuition fee."

From The Upper Falls

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher • October 19, 1899

FOR THE GOOD OF THE CITY

[Following is a response to a letter printed in the Thief River Falls Press (the rival newspaper to the Thief River Falls News here in 1899). The sections in bold print are quotes from the Press used in the News article, whose full account of the debate, on whether the present city council should be re-elected, is shown here.]

"Let us work for our city and not for the politician.

"We delight to get after such a man as Mr. A. Citizen, who breaks forth under the above head in last week's issue of the Press. It's so easy. To the pious statement which heads the article we say Amen. But let us analyze his words.

"No reasonable man wants an alderman to do the work which falls to his lot for less."

"But in the majority of the cities of this state the councilmen serve for the good of the city and not for $25 per annum. It must indeed by a 'hungry politician' or bankrupt who makes a $25 salary a political issue when the good of the city is at stake.

"Without the city attorney there would be no restraint upon the criminal classes."

"And yet the city attorney so tangled up his last case, a simple case of assault, that he had to send for the county attorney to help him out, and it is usually so.

"Under the present administration the city has improved as never before."

"A big manufacturing plant has located here, unsolicited by the city council and brought us men and money, the administration calmly claims all the credit. It's too funny to discuss.

"Without any increase of our taxes or municipal indebtedness."

"But the tax rate is very high at present, and no substantial improvements have been made during the past year. Four thousand dollars is collected from saloon licenses alone and, adding to this the amount collected from taxes on real estate, taxes on personal property and other licenses, fines etc., it makes a very respectable sum each year. Enough surely to keep the streets in the present condition and pay the city officials without increasing the 'tax rate or municipal indebtedness.'

"The city authorities and the managers of the great lumber manufacturing establishment are getting along without any trouble."

"Good idea. We suppose the administration is entitled to great praise for not trying to drive the lumber company out of town. Most any old council would know enough to let alone a concern which is the making of the city and asks no favors.

"Why should we seek to change the present pleasant relations?"

"Now we are getting down to the root of the matter. 'All we want is to be let alone' is their cry. They don't want to change the 'present pleasant relations.' Having a good time, thank you, running things to suit themselves and $25 per annum helps some when a man is broke. It is the old wail of the mossback, 'Don't disturb us, we are having 'pleasant relations' and everybody is a hungry politician but us.'

"Let us see if it is better to elect an energetic and business-like council who will actively work to built up the town or to stick to the old mossback rig, whose only pride is in drawing their $25 regularly and in not going out of the way to stir up trouble with the concern which supports the prosperity of the city.

"It is well. Let us work for our city and not for the politicians."

Homemakers meet

On October 6, the Hollyhocks Home Study group met at the home of Laverne Sevigny. President Kathy Juneau called the meeting to order. After roll call, Kathy read the secretary's report for Jean Carpenter who was unable to attend the meeting. Treasurer's report was given by Laverne Sevigny. Kathy read the correspondence and also gave a report on the Home Council meeting, and reported on the upcoming Red Lake County Home Study groups' Christmas party that will be held at the Plummer Hall on December 7. The winner of the Hollyhock's country basket drawn at the Blast to Brooks was Emla Cardinal of Brooks. Our new books for the year were passed out and the meeting was adjourned. We all enjoyed a fun-filled craft and a very nice lunch made and served by Laverne. Attending were Rosemary Eskell, Dianna Gagnar, Susan Hagge, Myrtle Hamrum, Edna Hyde, Lorna Nielson, Laverne Sevigny, and Kathy Juneau. The November meeting will be at the home of Kathy Juneau.

Immanual quilters worked again on Tuesday morning at the church. They are in need of old work blankets or sheets or anything else that can be used for filler. They have plenty of new material for tops. They usually quilt on Monday mornings. If anyone has suitable stuff they can use, it can be brought on Monday mornings or most any day to the church or to one of the quilters.

Ruth Wilkens and Della Rewertz visited on Tuesday morning at the home of Virgil and Dorothy Petnode of Red Lake Falls.

Ernie and Dorothy Paquin who spent a week here with her mother, Hilma Hamstad and friends, left for their home in Milwaukee on Wednesday morning.

Willard and Elsa Tervo of Vancouver, WA, arrived on Wednesday at the home of his brother, Albert and Evelyn, to visit for a while in the area.

"The Sons and Daughters of Norway and invited friends will hold the first social of the season at the Sons of Norway hall on Friday evening, October 17. There will be dancing, a social good time and a fine lunch before the close of the evening."

Community Girls Enjoy Party Monday Evening

"The losing side in the Community club membership campaign entertained the winners at a most enjoyable party Monday evening in the Legion club rooms and proved conclusively that as losers they were the best sports imaginable.

"Immediately upon arrival every girl was presented with a dance program in Hallowe'en colors and for a short while, the time was taken up with filling the programs with dances. Then Miss Dora Holmes, accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Brown, sang a solo, and after much applause, rendered a short encore. A two-piece orchestra had been provided to furnish music and the hours from 9 to 11 were spent in dancing. For those who did not wish to dance, cards and tables had been provided. The first six even-numbered dances were prize dances and the best couple on the floor, according to the three judges, was awarded a prize.

"The club rooms had been decorated for the occasion with orange and black streamers, orange shaded lights and other Hallowe'en decorations, such as cornstalks, pumpkins, and witches.

"Exceptionally fine refreshments were served at 11 o'clock, a unique feature of the luncheon being the chop suey which was the main dish.

"About 150 Community Girls were present and all are unanimous in their expression of a wonderfully good time. Too much credit cannot be given to the committee of 25 losers who planned the affair."

S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular Board meeting of Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, September 27, 1999, at 7:00 p.m. in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Barb Kalinoski, Jean Larson, Lyle Olson, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol and Steve Young. Also present was Dr. Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent of Schools.

Chairperson Steve Young called the meeting to order and Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by M. Spears to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

LaDonna and Denny Peterson, parents of a Crookston student who is interested in playing with our girls varsity hockey team, addressed the Board regarding the request for a cooperative sponsorship in that program. Discussion was held with input from Jim Sims, coaches Troy Hanestad and Tim Magnusson, and representatives of TRFAHA. Concerns were expressed regarding the number of girls from Thief River Falls who have expressed an interest in the program, the availability of equipment and the possibility of other schools being interested in a cooperative as well. LaDonna noted that two or possibly three girls from Crookston would be interested in participating in the cooperative.

Information regarding the MREA Fall Conference titled "Rural Education: Moving into the Millennium" was distributed. The conference is scheduled for October 28-29 in Alexandria. The emergency procedures for dismissing or calling off school as updated were distributed.

Jodi Bendickson, adaptive Phy Ed teacher was recognized for her selection as a regional finalist for the Minnesota D/APE Leadership Award. Bredine was thanked for their donation of $200.00 to the Prowler girls swim team.

Sheryl Novacek, Spanish teacher at Lincoln, presented tentative plans for a student trip to Costa Rica next July leaving on Monday the 3rd, and returning Wednesday, the 12th. Sheryl has estimated that possibly 30+ students might be interested in going. Cost of the trip is yet to be determined but may be approximately $1800/student. She is working with a travel agency on making arrangements.

Jean Larson reported on behalf of the Community Education Advisory Council indicating they met last week and heard a report from the Learning Readiness Program noting there are 78 children enrolled in the 4-year-old program who attend two or three times a week. It was reported that 50 students were involved in the summer enrichment program this past summer and 90 were enrolled in the Latch Key program. The district has received a grant for $130,000.00 for the after-school enrichment program.

Randy Twistol, Steve Young and Lyle Olson reported on behalf of the Board finance committee noting they met last week and put together a counter-proposal to the city for lease of facilities. To date we have not received a response from them as to the proposal.

Barb Kalinoski and Mike Spears reported on behalf of the PER committee indicating discussions were held last week regarding possibly restructuring the committee and that a survey will be going out to board members and others asking for input on the role of the committee.

Business Manager Harry Nelson reported that the recommendation to renew the lease with Thief River Linen includes a 3% increase. They now lease approximately 5,700 square feet in the District Service Center. Harry briefly reviewed the September 21 investment report indicating that overall interest rates are up. Harry also reviewed the proposed 1999 payable 2000 levy which is recommended be certified to the Pennington County Auditor. The proposed levy is the maximum allowable at $3,700,520.64 and represents an increase of 6.75% over the previous year. The district's revenue and expenditure budget for 1999-2000 was also reviewed as it will appear for publication in the Thief River Falls Times this Wednesday.

Superintendent Jerry Robicheau indicated to the Board that discussions are continuing regarding hockey exhibition games with no recommendation at this time. There are a number of legal issues that still need to be dealt with. Robicheau also discussed the issue of fund-raising in the district and indicated he has asked the principals to develop a list of the fund-raising taking place during the year. Superintendent Robicheau is recommending that the Board approve any fund-raising proposed for district activities prior to any taking place.

County Fair Association holds annual meeting

In contrast to 1998, which was one of the most profitable years in the history of the Pennington County Fair, expenditures for the 1999 fair outpaced receipts. Nevertheless, the Pennington County Fair Association is going into the next year with a cash balance of $18,283.

At its annual meeting, the Fair Association recently elected officers and established a budget for the Year 2000 fair, which will run July 18-23. The Fair Association has budgeted $190,370 for the Year 2000 Fair, and anticipate a two percent increase in revenue, but a four percent increase in expenses.

Acts and events planned for next year already include the Bull Ride, Motocross, and Demolition Derby. Rogers Brothers Funland have been contracted to provide a carnival, which will again be six-days.

Officers elected to represent the association this year include: Mike Sorteberg as president, Linnea Enge and Bud Hommo as vice presidents, Ray Safrunski as treasurer, and Donna Harder as secretary.

Total receipts for the 1999 Pennington County Fair amounted to $196,023, almost $2,000 more than receipts recorded for the 1998 Fair. Expenditures, however, increased from $181,001 in 1998 to $200,166.

The largest increase, in terms of dollars and impact on expenditures, was observed in the cost of Grandstand Acts and set-up, which increased from $29,538.67 to $37,675.60. Another significant, though not unwelcome increase, was observed in an increase in expenditures for prizes, which jumped from $41,183.90 to $47,374.90.

Last year, the Fair Association received an insurance refund. That refund helped boost revenue from refunds and other miscellaneous sources from $970.77 in 1997 to $11,186.73 in 1998. In 1999, income from refunds and other miscellaneous sources amounted to $3,397.20.

Again, the largest source of income for the Fair Association came from Grandstand performances and fund-raising. Income generated by fund-raising and Grandstand performances increased from $73,400 in 1998 to $78,758 in 1999. Receipts from the carnival also increased, from $26,377.77 in 1998 to $28,247.26 in 1999.

County and state aid also contributed to the overall picture. State aids amounted to $4,300.86; while county aid remained stable at $14,000. Donations to the Fair Association also contributed, adding $45,100, and increase over 1998 donations totaling $41,960.

Eleven vying for spot on TRF City Council

Sunday liquor issue also on the Tuesday election ballot for residents of Thief River Falls

Originally, 10 candidates were vying for four slots on the Thief River Falls City Council. An eleventh candidate recently joined in as a write-in candidate, leaving no candidate unchallenged.

A factor in the number of candidates vying for office is the fact that three incumbent council representatives, Milt Burstad from the first ward, Frank Hamerlinck from the fifth ward, and Jean Heinrichs, representative-at-large, decided not to run for re-election.

Included on the front page of this edition of The Times are first-person stories written by the candidates. The candidates were asked to prepare a first-person narrative the describes their background and qualifications for the office. They were also asked to address any issues they felt were important to them. Examples provided the candidates included, their opinion on Greenwood Street bridge, crosswind runway, and Sunday liquor. The space for these articles was provided at no charge to the candidates. The Times considers it a public service. We hope you'll take the time to read the articles and become familiar with the candidates and their feelings on a number of issues.

Candidates vying for the three-year term as first ward council representative are Glen Kajewski, Dennis Nabben, and Steven Narverud.

MDA unveils innovative organic program

Minnesota broke new ground in organic agriculture recently with the unveiling of a new $35,000 cost-sharing program designed to partially reimburse farmers for the cost of organic inspection and certification. Funded by the Organic Agriculture Promotion and Education Act passed during the 1999 Minnesota legislative session, the cost-share program is the first of its kind in the country.

Available through the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, the Organic Cost-Share Program will reimburse Minnesota producers for up to two-thirds of the cost for organic inspection and certification. Applications will be taken through December 31, 1999, for certifications granted for the 1999 crop year. Producers will be eligible for up to five years of payments, with a maximum annual payment of $200 per producer.

MDA Commissioner Gene Hugoson said the cost-share program fits well with the Department's goal of giving farmers flexibility to adapt to marketplace developments.

"Organic agriculture is a rapidly growing part of Minnesota's farm sector, and this innovative cost-share program will certainly help with that development," Commissioner Hugoson said. "This program will smooth the path for people who are interested in getting involved in organic food production."

A total of $35,000 is available for the Organic Cost-Share Program this year. Eligible applicants will receive pro-rated payments if demand for the program exceeds this total. Rules for administering this program were developed with input from organic industry representatives through the Organic Advisory Task Force.

For more information, contact the Organic Program of the Minnesota Department of Agriculture. Applicants must provide proof of certification and proof of payment, and they must fill out the Organic Cost-Share Application form. This form can be obtained on the MDA website at www.mda.state.mn.us or by contacting Prescott Bergh, MDA Organic Program Director, at 90 West Pluto Blvd., St. Paul MN, 55107. Bergh can be reached by phone at 651-215-0367, or by e-mail at prescott.bergh@state.mn.us.

Vote...NOV. 2nd, 1999
CONRAD HOLTEN
For Council Member At-Large

It's time to get YOUR voice back in the City Council! I will listen to YOU!

It's time for Honest, Effective, Common Sense Leadership!

I want taxpayers to be better informed. I want the council meeting agendas published in the newspaper.

We have the 2nd highest property taxes in Minnesota. Higher taxes are proposed along with a number of new service fees and a higher water rate.

*We MUST have a balanced budget without raising taxes, spending reserves, or bonding for more money! WE NEED TO CONTROL OUR SPENDING!!

...for Thief River Falls... ...RAD HOLTEN

Paid for by the committee to elect Conrad Holten for council member at-large, Sherry Borsheim, Treasurer.

Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner Charlie Weaver (second from left) visited the Thief River Falls area on Monday, October 25. Weaver spoke with local law enforcement officials about public safety issues and concerns. The number one concern among law enforcement officials in the area is the need for part-time officers and limitations upon use of part-time officers. A lack of resources and large territories make it absolutely necessary to be able to use part-time officers. The officials also had other concerns such as a need for quicker processing of lab work, and assistance in education on gangs and drugs.

Gail M. Dow named Colorado Librarian of Year

Gail M. Dow, daughter of Hazel M. Stromsmoe and the late Garlin M. Stromsmoe of Thief River Falls was the recipient of the Colorado Library Association's highest award, "Colorado Librarian of the Year," at the CLA annual conference in Snowmass, CO.

This prestigious award recognizes "exceptional achievement during the past year in the library information or media field within Colorado. Factors considered are the improvement of library service in Colorado, the development of innovative approaches to library and information problems, and an active contribution to the development of librarianship through participation in the library association, contributions to literature, teaching, and/or other related activities."

Gail was cited for her "tireless efforts to pass the State Grants for Libraries legislation," a bill which was the culmination of several years' work by the Colorado Library Association's Legislative Commission, which she chairs, to develop a proposal to provide direct state funds for Colorado libraries. It earmarked $2 million for publicly supported school districts, academic, and public libraries in Colorado to purchase educational resources. Although the bill passed the Colorado General Assembly by a substantial margin, the governor ultimately vetoed it. An amended bill is being reintroduced in the upcoming legislative session, and is expected to become law.

Gail is the director of Technical Access Services at the Denver Public Library, Denver, CO, where she has worked for the past 28 years. She is also a past president of the Colorado Library Association.

Gail is a 1963 graduate of Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, a 1967 graduate of Augsburg College, and a Graduate of the University of Denver in 1968 with a MALA degree.

. . . And the goblins will get you if you don't watch out!

While ancient traditions influence Halloween as we know it, TRF has some traditions of its own

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Dressing up to look like someone or something else while making a haul on candy appeals to a lot of children, so much so that Halloween is the favorite holiday of many children.

Parties in schools and churches and community events all add to the fun and excitement of the holiday.

On Sunday, the local Lions club will host two parties, a costume party for younger children and pizza party and dance for middle school age youth. The 55-year tradition is one of the club's many service projects to the community.

Because the event began in 1944, many local grandparents must have attended the party themselves as youngsters.

Halloween History

However, while 55 years is a long time, Halloween traditions are believed to have begun more than 2,000 years ago with the Celtic Festival of Samhain.

The Celts, who lived in what is now Great Britain, Ireland and northern France, celebrated their new year on November 1 with a festival that began the previous evening honoring Samhain, the Celtic lord of death.

While the celebration marked the beginning of the cold and dark winter season, it became associated with human death, and Celts believed that Samhain allowed the souls of the dead to return to their earthly homes for this evening.

On the evening of the festival, Celtic priests and teachers ordered the people to put out their hearth fires and built a huge new year's bonfire of sacred oak branches. After burning animals, crops and perhaps even human beings as sacrifices, each family relit its hearth from the new year's fire. During the celebrations, costumes made from animal skins and heads were sometimes worn, and fortunes of the coming year were told by examining the remains of the sacrificed animals.

After the Romans conquered the Celts, they combined two Roman autumn festivals with the Celtic festival of Samhain. One of them was called Feralia and was held in late October to honor the dead. The other festival honored Pomona, the Roman goddess of fruit and trees. This is probably how apples came to be associated with Halloween.

Even after people became Christians, many of the customs of the Celts continued. During the 800s, the church established All Saints Day to honor the dead, and people made many of the old pagan customs part of this Christian holy day.

Many of today's Halloween symbols originated with ancient regional customs and beliefs. Some once believed that ghosts roamed the earth on Halloween and that all witches met on October 31 to worship the devil.

According to an old Irish legend, jack-o'-lanterns are named for a man called Jack who could not enter heaven because he was a miser. Because he had played tricks on the devil, he could not enter hell either, and as a result had to walk the earth with a lantern until Judgment Day.

While people in England and Ireland once carved out beets, turnips and potatoes to use as lanterns on Halloween, pumpkins were used once the custom reached the United States.

Although early American settlers brought various customs with them from England and other Celtic regions, they also had very strict religious beliefs, and Halloween celebrations in the United States did not become popular until the 1800s when large numbers of immigrants from Scotland and Ireland arrived and introduced their Halloween customs.

Old Traditions Continue

The custom of trick-or-treating, which probably began with beggars going out on All Souls' Day in England, remains a favorite Halloween activity for American children with costumed children going door to door. After hearing them say, "trick or treat," neighbors give children treats to avoid having tricks played on them.

As early as the mid-1900s, however, the custom became less popular in larger cities where many neighbors did not know each other and once harmless Halloween pranks became rowdier and more destructive. Traffic accidents also became a major problem on Halloween.

Safety Remains A Halloween Concern

Pedestrian injuries, falls and burns are the leading risks on Halloween, according to Connie Johnson, coordinator of Minnesota's SAFE KIDS Coalition.

The coalition recommends simple steps to help prevent injuries on Halloween and suggests that adults take a few moments to discuss safety before going trick-or-treating. Children under the age of 12 should be accompanied by an adult or older sibling, and recommendations include:

- For visibility, attach retro-reflective tape, fabric or decorative patches to costumes and trick-or-treat bags.
- To promote traffic safety, review basic pedestrian safety rules, including how and where to cross streets. Teach children never to dart out into the street.
- To prevent falls, use face paint or cosmetics instead of masks. Make costumes short enough to prevent tripping and provide flashlights. Props should be made of flexible materials to lower the risk of injury in the case of a fall, and children should be advised not to cut across lawns where tripping hazards may be hidden in the dark.
- To prevent burns, look for "flame resistant" labels on costumes and use fire resistant fabric to make costumes. Avoid the baggy sleeves and billowing skirts which may be a hazard around candles, and keep candles, matches, lighters and jack-o'-lanterns with candles out of the reach of children.

Parents will also want to check their children's treats, making certain that candy is age appropriate and doesn't present a choking hazard.

Several weeks ago, an anonymous handwritten note arrived at The Times suggesting that something be written about the fact that not all people choose to observe Halloween traditions.

While the communication did not warrant a spot in the "Letters to the Editor" section, the sentiment expressed perhaps deserves some comment.

Parents should advise their children not to knock on the doors of dark houses and that a lit porch light is generally a sign that trick-or-treaters are welcome.

Happy Halloween

Throughout the week, preparations are being made for Halloween on Sunday.

Costumes are being purchased and the final details are being added to homemade outfits. While many children will be dressed as the most current popular cartoon character, costumes will surely include the traditional assortment of fairies, ghosts, cowboys, hobos and Draculas also.

Pumpkins are being purchased and carved, some with elaborate new tools and patterns and others in the traditional jack-o'-lantern style. Candy is at the top of many shopping lists, and by Saturday night, there probably won't be a miniature candy bar left on the store shelves.

As they enjoy coffee in the local restaurants, retired gents may do some reminiscing this week, too, telling funny tales of tipped over outhouses in days gone by.

With a lot of fun decorations to see, and a drive around town reveals that a good number of homeowners are as enthusiastic about the season and the Halloween holiday as the trick-or-treating youngsters.

The yard of Carl and Polly Reed features these cheerful ghosts merrily circling the flag pole, and a nearby sign welcomes trick-or-treaters. The Reed home is one of many Thief River Falls residences sporting imaginative Halloween and autumn decorations.

Lions to host 55th annual Halloween parties Sunday

The Thief River Falls Lions club will host its 55th annual Halloween parties on Sunday, October 31 at the National Guard armory.

The first party will be a costume party from 4 to 5:30 p.m. for children between the ages of birth and fifth grade and their parents.

Two dollar bills will be awarded to those wearing outstanding costumes. Games will also be played with a prize for all who participate in each game.

Upon arrival each child will receive a book of tickets for the games and a Halloween bag to be used for holding tricks or treats later in the evening as they go door-to-door in their neighborhoods.

In previous years, more than 400 youngsters have attended the party for this age group.

From 7 to 10 p.m. a second party will be held for youth in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. The event will include dancing, activities and a pizza party. Music will be provided by Peg Mehrkens from KTRF.

Pop will be served with the pizza, and the event will be chaperoned by Lions club members and their wives. School rules for parties and dances will apply.

All youth in this age group, from public and private schools as well as home-schooled students, are invited to attend. Costumes are not required for this party, and the Lions invite you to "Come as you are!"

Since 1944, the TRF Lions club has hosted these Halloween parties as one of its many service projects to the community. The organization's motto is, "We Serve!" and club members assist with the event every year. The chairman for this year's event is Dr. Charles Samuelson.

October is also membership month for the Lions, and any man or woman interested in joining the club may contact any one of its 94 members for more information.

The Lions meet for one hour every Wednesday at noon at the Best Western Inn, enjoying a meal and a short program which is usually related to civic affairs. Weekly attendance averages between 50 and 60 members.

Business of the club is conducted by a board of directors which meets at 7 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month. Current club officers include Dave Olin, president; Ellsworth Jorgenson, secretary; John T. Anderson, treasurer; and Tim Bauer, tailtwister.

One of the Lions most recent projects involved the restoration and improvement of Lions Park located near the water tower on the east side of town. New playground equipment was recently installed, and to date, nearly $50,000 has been raised by Lions and others to finance the project.

Organ donation drop offers reminder to public

Public support for organ donation in the Upper Midwest is among the highest in the nation, according to new figures released by LifeSource, the non-profit, federally-designated organ donation organization for Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and western Wisconsin.

More than two-thirds of the families in the region who were offered the option of organ donation after a loved one died this year said "Yes," according to the latest year-to-date figures.

The LifeSource consent rate for organ donation was 68 percent, up three percent from the same period last year. Nationally, about 40 percent of families give permission for donation on average.

"We are heartened by this strong public support because it means more lives are saved. Yet, even with this strong demonstrated support, the need for lifesaving organs continues to outpace the supply," said LifeSource CEO Susan Gunderson.

Despite this strong regional support for organ donation, the actual number of organ donors in the region is down slightly compared to the record increase seen during the same time one year ago.

So far this year, 107 people in the Upper Midwest have become organ donors, extending the gift of life to nearly 400 men, women and children. This is down approximately five percent from the same time one year ago. During the entire year of 1998, an unprecedented 174 donors extended the gift of life to approximately 600 people.

"While there is a normal ebb and flow to the donation rate, any regional decrease is always a concern because the waiting list for lifesaving organs grows 15 percent each year," said Gunderson.

LifeSource is asking individuals to consider organ donation and to discuss their wishes with loved ones. This is important because family permission is required for organ and tissue donation to take place.

Under federal law, families of patients who die and meet the criteria for donation must be offered the opportunity to extend the gift of life to others.

"The family has complete control, deciding if organ and tissue donation will take place, and if so, which organs and tissues will be donated," Gunderson added.

LifeSource donation coordinators indicate many families have not discussed individual organ donation wishes. As a result, opportunities to save the lives of others may be lost. "Discussing this issue in advance makes it much easier for the family to make this important decision and carry out their loved ones wishes at a difficult time," Gunderson added.

Many people mistakenly believe that having the donor designation on the driver's license is adequate consent for donation. The license is a good indicator of one's wishes but it does not qualify as legal permission for donation, only the family can provide that.

Currently, more than 65,000 Americans are waiting for organ transplants, more than 1,600 of them live in the LifeSource region which comprises Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and portions of western Wisconsin.

LifeSource is among the nation's top performing organ procurement organizations in terms of donors per million population and the number of organs donated per donor. It is a non-profit organization designated by the federal government to manage end-of-life organ donation cases in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and portions of western Wisconsin.

Agency seeks foster parents in Penn. county area

North Homes, Inc., a private, nonprofit youth-serving agency, has recently expanded its services to the Pennington county area.

The agency was established in Grand Rapids in 1990 to provide community-based treatment options for families and youth at-risk. In 1998, North Homes expanded its services to include a branch office in Crookston to enhance services to children in northwestern Minnesota.

Crookston's branch office currently supervises nine licensed and trained therapeutic foster care homes in Polk, Red Lake and Clearwater counties. These foster families have worked with children of varying degrees of behavioral difficulty with positive results, thereby assisting these children in reaching their goals of being reunified with their biological families.

Foster families are a key part of a child's treatment team and are involved in all aspects of a child's placement in their home. They also receive support from the social workers of North Homes, Inc., other foster parents and other professionals involved in the child's treatment program. The key to success is matching the child's needs with the strengths of the foster family.

Recently, North Homes, Inc. was asked by the Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services to recruit and license therapeutic foster care homes in the Pennington county area. Benefits for foster care individuals and families include reimbursement for each day a child is in care, social worker support, access to monthly support group meetings, paid respite care, education allowance and paid membership in the Minnesota Foster Care Association.

Those interested in finding out more about North Homes, Inc. therapeutic foster care program are asked to call Nathan Modeen or Janet Denison at the Crookston office toll free at 1-877-281-4688.

MPCA offers county lake summaries

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency now has summaries of lake transparency data available on a county-by-county basis for select counties. The summary fact sheets show Secchi transparency data for lakes in the county which have been monitored by volunteers over a sufficient time period to reveal trends of increasing or decreasing transparency.

Secchi transparency is a measurement of the clarity of lake water, which is a useful indicator of water quality. Lakes whose waters are relatively transparent or clear usually have less pollution compared to those with lower transparency readings. A trend of increasing clarity can indicate conditions in the lake are improving. Similarly, a trend of decreasing clarity indicates problems.

To obtain copies of the fact sheets, or for information on becoming a volunteer monitor, call the MPCA at 651-282-2618 or toll-free at 1-800-657-3864. You can also find the fact sheets or sign up to volunteer on the worldwide web at http://www.pca.state.mn.us/water/clmp.html. The agency recently began a similar program to monitor clarity in streams and rivers, and volunteers are always welcome to become part of either or both programs.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Holiday Magnets

Patterning practice adds the decorative flair to these versatile holiday magnets. To make one, paint one side of a large popsicle stick. When the paint is dry, create a festive pattern by arranging seasonal stickers and sticking them onto the popsicle stick. Then attach a length of magnetic tape to the back of the stick. These magnets make great little gifts or seasonal decorations.

PARENTING TIPS

What About Spanking?

Parents use many definitions to describe what they think a spanking actually is. According to the Minnesota Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse it doesn't really matter how we define or describe a spanking. Research shows that by any definition most parents have used spankings to try to control their children's behavior. Research also shows that spanking, by any definition, has serious detrimental effects on a child, effects that may not be evident until adulthood. A list of these follows:

- Spanking teaches children the moral correctness of hitting. It tells them that hitting is what you do when you are angry and how you solve problems.
- Spanking teaches children that those who love you are those who hit you.
- Spanking does not teach children self-control; rather, it teaches them not to get caught.
- Adults spanked as children show an increased tendency toward alcoholism, depression and thoughts of suicide.
- Spanking erodes the trust bond between parent and child.
- When spanking is used to control behavior, physical and verbal child abuse is more likely to occur.

Contrary to conventional opinion, spanking is no more effective at controlling behavior than non-physical disciplinary measures and its effectiveness ebbs with repeated usage.

Next week's topic is: What To Do Instead of Spanking.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to children about what you expect of them. Young children do not know what is right or wrong unless we tell them.

for Ward I

Jaycees. I served in several leadership positions up to the level of Area Vice-President assisting Jaycee chapters in west central and north central Minnesota. In 1984, I was awarded the JCI Senatorship, the highest honor given by the Jaycee organization. In 1997, I was elected to the Trinity Lutheran Church council, serving as vice-president in 1998 and president in 1999. I have helped as a volunteer at Challenger Elementary and Franklin Middle Schools chaperoning and helping on class trips.

I work for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (formerly the Soil Conservation Service, not to be confused with DNR) as assistant state conservationist for field operations. My job responsibilities require me to supervise 20 people, providing guidance and direction to personnel working in 12 Northwest Minnesota counties; develop requests and manage budgets for equipment and vehicles and staffing; work with units of government and agencies to solve mutual problems in a positive manner; provide customer service training to USDA employees; organize and work with teams and committees to develop strategies, solve problems, set priorities and implement acceptable solutions.

Over the years I've become concerned as have many people about the course the city has taken in spending and decision making. Too often people have minimal or no input into decisions and projects that will have a negative impact on them. When neighborhoods are going to be impacted we should be meeting with them and getting their input. I would like to develop a citizen's listening group in Ward I that would provide a vehicle to keep residents up-to-date on proposals for change as well as get their input and ideas. Additional input and ideas from the ground level results in decisions that save money on projects that have better public acceptance. Along with that we need to make sure that good factual information is available and used before commitments are made to large projects or expenditures. This applies to projects such as the Greenwood bridge, crosswind runway, and planned Sherwood Avenue improvements.

I would like to work to get our expenditures and budget to the point where a budget could be approved without an increase in taxes and long-term debt load reduced to manageable amounts. This isn't a small task, however, I believe that we can work to make it happen. It will involve getting department heads together, taking a look at budgets, and working as a team to set priorities on spending and sticking to that course of action. It would be great to see a headline like the one that was in Darby's hometown newspaper, "No Tax Increase for Second Straight Year!" They've been able to do this and still maintain the services to their citizens. That's a great accomplishment and one worth working to achieve.

A common concern that I've heard in Ward I is that there should be additional activities for young people and one of the suggestions I have heard several times was the development of a skate park that in-line skaters, skateboards and trick cyclists could use. At the same time some of these folks volunteered to help make it happen if the city would provide an area for its construction. With citizen involvement additional ideas and projects could be implemented that will add to opportunities for our young people.

Another concern that has been expressed quite often is the need for a wider variety of job opportunities. Improved and faster internet access, the Highway 59 bypass, and partnering with idea people in business development should give us some ideas for creating additional job opportunities in Thief River Falls.

Thanks once again for the opportunity to tell about myself and share some of my thoughts for city council. I would appreciate your support and vote for Ward I Alderman on November 2.

MDA staff to focus on contacts risk management

With rapid changes sweeping through all levels of the farm economy, Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson has announced the hiring of two new staff members to work with farmers on producer contracts and risk management options.

Paul Strandberg, an attorney who for years represented the MDA as an assistant attorney general, started this week and will assist the commissioner's office with policy analysis, development and support. His main focus will be on reviewing producer contracts and evaluating the regulatory structures needed to prevent contracting abuses. He will also assist with the education of producers regarding their contracting rights and responsibilities, and serve on the interstate task force promulgating rules for livestock price reporting.

David Bullock, formerly the senior economist at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange, started recently and will devote the majority of his time to helping Minnesota farmers and agribusinesses develop and implement stronger risk management tools. Bullock has a doctorate in agricultural economics from Iowa State University and has previous experience as an assistant professor and extension marketing specialist at Montana State University.

"With our responsibility for regulating and promoting the state's agricultural sector, we need to do all we can to keep up with the pace of change in the industry," Commissioner Hugoson said. "The MDA will continue to adjust its programs, policies and regulations as needed to make sure we are serving our clients in the most efficient and effective manner possible."

...An Old-Fashioned Halloween

Judging by the decorations in windows and on front steps and porches, Halloween is coming. They say that Halloween is the second most popular holiday in the United States, and it appears that must be so. Stores are filled with holiday things, decorations for indoors and out, costumes for kids and adults, lights to trim humans and houses, make-up to put on people and pumpkin faces.

There are so many things to buy in the stores that no one has to make anything by hand any more like they did when I was growing up. Back in the olden days, we pretty much made all of our Halloween things, including treats, costumes, games for Halloween parties, and decorations for our houses.

The kids who had mothers who could sew (and many of them did), were lucky, because they could win the prizes for best costumes at the Lions' party. Those of us whose mothers weren't too good at sewing usually became old-white-sheet-clad ghosts or bums dressed in Dad's old clothes or fancy ladies or princesses dressed in Mom's old clothes. I don't know about the other kids, but I didn't think up a costume until the last minute, usually the evening before Halloween and/or the school party. Then it was always a mad scramble to find something to wear and my mother always swore to do it early next year (and we never did).

If we had a party, we thought up our own games. I remember bobbing for apples and getting wet all the way through my cute little costume and right into my regular clothes underneath and staying that way for the rest of the evening. That was really one of the messiest games ever, probably because we live here in the north country and it is cold at Halloween and we can't play it outdoors like we should and have to do it inside with a big tub on the kitchen floor! We also played a game where an apple was passed from one person to another under chins, tried to take a bite of an apple swinging on a string and pushed apples across the floor with our noses. I don't ever remember eating any of those apples, though - just playing with them.

And we always carved pumpkins, sometimes carving our hands up somewhat in the process, and we usually had popcorn to eat and lots of hot cider because we were always cold (no doubt from being so wet from the apple bobbing, and ate entirely too much sweet stuff and always had stomach aches in the middle of Halloween night, after the ghosting and hob-gobling was over.

Of course, home-made treats were always a part of Halloween. Before the holiday, there would be baking and candy making and popcorn popping and pumpkins carved and baked into good things in anticipation of Halloween trick or treaters. Luckily, there were always plenty of leftovers for those who stayed at home. Those of us who were out going door-to-door didn't need any of the treats from our own houses because we came home with pillow cases bulging with home-made treats from all around town. There were no razor blade or poison scares back then. Everybody welcomed kids from all around town and gave generously of the goodies they had made. If they didn't have home-made treats, they often gave money or (more) apples or big, five-cent candy bars.

Very few people chose not to participate in Halloween and didn't give out treats at their houses, and those people were well-known by all of us. They were the ones who stayed hidden inside, never daring to show a light or turn on a radio for fear the goblins and ghouls would play tricks on them if they knew they were there. Most of us wouldn't have bothered them anyway, but there were always some ill-mannered boys who loved to soap windows or throw rotten eggs or old tomatoes at the houses. Some of the boys saved up eggs for months before Halloween so they could throw them around. I didn't do anything like that – never. And I certainly didn't do anything else like the bad boys did, like tip over little sheds (or outhouses if there were any) or try to put animals or items on top of buildings and leave them there all night.

I still love to see home-made decorations on houses. Real pumpkins, especially those that have been carved and lighted with a candle, corn stalks and uncarved pumpkins, tissue paper ghosties and jack-o-lanterns hanging in the trees, life-sized witches and goblins on the lawn – these are the best decorations of all. Just a few of my own Halloween decorations are home-made, but all of them are old and they remind me of other, past Halloweens.

Let's hope we all have a fun-filled, old-fashioned, safe Halloween again this year.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

On a trip to the local nursing home the other day, I was startled when a furball scurried past my feet. I thought a squirrel had snuck in the door, but it was a cat. I soon discovered there was also a puppy in the building, and that both were permanent residents.

What a great idea! I snooped a little and found that many area nursing homes now have pets running loose. "Companion animals," it seems, are the latest trend in nursing home care.

I asked residents at the local home what they thought, and it was clear that they enjoyed the animals thoroughly. Only one woman complained, but she complains about everything. Having something more to complain about probably makes her happy, too.

Now, why didn't this happen thirty years ago? I remember how thrilled the nursing home residents were when they first put in fish tanks and bird cages. But fish are cold and slimy when you pet them, nothing like a cat. And birds aren't as friendly as puppies.

A nursing home is a great place for animals. Is there anywhere cats and dogs could give and get more love? Think of all the people who leave their dogs home alone in their apartment all day while they work. No such lonely times for a pet in a nursing home. I am sure they get plenty of table scraps, too.

During my visit, the cat jumped up on the lap of Nora, who is in a wheelchair. Nora hasn't been able to speak since her stroke, but she smiled from ear to ear when the cat snuggled up to her.

I didn't meet the puppy. He was busy running in and out of rooms down in the other wing. I'll bet there were smiles all around.

The older I get, the more I enjoy animals. They aren't as complicated as people. They give unconditional love. They don't care if your hair is messy, or if your clothes were purchased ten years ago. They aren't hard to make purr.

Even the crankiest older people--those who have grown weary of other humans and have put up a wall of crabbiness to keep people out of their hair--even those people melt in the presence of a friendly animal.

My grandma would moan and groan every time a stray showed up on her step. Time to get the gun, she said. We don't want that scruffy-looking thing around here.

Ten minutes later, she'd be heating milk on the stove.

It is good that animals now can live where their affection is appreciated most. Humans are fine, but when I get eighty-five and a little cranky, the company of a cat will be a good thing.

NW Minnesota responds to health care issues

The importance of the new model for providing health care coverage was evident recently as approximately 100 people attended the meetings which were held in Thief River Falls, Warroad, Hallock, Crookston, Warren and Fosston. Small business, industry, farmers, health care providers and government workers were all represented.

According to Barbara J. Muesing, coordinator of the NW Minnesota Civic Health Initiative at the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC), there is a growing concern about the number of people in northwestern Minnesota who cannot afford health care coverage. "We heard this message at every meeting," she said.

The need for affordable health care was a problem addressed by the Minnesota Legislature this past year. The new legislation was explained at each meeting as was the opportunity to organize a health care purchasing alliance.

As a result of the meetings, UMC will move forward with an initiative to organize such an alliance with the goal of offering mainstreet businesses and farm families a new option for health care coverage. The next step will be to organize a steering committee to begin the process of forming the alliance.

For more information about the initiative, call (218) 281-8680.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: How many years of my work are used to figure out my Social Security retirement? I hear conflicting information from my friends.

A: Your Social Security retirement benefit will be computed based on your earnings during the 35 years in which you had your best earnings. Depending on the person involved, these years could be a combination of full-time work, part-time work, or no work at all. Anyway, once the best 35 years are selected, the earnings are adjusted for inflation and used to calculate your unreduced benefits, for example at age 65. From there, reductions are made for early retirement, such as for starting benefits prior to age 65, as needed. The above refers to benefits through your own SSA record. Benefits payable to you off someone else's record, such as a spouse, are computed differently.

Q: I saw something about the Social Security Administration sending me information about future benefits even though I am far from retirement age. What was it about?

A: Starting October 1, the agency began sending statements to about 125 million workers, age 25 or older and not receiving Social Security benefits, all across the country. The four-page Social Security Statement contains an individual record of earnings for the person, a series of personal benefit estimates for each of retirement, survivors and disability to help with family financial planning, and other program information. Because of the size of this national workload the agency plans to mail approximately 500,000 Social Security Statements each business day for a total of about 1B million per month. Workers will receive their statements about three months before their birth month so people in a household will receive their individual statements at different times. For example, people born in February could expect to receive their Social Security Statement in November.

SHOP AT HOME

Gabrielle Lee, Lincoln High School

Here in Thief River Falls we have a lot to be thankful for. There are no serious issues to deal with. That seems to be the way we think, anyway. In the meantime we have had 3rd grade children who go home from school and ask their parents what the word "nigger" means because some 5th grader called them that and laughed. We have 4th graders who wear mascara and make-up to hide their innocence. We have grown women and their children who are harassed by carloads of teenagers, all in the name of fun. Living in Northern Minnesota we have been sheltered by one another.

We assume that the existence of gangs doesn't apply to us. Hard core drug dealers get busted either by snitches and or the Paul Bunyan Task Force. Our policemen and policewomen supervise upstanding citizens whose children respect the law, and therefore follow the straight and narrow. What more could we ask for?

How about the ability to realize that just because most of us living in Thief River Falls have had a sheltered life, does not mean everyone else has. The same guys harassing the African American college students, with no motive other than their being African American, never take into consideration that these students are trying to better themselves. Granted some of these guys may act wild once they get here; our departing seniors may not know how to act once out of Pennington County and experience life at St. Cloud State or U.N.D. This is a new experience for them as well as for all of us.

The Mexican Americans who seemingly come in droves, want nothing more than a place to work. People may scoff at their choices of work, the turkey plant, picking beets, but it's honest work. They come asking, "Are you hiring?" Their main objective is to earn money the old fashioned way. Isn't that what America prides itself on? Wasn't the American dream for countless Europeans and other immigrants to come into the outstretched arms of America to build homes for their families and work. Now, however, a few Thief Riverans take it upon themselves to decide who deserves the opportunity and privilege to be here.

Happiness is an emotion most people really have control over-anger, too, for that matter. People can arouse either one with a gesture or a word. Everyone deserves to be happy even those in the minority.

Sometimes being sheltered isn't always a good thing. Especially if being sheltered deprives others of their rights: the right to go to school and not be threatened by other students because of race, gender, or religion; the right to walk around past 11 o'clock and not be verbally abused by someone who doesn't like the way you look; the right to live anywhere you please and not have to live up to somebody else's standards; the right to date outside of your race without major altercations at every dance; the right to wake up in the morning and at least believe that everybody's somebody in Thief River Falls. Change is the only constant, and if we can't accept people for who they are, we are going to have problems. There will be problems on our job sites, on our streets, and in our schools. No one is immune, but sweeping the crumbs under the table can hardly be considered cleaning house.

Inter-County is partner with Family Assets

Inter-County Community Council is a partner in a new statewide program called Family Assets for Independence (FAIM) in Minnesota. This new initiative, supported by foundation grants, Federal and State funds and local non-profit agencies, is designed to help people save for one of three purposes:

1) To purchase a house
2) To pursue a higher education
3) To begin a small business

FAIM is a matched savings project that helps families build assets to reach one of the above goals. Selected participants will be required to save approximately $25 to $3B per month in a custodial savings account. Each dollar saved will be matched by $3 from other sources. In addition to the savings requirement, participants will also be required to attend classes for credit counseling, budgeting, financial management and home buyer training.

The income limits for this program are as follows: one in family with a limit of $15,244; two in family with income limit of $20,461; three in family with income limit of $25,687; four in family with income limit of $30,895; five in family with income limit of $36,112; six in family with income limit of $41,329; seven in family with income limit of $46,546; and eight in family with income limit of $51,763.

I am physically unable to get to the library. Is there some way I could still get books? Yes, the Friends of the Library group sponsors a service called the Homebound Service. Volunteers bring you books you would like to read. All you have to do is call the library at 681-4325 and let us know you would like this service and we'll put a Friends of the Library member in contact with you. If you are in such congregate housing as Valley Home, Oakland Park Nursing Home or C&NC, let your activities coordinator know and they will call us if you cannot or do not wish to make the call yourself.

ward there are Mark Staite and Dale Wennberg.

Candidates vying for the three-year term as representative-at-large are Elvera Cullen, Conrad C. Holten, Roger Meunier and Jerry Unruh.

Terrence Blacklance was the only candidate who filed for the three-year term as ward five representative. Denis Rantanen decided to wage a write-in campaign at the last minute.

The election will be held Tuesday, November 2. Individuals who would like to vote for the candidates in their ward or the representative-at-large position, may do so at the following locations: Ward 1 at Heritage Community Center from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Ward 2 at Zion Lutheran church from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Ward 3 at the National Guard Armory from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Ward 4 at the Ole Engelstad park shelter from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Ward 5 at Redeemer Lutheran church from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Individuals who cannot vote due to a conflict or illness may cast an absentee ballot with the city administrator's office anytime prior to the election, including Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Depot.

Voters are also being presented an option to vote on whether they want liquor to be served on Sundays. The question, as posed on the official ballot states: "Shall licenses be granted to restaurants, clubs, bowling centers, or hotels, with a seating capacity for at least 30 persons and which hold an on-sale intoxicating liquor license, for the sale of intoxicating liquor on Sundays for consumption on the premises in conjunction with the sale of food between the hours of 12:00 noon on Sundays and 1 a.m. on Mondays in the City of Thief River Falls?"

where I studied criminal justice and communications. My wife Tammi and I and our two sons, Andrew and Aaron, have lived in Thief River Falls since 1990 and have been residents of Ward 5 for nearly four years.

My qualifications for the position I am seeking on the council comes from a wide range of community involvement. Along with my employment as diversity coordinator for School District 564, I currently serve as the co-block captain for South Kneale, am president of the Thief River Falls Race Association, a member of the Thief River Falls Library Board and long-range planning committee, Northwest Regional Development Commission, School District P.E.R. (Planning, Evaluating and Reporting Committee), Youth Development, and Parent Advisory committees. I also was selected and attended the highly recommended Blandin Community Leadership conference, and continue to develop my skills in community leadership by attending numerous conferences and workshops.

As for our community, I see Thief River Falls as NOT another Grand Forks or Fargo, but as a community that maintains and values its local businesses. A community that offers not just a stable business core, but in some way cashes in on the important business of tourism each and every day of the year. It is my belief that we need to find some way to recapture our downtown business district and have it become once again, the focal point of our city. It is most important that we not just concentrate on becoming bigger, but more importantly, better. We need to give our residents a reason to stay and shop here in Thief River Falls and NOT take those dollars across the state line. As for other topics we hear talked about, such as the Greenwood Street bridge, Sunday liquor and an over or under-pass. . . ." Lets hear what our residents have to say. I believe in Thief River Falls and hope that with the vote of Ward 5 residents, I can help make a positive difference for our community. And as always, I invite your input at anytime.

Conrad Holten

I am a planning and zoning commissioner for the City of Thief River Falls. I recently married JoAnn Bruzak, who works for Pennington County Abstract & Title. We are homeowners in the City of Thief River Falls and we absolutely love the city and the great people who live here.

I am ready for the commitment to be your next city council representative. A vote for me is a vote for honest, effective, common sense leadership. We as citizens need to get our voice back in the city council. I will bring innovative ideas to the city council. I will listen to you and I will "hear" you!

Thief River Falls residents pay the second highest property taxes in the State of Minnesota and taxes will be raised again next year. We have to control our spending and re-evaluate our policies. Projects like the Depot renovation are financial burdens the city and its taxpayers can't afford, especially when more money will be needed to repair the leaking roof and basement. Large projects like the Multi-Events Center (MEC) which require massive amounts of in-kind service work deplete our reserves. This is Thief River Falls and it is time to start living within our means.

We have over $12 million in bonded debt, with depleting reserves. We have to plan our improvements, and place more special assessments on the taxpayers of Thief River Falls.

There are a number of fees proposed for the residents of Thief River Falls. Why? Because the City Council has failed to manage our tax money. These new fees include: street light fees, brush pick-up fee, leaf vacuum fee, and a new fee for emergency services. Where will it end? Also, a water rate increase is planned for March 1, 2000.

Our city is currently studying a proposal for the construction of a cross-wind runway at the airport. Our airport is a valuable asset to our community and it is one of the best in the area. I would like to see a cross-wind runway constructed. I feel it is needed and it could spur future growth of our city. However, I don't feel our tax dollars should be spent to build it. We need to find alternative ways to fund the project if we proceed. Some possibilities would be a surcharge on passenger tickets, a shipping fee on cargo, and a hangar fee surcharge.

My vision for Thief River Falls is big, but attainable. I would like to see Thief River Falls THE regional shopping hub. I want to see current ordinances reviewed and modified to stimulate economic growth. I want to make it easier for current businesses to expand and for new businesses to develop. It should also be easier for homeowners to build or expand. I would like to see a railroad underpass built in the future, when we can afford it. I would also like to see another bridge built, and I don't see Greenwood Street as the solution: Let's build it in an area that is undeveloped so we can see expansion.

We need to work hard to lower our property tax burden. We need to expand our tax base, control our spending, and pay our bills. We need to have the second lowest property taxes in the state.

I want to keep the public informed. I want all city council meeting agendas published in the newspaper, so you can attend if an issue concerns you. I would also support city council meetings to be held at a later time if more people would attend. I want to represent you, the people of Thief River Falls on the council.

I invite your input, so call me or write a letter with your questions or concerns. You will be heard. I want to represent YOU!

I want to thank you for all of your support and The Times for this opportunity to express my thoughts and concerns.

Vote for Conrad Holten on November 2, 1999. "Together we will shape the future!"

ridge, and Thief River Falls. Between stints of teaching, I worked in real estate at Flynn Realty and Northland Realty. Presently, I am a substitute teacher at Lincoln High school.

I am a member of St. Bernard's where I have served on the parish council, education committee, and served as the chairperson of The Women's Guild, and religious education program. Since last fall I have been working with students preparing for confirmation. In the Girl Scout program I was a troop leader and neighborhood chairperson. I am a member of the American Association of University Women and Delta Kappa Gamma.

I have always had some interest in government and have at times been actively involved in working for candidates. I have been a member of the Police Civil Service Commission for five years, and that experience has developed in me a greater interest in city government. I have followed some of the issues and have been attending some recent city council meetings. I think my background in real estate and education would be an asset as a council member. I would work hard for the best interests of the residents and the City of Thief River Falls.

National Transmission for 14 years. Before that, I worked with my father's business, Rantanen Flying Service, and the Highway 59 Fix-it Shop. My hobbies including hunting and fishing. I am an avid snowmobiler, race fan and also a member/driver of the CanAm Mini-Sprint Racing Association. I believe that my work history of the past 25 years qualifies me for the position I seek, having been involved with small business', management and working with the public on a daily basis.

It would be great to have the proposed cross-wind runway at the airport. Having experience in aviation, I understand the importance of this. Our airport is one of the best in the area and an asset to our community. I understand the FAA would pay a major portion of the cost of build it and the city's portion, comparatively, would not be that much, but we must also maintain it. I think it is a good deal for us and we should probably build it, but how are we going to pay for it? That could be tough given the fact that we are among the cities with the highest property taxes in the state. Also, we have one of the highest bonded indebtedness we've had in many years. Couldn't we come up with some innovative ways and help the airport pay for itself? For instance, I have heard some companies would like to build maintenance hangars for their aircraft here. If this is true, couldn't we generate some revenue from that?

Then there is the proposed Greenwood Street bridge. It would be good to help cut down congestion on First Street and such, but is that the right place to build it? In a developed area? Maybe we should plan to build it in an undeveloped area and let the area develop around it, when the time is right and the funding is available.

I know many large development companies and corporations have looked at our community to expand in. Why have they passed us by? We need to promote economic growth. Maybe offer some kinds of incentives that will welcome new business, as well as allow present ones to prosper. Let's review our ordinances and zoning laws, to make our city more attractive to developers and business. Then we will have new jobs for more people and we will develop a tax base for our needed projects.

We need to be very careful in the future with large projects. By the way, whatever happened to our community swimming pool? We definitely need to get control of our upwardly spiraling property taxes, special assessments and fees for city services. We do need to better manage funds, plan ahead and rebuild reserves. This in itself will help to encourage growth in our city.

Thief River Falls is a great place to live, work, play and raise a family. Let's see if we can make it even better for ourselves and future generations. I am more than willing to listen to your concerns and suggestions. Thank you for your support. I would also like to thank the Thief River Falls Times for the opportunity to express my opinions. I urge every citizen of our city to go to the polls Tuesday, November 2, 1999, and vote for the candidate of their choice.

and I also help with coaching of youth hockey.

I decided to run for city council because I believe the taxpayers should have more of a voice in major spending projects and see more accountability in the general operations of the city, which they haven't been involved with in the past. I will also try to do my best to stabilize the tax situation.

I feel Sunday liquor is not needed, as we have liquor available six days a week.

The Greenwood Street Bridge project should first concentrate on the overpass for emergency vehicles so they can gain access to the east side of town. Then, they should proceed with the bridge at a future date when funds are available.

By all FAA standards and a survey done by an independent firm, a cross-wind runway is necessary to make the airport safer for pilots and passengers to land at our airport. It has also been documented to be a source of income for the city and the private business sector, but if the council elects to proceed with the project, it would need support from private industry.

I would also like to see council meetings moved from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. to see if we can have more community participation.

If elected I will do my best to address any and all concerns that may arise.

Please remember to exercise your right to vote, no matter which candidate you choose.

degree in business administration in 1982. My past employment record includes managing the former Fountain of Jewels and as a broker for the Equitable Life Insurance Co. My roots in the business community go back to 1929 when my grandparents John and Emma Narverud began the business I have managed for the past 13 years, Narverud Cleaners, Inc.

I am a member of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association and the Thief River Falls Trap Club and attend the Evangelical Covenant Church. I particularly enjoy spending time with my family, hunting, fishing, canoeing, trapshooting and jogging.

I believe our community has many assets including beautiful parks, walkways, public facilities, medical facilities, churches and schools. Our homeowners and business owners take great care in maintaining their homes and properties and we have a community in which we can all take pride. I believe we are fortunate in the many fine services which are provided through our various city agencies, including a very efficient and capable law enforcement staff. Their participation in drug and safety programs to our young people, and the Bike patrol are things we have come to rely on, and add to our feeling of safety and reliability.

Our public works departments are second to none in the services they provide, for example garbage and leaf pick-up. The street department does a fantastic job in snow removal and seems to get it up and off the streets almost as soon as it falls. Our utilities department did an outstanding job in restoring our power during the 1997 outage. All of these are services we have come to depend on and appreciate. Of course services such as these must be paid for and that's where our taxes come in.

Thief River Falls has long been recognized as a vital business and industrial center for Northwestern Minnesota. Our local businesses have much to offer in goods and services and we need to support and encourage them with our patronage. Holding the line on taxes will, I believe, promote new growth and expansion in our business area.

We need to continue our support of our local transportation facilities, in particular the regional airport and airline service which is an important link to places outside our area. Several of our local businesses rely on the services of the airport for daily transportation of goods and we are lucky to have such a wonderful facility.

The issue of Sunday liquor is one to be decided upon by the voters and not one for the city council to mandate. Whatever the outcome of the vote I will do my best to see that it is implemented.

In all issues facing our city, whether it be through citizen's vote or a decision of the council I believe we need to remember that as residents of the community we are in essence a "family". Thief River Falls is our "home." The effect whether good or bad for all members of that family need to be considered whenever decisions are made.

The privilege of representing the residents of Ward 1 is a responsibility I will accept with dedication and a listening ear. If elected I will be responsive to the situations and ideas not only of the residents of my ward but of all citizens. I encourage you to call me with your ideas at 681-3362. Together we can continue the tradition of building our community into a wonderful place in which to work and live.

Please remember to exercise your privilege and vote on Tuesday, November 2.

Thank you.

I am a Christian and I have strong Christian values and morals. My family attends Evangelical Free Church. I have been a deputy sheriff, and I know law enforcement. I am a former Boy Scout leader. I am a member of the Northwest Medical Center Association, the Pennington County Sportsman's Club, and a member and recruiter of the National Rifle Association.

The City of Thief River Falls has enough revenue creating departments to provide an adequate amount of money to supply our city's budget without adding a tax levy increase each year.

I am for a strong economy and an aggressive search for new business. If elected Alderman-at-Large, I will work effectively with law enforcement to reduce the availability of drugs in Thief River Falls. I will work to reduce property taxes, and to reduce city spending. I will work to bring balance in spending between city departments. I will work hard to get the community swimming pool built by donated funds of $181,000. This has been a long 14-year wait. It could be built in phases.

Most importantly, I will listen to the peoples' voice for city government decision-making, and be an honest voice for the people of Thief River Falls.

I need and would appreciate your support to represent the people of Thief River Falls in the upcoming election. Once again, I would like to thank The Times for this opportunity. Please go out and vote November 2. Your vote does count.

TRF.

Enough about me, you are reading this to find out about my views. Common sense and sticking to the job at hand is first and foremost. As a ward alderman, the job description is simple. Listen to the needs of your ward, provide information to your ward, and vote in your wards best interest. As a candidate I am limited to the amount of information I can receive about certain topics. The main issues I will work on if elected are the Greenwood Street issue, City Budgeting and Expenditures, The cross-wind runway at the airport, Sunday Liquor, and Solid Waste. First up is the Greenwood street project. A lot of discussion has happened in the city council chambers on this as well as a traffic study. The current pattern is to talk about the problem, then table the ideas for later. Solve the issue now. Yes or No, either way, stop putting it off for later. Some members say that the community size is not large enough for a project this size. This is limited thought. For a community to grow and attract new businesses and new tax paying members, it needs to keep an eye on the future. A city that is not growing and not developing is a shrinking and dying city. I look forward to working with the rest of the city council to resolve the issue of to build or not to build the bridge and railroad crossing.

Build the cross-wind runway. It increases revenue for the city and it increases the amount of products shipped from our city businesses. It's a good thing for our community.

With our current city budget, the city will be operating at a deficit of $500,000.00. That's a lot of money. When this issue was raised at a recent city council meeting, the first question raised was "How much do we need to raise taxes to cover this"? Amazing! Why didn't they consider reducing spending first? Reducing the amount of spending was not even voiced at this meeting! In all of history, no community or civilization has ever taxed its way out of debt. If elected I hope to change this process of raising taxes first.

You will have a chance to vote for yourself on the issue of Sunday liquor on November 2nd. I don't drink myself but it should be allowed. Now I know that goes against traditional thinking, but if controlled properly, it gives you a freedom you didn't have in the past. To have the new ability to go to an establishment and have a beer while you watch the game, or converse over dinner with a glass of wine is a good thing. Plus it increases money spent in our community; money spent in our businesses.

I mentioned Solid Waste as an issue. It may not be one now, but it will be. I've been studying Swis-Penn-Co for almost a year now and have talked with the solid waste leaders. S.P.C is at the threshold of closing. If the current operator closes, Thief River will have to start its own recycling procedures. This means that the city will probably have to purchase household recycling bins for each and every dwelling. This will be mighty expensive to you and I, the taxpayer. When elected, I will be raising this issue immediately with the rest of the city counsel, and start working on solutions to keep your money in your pocket.

I don't have all of the answers to all of the city's problems, but with your help on Election Day, and your input throughout my term, we can make this city better for our children.

Who am I? I am Mark Staite and I believe in growth, development, and fiscal responsibility.

field. This has given me the training and experience of working with others to help resolve problems and create positive solutions. Presently I am employed in the customer service department at Digi-Key. Although I have not been in political office before, I have been involved in planning and running city events and activities in the past through the Thief River Falls Jaycees.

Having spent six years as a manager for CP Rail working throughout the United States and Canada, has enabled me to spend time in other cities. This time has allowed me to observe different community's growths, concerns and solutions.

One of my concerns is the future plan of the city auditorium. If it is not going to be used for long-term city use, is it worth the cost of upgrade and maintenance? Secondly, an outdoor swimming facility is long over due. Our youth and adults deserve a safe and clean facility to utilize and enjoy. Securing state and alternative funding would be a priority of mine. Treatment and disposal of wastes and refuse will always be an increasing issue. Fiscal conservation, monitoring, and reviewing city purchases and expenses would help to provide the city with a balanced budget.

Although Thief River Falls is not a large city, I believe it has the opportunities and benefits of larger cities, with the safety, economy, and friendliness of a smaller community. I've had numerous chances to transfer to other large communities with CP Rail, but choose to live in Thief River Falls. There is a lot to be proud of in this community without the complications associated with large cities, and I am proud to be a part of it. I would appreciate the privilege to represent you as your Ward 1 city council alderman.

how I feel. We have made some expensive choices on some projects that have not been to the approval of the public. I know that it is hard to satisfy everyone and everybody has their opinion on how things should be done. When I vote, I try to think what is best for the third ward, but also what is best for the city overall.

As I said, I was born in Thief River Falls and graduated from Lincoln High School. Other than one year at the University of Minnesota, I have lived here. I am the President of Wennbergs, Inc., a welding and machine shop, my wife and I have owned since 1965. My wife Linda is a registered nurse at Northwest Medical Center. We have two children, Paul, who is a cardiologist at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, and Karin, who is a registered occupational therapist in Decatur, IL. Paul and his wife Julie have two sons Erik, 6, and Matthew, 2 months. Karin and her husband Randy Sykes have one son Adam, 4.

My personal qualifications date back to 1974 when I first joined the volunteer fire department—and retired after 20 years. I also was appointed to the Park and Recreation Board in 1977. In 1973, I helped start the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association and coached the first Bantam team that year. I have coached all levels of hockey from squirts to high school and I refereed high school and college hockey for many years. I co-chaired the 1996 Centennial committee and served on the initial Thief River Falls Education Foundation. In 1994, I was elected to the Prowler Hall of Fame and in 1996 I received the Minnesota Recreation and Park Association Board and Commission Award. I presently serve on the Park and Recreation committee, Public Safety committee, Administrative Services committee, Pennington County Historical Society, and I am a member of the Northwest Medical Association.

I am concerned with the increasing taxes that the residents of Thief River Falls are paying. I think we have to be very concerned with the up-coming projects that are in the plans for our city.

We have more candidates running this year than we have had in the past, so remember that your vote is very important. Please vote on November 2nd.

Technological advances pose challenges to legislators

by Sen. Roger Moe

Examples of how technology is changing our lives abounds in workplaces, in schools and in our homes. These technological advances have changed the way we gather information and communicate in our daily lives.

These basic changes raise a variety of issues that present new challenges to legislators. In some ways, we can harness technology to improve the legislative process, making governance as accessible to the general public as possible. In other ways, lawmakers are challenged to safeguard against abuses and loss of personal privacy.

A significant advance in the Minnesota Senate came quietly this year. Senators now have laptop computers on their desks in the Senate chamber, and many of us closely monitor our e-mail during floor sessions. Constituents throughout the state can follow these sessions live on cable or broadcast television, then e-mail us their questions and comments.

By delivering e-mail directly to senators while they are deliberating on an issue in the Senate chamber, we are leveling the playing field for the general public. Now, the lobbyists who gather just outside the chamber doors often have less access than constituents who are contacting their senator on the inside.

The use of laptop computers has greatly improved the efficiency of legislative bill processing because less bill copying is necessary. This change saved the Senate $2,000 in copying costs at the end of the 1999 legislative session and made it possible to avoid an expensive special session. We simply would not have processed all of our work on time without computer access to the bills.

Use of the Internet to gather a great variety of information from government is another example of technology's positive impact. An extensive listing of state government services and information is available via the Internet. A good starting point is a web site maintained by the Legislative Reference Library at <www.library.leg.state.mn.us/lrl/links/links.htm>.

In my opinion, state and local governments could do considerably more to make productive use of new technologies and serve the public better. In particular, the state could use technology to make it easier to renew licenses and perform other common transactions.

Of course, the consequences of changes in technology are not always positive.

In recent months, issues related to personal privacy, consumer protection and security have arisen in Minnesota and across the nation. The Senate Subcommittee on Telecommunications and Technology held a hearing this month on a recently discovered problems relating to the new, faster Internet connections now available in some areas. These are connections made available through cable TV systems and special high-speed telephone lines.

Unlike typical dial-up Internet connections through telephone modems, these high-speed systems are not as secure. In fact, all of the files on the connected computer can be accessed by others unless precautions are taken. If the businesses involved in offering these insecure connections don't take the proper actions to inform customers or provide security, they will be inviting state intervention to ensure that consumers are better protected.

As telecommunications deregulation takes hold and technology evolves, new concerns such as the Internet security problem continually arise. While technological advances tend to ensure that these problems are worked out over time, it is apparent that government has a role in encouraging companies to take responsibility for the flaws in their new products.

Safeguarding your private financial information and other privacy concerns often are related to technological advances. The recent actions taken by Attorney General Mike Hatch against banks that sell private financial information is an example of the problem. Other abuses almost certainly exist, but have not come to light. A Senate committee already is exploring issues surrounding data privacy and new technologies, and it is highly likely that legislation will be considered during the 2000 Legislative Session.

The Legislature has growing responsibilities regarding emerging technologies. Our greatest challenge is to harness the enormous benefits technology offers, while limiting the potential for negative consequences such as loss of privacy and security.

Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs...

Ridgewater ends NCTC season, 19-9

First time the two teams met earlier this fall, Ridgewater rushed for over 300 yards in a 41-7 win over Northland at Willmar. The Pioneers were determined not to give up those kinds of yards when the two teams lined up for a post-season rematch Saturday in Thief River Falls. They accomplished that goal. But unfortunately for host Northland, Ridgewater found other means to win the Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoff semifinal game 19-9.

"If they're going to beat us, they're going to throw the ball," said Northland coach Dan Willoughby earlier in the week. And that's exactly what Ridgewater did. The visitors wound up with respectable, if unspectacular, 182 rushing yards. More importantly, they passed for 175 yards.

"We wanted them to throw the football," Willoughby repeated after the loss that ended a 6-3 season for the Northern Division champion Pioneers. "They ran all over us down there, so we knew for us to win this time, we had to stop their running game and force them to throw the ball. We thought if we could stop the run, we'll have a good chance to win the game."

But Willoughby and the Pioneers weren't prepared for Danny LaMott to come off the bench and throw for 134 yards.

"They were successful with the passing game," acknowledged Willoughby. "They knew what we were going to do defensively, and they found a way to beat us."

MCCC Football Playoffs
■ Semifinals, Saturday, Oct. 23 - Ridgewater 19, Northland 9; Rochester 39, Vermilion 0
■ Championship Saturday, Oct. 30 - Ridgewater vs. Rochester, 1 p.m. at the University of Minnesota-Duluth

Ridgewater coach John Viaa was forced to make a quarterback change after Northland linebacker Daryl Wickenfuss bounced starter Adam Hoffman off the hard Prowler Field surface on a second quarter blitz. However, it was not unfamiliar territory for LaMott, who played extensively during the year when Hoffman was sidelined by an injury.

Northland opened the scoring on a 26-yard first quarter Ryan Polzinn field goal.

But Ridgewater went into halftime with a 13-3 edge when Matt Weller scored on an 11-yard run and LaMott added a 3-yard score on a quarterback keeper.

It became 19-3 on a 20-yard Aaron Schultz touchdown run in the third quarter.

Northland pulled within 19-13 when Scott Olsen scored on a 6-yard pass from Dan Mosack with eight minutes left in the game. Five minutes later the Pioneers were back at the Ridgewater 20, but lost the ball on a handoff.

That was the second Northland scoring threat erased by a mix-up in the backfield. Down 13-3 early in the fourth quarter, the Pioneers picked off LaMott at the Ridgewater 16, only to give the ball right back on the next play.

"We had a couple of turnovers that really hurt," noted Willoughby. "In a game like this, you need a couple of breaks, and you have to capitalize on them. We did get a break or two but we didn't do anything with them."

Northland's normally strong ground game was limited to 168 yards for the day. The Pioneers' offense didn't get going until Mosack, who missed most of the second half of the season with a shoulder injury, was used in relief of starting quarterback Mike Svojanovski in the second half. Mosack was 7-for-10 passing for 123 yards.

"Ben came in and gave us a lift," said Willoughby. "He did a nice job. We had trouble running the ball against them. That's going to happen when you're not as big as the other team. We're probably one of the smallest teams in the state, and they have a huge line. We had trouble putting any sustained drives together. They gave us the pass, but we couldn't take advantage of it until Ben came in and started throwing the ball."

Ridgewater will meet Rochester in the MCCC state finals Saturday at the University of Minnesota-Duluth. The Yellowjackets shut out Vermilion 39-0 in the other first round semifinal. Rochester and Ridgewater finished 1-2 in the Southern Division during the year with 8-0 and 7-1 records, respectively. Northland and Vermilion were the top two teams in the Northern Division at 6-2 and 5-3.

"The teams with the two best records in the state are playing for the title," noted Willoughby. "I give a lot of credit to Ridgewater. They came in here and played a real good football game. But I thought we played well, too. They (Ridgewater) won the game; we didn't lose it."

■ First round Saturday, Oct. 23 - Red Lake County Central 36, Norman County East 16; East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 27, Norman County West 26.
■ Semifinals Friday, Oct. 29 - Red Lake County Central vs. Climax/Fisher, 7 p.m. at Climax; East Grand Forks Sacred Heart vs. Win-E-Mac, 7 p.m., at Erskine
■ Championship Wednesday, Nov. 3 - at Fargodome, 10 a.m.

Red Lake County Central spotted Norman County East an early two-touchdown edge Saturday before coming back to double the Eagles 36-18 in the first round of the 1999 Section 7 Nine-Man high school football playoffs.

The come-from-behind effort advances the defending champion Mustangs into the sectional semifinals Friday against Climax/Fisher, a team that edged Red Lake County Central 21-20 in a late-season match-up. The game will be played at 7 p.m. at Climax. The Knights are the No. 2 seed in the six-team playoff field; the Mustangs, who are now 5-4, are seeded No. 3.

Norman County East capped a game-opening drive with a 1-yard Aaron Werpy touchdown and came back with a carbon-copy effort to make it 12-0 early in the second quarter.

But a drive-finishing 12-yard touchdown run by Andy Gustafson put Red Lake County Central on the board, and they added a 23-yard Carl Dagstad-to-Heath Rosten scoring pass.

The difference at halftime was two-point conversion runs by the Mustangs' Matt Hruby and Wade Westlake. The Panthers were 0-for-2 in the first half conversion department.

Red Lake County Central then took over in the second half. The Mustangs put together a 12-play drive to open the third quarter, leading to a 4-yard Hruby touchdown and a 24-12 cushion.

The Eagles moved the ball to the Mustangs' 10 before running out of downs, and when Hruby broke off an 88-yard run on the next play, Red Lake County Central had turned what could have been a one-touchdown battle into a 30-12 spread.

Final straw came when, after a 4-yard Anthony Awender touchdown run had pulled Norman County East within 30-18, Hruby found the handle on a bouncing on-side kick and went 60 yards for a touchdown.

"It was a slow start," acknowledged Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "But defensively we were able to stop them when we had to, and after we got rolling offensively, they had trouble stopping us."

Red Lake County Central ran the ball well, netted 342 yards on 43 rushing attempts. A three-pronged attack featured Hruby with 133 yards on 12 carries, Gustafson 126 yards on 16 attempts, and Westlake with 83 yards on 13 runs. The winners were just 1-for-2 in the air for 23 yards.

The Mustangs' defense was led by Westlake with 11 tackles and 8 assisted stops; Adam Koralewski, 10 tackles, 4 assists; Brent Nelson, 10 tackles, 3 assists; Hruby, 9 tackles, 6 assists; and Chris Lessard, who had an interception.

Gators, Ponies have back-to-back games

Midway through the 1999 high school football season Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was hurting. With injured front line players on the sidelines, the Gators watched their record dip to 1-3. But when their health improved, so did the victory total – three straight regular season-ending wins that evened the B/G-MR record at 4-4 heading into post-season play.

The Gators beat Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 24-8 Wednesday to close the schedule. The two teams then drew each other as Tuesday first round foes in the Section 8A playoffs. The winner will face either Cass Lake-Bena or Fertile-Beltrami in the Saturday Semifinals.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and Warren-Alvarado-Oslo were locked in a scoreless tie at the close of the first quarter, but the Gators had a two-touchdown cushion at halftime and that lead was never challenged in the second half.

"Our linemen had a lot of problems in the first quarter," explained Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "After we made some adjustments, their (Ponies) yardage tapered off."

David Truscinski scored the game's first touchdown on a 7-yard run, then threw touchdown passes covering 68 yards to Kagen Waage and 30 yards to Josh Smith. He finished 7-for-9 in the passing department for 158 yards. The two incompletions were dropped passes, pointed out Neibauer.

Smith caught three passes for 64 yards and was the Gators' leading ball carrier with 76 yards on 14 carries. Truscinski tacked on 69 yards (16 attempts) to the 131 yards the winners accumulated on 47 running plays.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo finished with 93 yards on the ground, but the Ponies had 94 in the first half and a minus-one yard rushing after intermission. The visitors did pick up 110 yards on 15-for-21 passing by Nathan Steer.

The win came at a price, with senior Kasey Scharf suffering a concussion and a neck injury. "That hurts," said Neibauer. "Kasey's our best lineman."

Mary Helen Houlihan named head coach of TRF boys swim team

Mary Helen Houlihan, who is nearing the end of her first fall as the Thief River Falls girls head high school swimming coach, will have the same role this winter with the Prowlers' boys program.

That announcement was made recently by Jim Sims, Director of Student Activities for School District 564.

Houlihan will succeed John Vakmanich, who resigned after one season as the Thief River Falls boys swimming coach last winter.

It was also announced that Roger Blank, a volunteer assistant the past two years, will be the assistant coach for the Thief River Falls boys swim program.

The coaching appointments, noted Sims, are pending school board approval.

TRF boys, girls to run in 8AA cross country meet scheduled at Alexandria

Thief River Falls will be part of a 14-team field Thursday for the 1999 Section 8AA boys and girls high school cross country meet at Alexandria. The girls will run at 4:30 p.m. The boys' race starts at 5.

Thief River Falls' regular season ended with an appearance at the Oct. 14 Hawley/Ulen-Hitterdal Invitational. The Prowlers were scheduled to finish the schedule at Park Rapids Monday, Oct. 18, but that meet was moved to the following day because of the weather, and Thief River Falls was not able to make accommodations for the change.

City league hockey teams to meet on Mon., Nov. 1

Organizational meeting for the 1999-2000 Thief River Falls Parks and Recreation Department men's city league hockey program will be held Monday, Nov. 1, beginning at 7 p.m. in the board room of the Municipal Service Center located at 803 South Barzen.

Team captains or managers are required to be at the meeting.

Jeremy Berg on BSU team

Jeremy Berg, a sophomore from Greenbush, was a member of the Bemidji State University men's golf team this fall.

Winner of a 12-gauge shotgun during the recent early goose season raffle in northwest Minnesota was Ron Johnson (right) of Thief River Falls. Chris Belzer from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources made the prize presentation.

Winner named in goose raffle

This September marked the first year there was an early Canada goose hunting season in northwest Minnesota. The season ran Sept. 4-15, with a bag limit of two geese per day.

Growing populations of locally breeding geese were the impetus for the new season. The hunt provided an extra opportunity for hunters to bag a few geese, while at the same time, keeping the local goose population in check, explained area Department of Natural Resources personnel. Expanding flocks of resident geese have caused serious crop depredation problems in other areas of Minnesota.

The season was held in early September to avoid harvesting geese that migrate into the area from Canada.

In order to determine if the new season was meeting its goal of harvesting local instead of migrant geese, the Department of Natural Resources asked hunters to voluntarily register their geese. DNR employees collected biological information from the birds – information that will be used to see if the hunt was a success.

A raffle was set up to encourage hunters to register their geese. Each time a hunter registered a goose, they were allowed one entry into the raffle. A total of 253 geese were registered in the Northwest Goose Zone. Seven prizes were awarded in the drawing, with Ron Johnson of Thief River Falls winning the grand prize – a 12-gauge Remington Express shotgun donated by the Minnesota Waterfowl Association.

Other prize winners included Bruce Anderson of Lakeshore and Virgil Erickson of Holt, who won wildlife prints donated by Ducks Unlimited and Geese Unlimited; Alan Severts of Gatzke, who won a dozen full-bodied goose field decoys; Kean Beito and Chase Pearson, both of Roseau, who won embroidered sweatshirts; and Chris Greenwald of Bemidji, who won a camouflage sweater. The decoys, sweatshirts and sweater were donated by the Minnesota Waterfowl Association.

Deer Hunters Association meeting set for Thursday

The Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association will hold its monthly meeting Thursday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m. at the Eagles Club.

Plans for the 1999 deer season, along with the Big Buck and Big Doe Contest, will be discussed.

Other subjects up for discussion include the St. Hilaire Buck Hunters Night Oct. 29, and the Warren Buck Hunters Round-Up Oct. 30.

Hunters are also reminded to contribute to the Hides for Habitat program by leaving deer hides at at one of the local drop-off sites in northwest Minnesota.

Recreational Skating Session 2 sign-up is scheduled Saturday

Thief River Falls Recreational Skating program registration for Session 2 will be held Saturday, Oct. 30, in the basement of the Old Arena.

Registration will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Those unable to sign up at that time should register at the Thief River Falls Parks and Recreation Department, located at 803 South Barzen. Lessons will start the week of Nov. 1.

For additional information, contact Ila Anderson, the Recreational Skating program director, at 681-2056.

Artists sought for 2001 Minnesota park permit featuring Old Mill area

Officials of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Parks and Recreation are looking for local artists interested in designing the 2001 Minnesota state park permit. The permit will feature Old Mill State Park, located east of Argyle in central Marshall County. The windshield-sticker permits have featured a different state park every year since 1964.

"We're especially looking for applications from local artists from northern Minnesota and the Red River Valley area," explained park manager Mary Broten. "We're asking interested artists to send us a resume and a photographic portfolio, with photos of several representative examples of their artwork."

The selected artist will be asked to produce one or more proposed designs incorporating two elements that are symbolic of the northern Minnesota prairie park: the white bottle gentian wildflower and the Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights.

"We want these two features to be a prominent part of the design," said Broten. "The original artwork can be in any medium, including creative photography, and almost any size. But the permit sticker itself will be approximately two by four inches, so the design will have to be useable in that size."

Original artwork and design will be used for the annual permit and imprinted on coffee mugs, t-shirts and other state park merchandise.

DNR NEWS

Look Out For Exotic Species

Waterfowl hunters are reminded to help prevent the spread of harmful exotic species by taking a few minutes to remove aquatic plants, small aquatic animals and mud from their equipment when they are out this fall. Such precautions can prevent the spread of purple loosestrife, Eurasian watermilfoil and zebra mussels that cause serious damage to habitat for fish, waterfowl and other wildlife.

According to Jay Rendall, DNR Exotic Species Program coordinator, waterfowl hunters should be aware that aquatic plants or zebra mussels cannot be legally carried in or on boats, or decoys in boats, when on public roads. However, the laws for aquatic plants include exceptions specifically for waterfowl hunting. Waterfowl hunters may continue to use emergent aquatic plants, such as cattails and bulrushes, cut above the waterline, for building blinds.

"Waterfowlers should assume that any aquatic plant could be potentially harmful and should not be transported from one marsh, lake, or river to another," said Rendall. "Also, zebra mussels and their tiny larvae can attach to aquatic plants, which could allow zebra mussels to be inadvertently spread to other waters."

DNR watercraft inspectors and conservation officers will be checking watercraft at accesses along the Mississippi River, and in areas around Brainerd, Bemidji, Alexandria and Duluth during the waterfowl season. They will be reminding hunters to clean aquatic vegetation off their boats and trailers.

Blue Devils fall prey to Cougars' passing attack in 40-8 game

■ Championship Wednesday, Nov 3 - at Fargodome, 12:30 p.m.

Kittson County North ended the 1999 high school football season for Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke with a 40-8 win Friday in the first round of the Section 8 Nine-Man playoffs.

The scoreboard final was similar to a 40-12 regular season Kittson County North win when the two teams met earlier this month at Goodridge. But the manner in which the victory was achieved was much different.

In the first encounter, the Cougars relied on runningback Bret Homstad, who carried 31 times for 330 yards and five touchdowns.

A late-season injury has slowed Homstad, but not the Kittson County North attack. This time the winners came up with a Luke Nordin-to-Mike Hill passing combination that clicked for touchdowns covering 30, 49, 32, and 75 yards. Nordin finished 8-for-11 in the air for 204 yards. Hill caught 6 passes for 191 yards. They both ticked on a rushing touchdown in a game that was 20-8 at halftime and 32-8 through three quarters.

Lane Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke score came on a 5-yard Dustin Marquis run in the first quarter. Marquis finished with 81 yards on 22 carries, while Chad Johnson netted 77 yards on 16 attempts.

The loss ended a 1-7 season for the Blue Devils, who beat Tri-County 36-0, in the 1999 regular season finale.

Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes area are stocked with lake sturgeon from Rainy River

For the third season in as many years, fisheries personnel from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will be netting juvenile lake sturgeon from the Rainy River this fall and stocking them into the Ottertail River and Detroit Lake in west-central Minnesota.

Beginning the third week of September, up to 300 young sturgeon - measuring 22 to 32 inches in length and weighing from two to six pounds -- will be stocked into the Ottertail River below the Orwell Dam near Fergus Falls, and into Big Detroit Lake at Detroit Lakes.

Both Detroit Lake and the Ottertail River are part of the watershed area for the Red River of the North. The long-term DNR fisheries management plan for the Red River and it's connected waters calls for stocking juvenile sturgeon during five consecutive years. The stocking project has been coordinated through the Red River Fisheries Steering Committee.

Stocked sturgeon are fitted with an individually numbered, yellow, disk-like tag wired to the base of their dorsal fin with stainless steel wire, which does not harm the fish. Angler 's must release any sturgeon that they catch in the Red River and tributary waters, and are asked to report the tag number and location of the catch to the Minnesota DNR, the North Dakota Game and Fish Department, or the Manitoba Ministry of Natural Resources.

Prior to the 20th Century, lake sturgeon thrived in the Red River and in most of the larger lakes and rivers that drain into the Red. In the early 1900s, however, sturgeon populations in the Red River and it's tributaries were greatly reduced by over fishing. Construction of dams, increased water pollution, channelization of rivers and streams, and other water development projects gradually eliminated most of the remaining Red River sturgeon.

Along with reintroducing young sturgeon to areas where they once were common, DNR fisheries managers are working to remove or renovate dams considered to be critical barriers to fish movement in the Red River system.

Young sturgeon used in the stocking effort are being netted at 10 different locations along the Rainy River near Baudette. Natural reproduction of lake sturgeon in the Rainy River has been very good in recent years and juvenile lake sturgeon are abundant.

According to recent studies, sturgeon from the Rainy River are genetically suitable for introduction to the Red River, with both river systems being part of the Hudson Bay watershed.

DNR NEWS

Con-Con Management Areas

Because of a recent determination that legislative action is required to place Con-Con lands into formal wildlife management area status, the DNR is suspending enforcement of the public use rules applicable to Con-Con WMAs designated after 1986. This action will affect a portion of wildlife management area lands in Beltrami, Lake of the Woods, Marshall and Roseau counties, pending final designations by the Minnesota Legislature.

Primary use rules that will not be enforced relate to use of all-terrain vehicles, permanent tree stands, camping and target shooting on wildlife management areas. Hunting and fishing regulations continue to apply on these lands in the same manner as in other areas of the state.

Specific northwest Minnesota areas where WMA use rule enforcement is suspended include:

■ Beltrami County - enforcement of WMA use rules will be suspended in roughly the northwestern-most six townships of Beltrami County. The area affected is west a line beginning at the junction of State Trunk Highway 89 and the north boundary of the Red Lake Indian Reservation, then northwesterly along Highway 89 to Fourtown, then northerly from Fourtown to the north boundary of the county (following County Highway 44, County Road 704 and Dick's Parkway State Forest Road). WMA use rules will continue to be enforced on WMAs in the remainder of the county, including the Red Lake Wildlife Management Area.

■ Lake of the Woods County - WMA use rules will not be enforced on any lands that are currently posted as WMA in Lake of the Woods County, except four areas where there are no Con-Con areas in dispute and the rules will continue to be enforced: 1) Bemhoft WMA, located on Long Point about two miles west of Lude; 2) Rako WMA, located in southeastern Lake of the Woods County approximately two miles west of State Trunk Highway 72 and approximately 18 miles south of Baudette; 3) Red Lake WMA, located in southwestern Lake of the Woods County; 4) Silver Creek WMA, located about three miles southwest of Clementson.

■ Marshall County - enforcement of WMA use rules will be suspended in that part of southeastern Marshall County located south of County Highway 6 (old County Road 133) and east of State Trunk Highways 89 and 219; and an area encompassing Como and Huntly townships, just north of Middle River (from the north boundary of the county south along County Road 118 to County Highway 6, then east on County Highway 6 to County Road 125, then due north along County Road 125 and the east range line of Township 158, Range 42 to the Roseau county line). In the remainder of the county, any previously posted areas that contain Con-Con acreage will have the WMA signs covered. WMA use rules will continue to be enforced on lands remaining posted as WMA, including Thief Lake, East Park, Eckvoll and Elm Lake WMAs.

■ Roseau County - enforcement of WMA use rules will occur on all areas in Roseau County that remain posted as WMA. Any previously posted areas that contain disputed Con-Con acreage will have the WMA signs covered and WMA use rules will not be enforced.

Con-Con lands are state-owned lands that Minnesota received in exchange for paying off ditch bonds issued by seven Minnesota counties in the early 1930s. According to state law, these lands are to be used for conservation purposes and managed by the DNR. Over the years, nearly 75 percent of these lands have been designated as management units or sold—to private landowners, but some areas still remain undesignated.

As previously announced, much of the remaining Con-Con land is now being proposed for designation as state forest, with the rest of the acres being proposed for designation as wildlife management areas or for land exchange. None of the remaining undesignated Con-Con acres are being proposed as scientific and natural areas or state parks.

The DNR will recommend the proposed designation changes to the Minnesota Legislature for consideration in the 2000 session. The suspension of enforcement of WMA use rules in these areas is an interim measure until the Legislature acts.

Hunting Opportunities

Some hunters may view it as telling them what not to do. Tim Bremicker, chief of the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Section, sees the 1999 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook as a growing list of the many things hunters can do. "I like to think of it as our catalog of opportunities," said. Bremicker. "This booklet has been getting thicker over the past several years, and the main reason is that we've kept adding more and more hunting options."

Deer hunters, for example, now have 23 special permit areas for firearms deer hunters, a multi-zone buck license, seven special permit areas for muzzleloaders, and five special archery hunts, as well as special provisions for youth under age 16 and hunters with disabilities.

"These opportunities just didn't exist 30 years ago," Bremicker said. In addition, he said, the DNR has added in recent years a fall wild turkey season, an expanded bear season, and both early and late Canada goose seasons. "You can now hunt geese somewhere in Minnesota from early September until almost Christmas," Bremicker said.

Some hunters complain that the hunting regulations have grown too complex. Bremicker agrees that they are more complicated than 30 years ago, but he points out that the complexity is primarily a result of the DNR providing more hunting recreation.

"Back in the 1950s and '60s, you didn't have to apply for an antlerless permit and select which permit area you wanted to hunt in," Bremicker said. "Then again, back then we had to close part or all of the deer season south of I-94 practically every other year. So maybe it's more complicated today, but you sure get to hunt more than you used to."

Besides listing special hunting seasons, the regulations booklet also provides information such as which state game refuges and scientific and natural areas are open to hunting, addresses and regulations for all national wildlife refuges, and a guide on how to find public land open to hunting.

Hunters interested in the what the DNR does with their license dollars to manage wildlife can find information at the back of the booklet on wildlife programs, how the DNR manages deer, the DNR web site as well as a list of the most recent habitat management accomplishments.

"This booklet summarizes what we do for the Minnesota hunter," Bremicker said. "It also provides information you need to hunt legally and safely. If you haven't sat down and read through this in a while, I urge you to take the time to become familiar with Minnesota hunting-related laws and the wealth of hunting opportunities now available to hunters."

OUTDOOR NEWS

State Park Newspaper

Looking for suggestions on great places in Minnesota to see fall colors this year, great hiking trails, or updates on what's new in state parks? Then pick up a free copy of the fall State Park Traveler newspaper, a 16-page tabloid-size publication that contains news about the parks as well as program information on interpretive programs and activities taking place in the parks this fall and early winter.

Those who purchased a Minnesota state park annual permit may have received a free copy of the Traveler in the mail. Copies of the publication are also available at all state parks and at tourist information centers across the state. To be put on the mailing list, be sure to tell DNR staff when you purchase the annual vehicle permit that you want to receive the Traveler.

Pheasant Habitat Stamp

Image of a rooster pheasant painted by Scot Storm of Sartell will be featured on the 18th Minnesota Pheasant Habitat Stamp. The painting was chosen as the winning design from among 36 entries in the Year 2000 stamp contest sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

This is the first win for Storm, although he has been among finalists in several past DNR stamp design contests, including second place finishes in the Pheasant Stamp and Migratory Waterfowl stamp contests. He made painting his full-time career in June. Eighteen entries advanced into the second stage of the Pheasant Habitat Stamp design contest, from which six finalists were selected during judging at the DNR headquarters in St. Paul Sept. 23.

Other finalists were John Freiberg of Mounds View, who finished second; Nick Reitzel of St. Louis Park, third; Thomas Moen of Golden Valley and Stephen Hamrick of Lakeville, tied for fourth; and Ronald J. Engebretson, Owatonna, sixth.

Five-member panel of judges included Kurt Haroldson, a DNR wildlife biologist in Madelia; Bill Daily, Steele County Chapter president of Minnesota Pheasants Forever; Dee Marks, editor of Wildlife Art Magazine in Edina; Mary Mueller, a McLeod County farmer and Pheasants Forever habitat chairperson for the McLeod County Chapter; and John Edstrom, Pheasants Forever national office merchandise buyer.

The Pheasant Habitat Stamp is required for all Minnesota pheasant hunters ages 18 through 65. Stamp sales generate between $500,000 and $600,000 per year for pheasant habitat management. The DNR offers no financial reward to the stamp design contest winner, but the winning artist retains the right to reproduce and market the design.

Orchestras to present annual falls concerts

Franklin Middle School and Lincoln High School Orchestras will be presenting their annual fall concert on Monday, November 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln High School auditorium. The concert is free and the public is invited to attend. Although the concert features many different kinds of music, every group will be playing a traditional folk melody or fiddle tune, which have been traditionally played at harvest time across the Western world.

The Franklin Middle School sixth grade orchestra will open with "America, The Beautiful," by Samuel A. Ward. They will then play an arrangement of the fiddle tune "Bile Them Cabbage Down", which is one of the first fiddle tunes many violinists learn. They will close their part of the concert by playing "Frog in a Tree" by Edmund J. Siennicki, which is another fiddle tune written for orchestra.

The Franklin Middle School seventh grade orchestra will play "La Rejouissance" by G. F. Handel, a lively little tune from the "Royal Fireworks Music" written for King George of England. They will then play the famous "Can-Can" from the opera "Orpheus in the Underworld" by Jaques Offenbach. It is played during a vigorous dance in that scene of the opera. They will close their part of the program by playing "Cindy," an American folk song arranged by Corrie Lane Grusselle.

The Franklin Middle School eighth grade orchestra starts with "Dramatic Essay" by Mark Williams. "Dramatic Essay", features many dynamic and tempo changes, with syncopation and driving rhythms. They will then play "Two Moods" by Igor Stravinsky. Stravinsky tried many different techniques to achieve his sound, which include harmonics, ostinatos, and time changes in this particular piece of music. They will close their part of the concert by playing "Black and White Rag" by George Botsford. "Black and White Rag" combines many fiddling techniques, including slides and a walking bass.

The Lincoln High School orchestra will open their part of the program by playing "Brook Green Suite" by Gustav Holst. Holst, an English composer, got his material for the "Brook Green Suite" by listening to English folk melodies. The "Prelude" has a lively folk melody, and the "Air" is reminiscent of medieval times. The "Dance" concludes the suite and sounds like a fiddler's jig. "Legend", a modern work by David O'Fallon, is the next song on the program. The harmonies and rhythms are reminiscent of modern rock music of today, with a slow contrasting section in the middle.

The Thief River Falls Youth Symphony will conclude the program with the famous "Hungarian Rhapsody #2" by Franz Liszt. Liszt was one of the most famous pianists of the 19th century, and was considered by many to be the best. The Rhapsody was originally written for piano, but exists now in many orchestral arrangements.

Marshall County Central District joins Academic League

Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) has announced that Marshall County Central School District's membership in the 1999-2000 Academic League.

As a service of the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation, the Academic League provides assistance to public and non-public schools in planning and delivering organized challenges, recognitions and enrichment opportunities for their elementary and secondary students. Implemented in 1989, the Academic League provides a framework which enables schools to involve students in a multitude of high quality activities.

"The Academic League is about increasing student achievement, primarily through the use of academic activities such as Odyssey of the Mind or Academic Decathlon. Marshall County Central School District should be commended for joining other districts in a visible support of valuing these kinds of activities as integral parts of their community's offerings to its children," comments Newell Searle.

"Membership in the Academic League provides a wonderful opportunity for schools to network with each other as well as involve volunteers and community organizations in the promotion of academic excellence," Greg Vandal, co-chair of MAEF's Academic League Council, noted. "When communities encourage and support academic activities and publicly recognize academic achievements, everyone benefits — students, parents, teachers and the community as a whole."

Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) is a non-profit, public-private partnership, created in 1983 by legislative statute to be the primary advocate for the promotion and recognition of academic excellence in all schools and communities in the State of Minnesota.

The THE TIMES SECOND FRONT

Volume 88, Number 43 Wednesday, October 27, 1999

Bruce Brorson, Red River Trade Corridor, senior associate for technology, was the guest speaker at a luncheon in Thief River Falls Monday celebrating Manufacturers Week. The topic of Broroson's speech was eCommerce, or the future of commerce on the Internet

August rates of unemployment down in State/region from July

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 2.7 percent in August, down from July's revised rate of 3.0 percent, but up from last year's 2.4 percent rate. The state's unadjusted unemployment rate was 2.3 percent in August, also down from last month (2.7 percent), but up from last year's 2.0 percent, according to the Minnesota Employment Review, a publication of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security Research and Statistics Office.

Nationally, the rate of unemployment was 4.2 percent in August, down from 4.3 percent in July, and down from 4.5 percent in August of 1998.

In Region One, which includes the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau, the rate of unemployment dropped from 4.5 percent in July to 3.8 percent in August. Although the rate of unemployment dropped during the past month, the rate of unemployment for August is higher this year than last year (3.3 percent).

In Region One, the county with the lowest rate of unemployment during August was Roseau at 2.6 percent, a drop from 3.2 percent in July 1999. The county with the highest rate of unemployment in the region was Red Lake at 7.4 percent, which is a drop from 7.9 percent the previous month.

All counties in Region One experienced a decline in the rate of unemployment. By county, the following rates of unemployment were recorded in August: Kittson, 4.9 percent, Marshall 5.8 percent, Norman 4.0 percent, Pennington 3.0 percent, Polk 3.6 percent, Red Lake 7.4 percent, and Roseau, 2.6 percent.

Labor Force estimates for Region One indicate that there were 45,347 workers in the workforce in August, a decline from 46,129 recorded in July of 1999.

Except for Region 3 (the seven-county area including Grand Rapids and Duluth), all of the regions saw unadjusted August rates that were lower than for the prior month. Region 3's August rate of 4.1, however, was up from 4.0 in July.

Region 11 (the Twin Cities area) again had the lowest rate at 1.9 percent, down from a revised 2.3 in July. Second-lowest was the area around Rochester (Region 10) with a rate of 2.1, down from July's 2.5 percent. The highest rate belongs to Region 2 (Bagley and Bemidji area) at 4.1 percent, down from 5.0 percent last month, and to Region 3, also at 4.1.

There were 20 counties with August unemployment rates of less than 2.0 percent: LeSueur, Anoka, Wright, Sherburne, Pope, and Blue Earth at 1.9; Scott, Pipestone, Carver and Lyon at 1.8; Wabasha, Wilkin, Cook, Mower, Olmsted, and Clay at 1.7; Dakota and Washington at 1.6; Stevens at 1.5; and Nicollet at 1.4 percent.

Industrial analysis. Job numbers grew by 4,200 at Minnesota's business establishments in August, an increase of 0.2 percent over the month. All major divisions except mining generated employment growth from July to August. The largest gains occurred in manufacturing, which added 2,900 jobs. Over the year, employment jumped 1.8 percent and produced 47,600 new jobs. Over-the-year growth rates have measured 1.8 or 1.9 percent for each of the past five months as sectors, such as manufacturing, most influenced by economic conditions in foreign markets have established and, in some cases, shown improvement.

Minnesota unemployment holds steady during the month of September

Minnesota Department of Economic Security Commissioner Earl Wilson announced that Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for September was 2.5 percent, down from last month's 2.7 percent and down from last year's 2.7. September continues the 3.0 percent-or-under trend started back in October 1997.

Non-farm employment grew by a seasonally adjusted two-tenths percent in September, an addition of 4,000 jobs from the prior month. Durable goods manufacturing continued to show strength for the second consecutive month, with seasonally adjusted employment increases of 1,100 this month and 1,900 last month. Over-the-year non-farm employment growth in September quickened to 2.2 percent from August's 1.8 percent (revised), mainly because last year's airline pilot strike depressed September 1998 employment levels.

The state's unadjusted unemployment rate was 2.6 percent in September, up from last month but down two-tenths percent from a year ago.

"We continue to add jobs and maintain low unemployment," said Governor Jesse Ventura. "Now, let's get the workforce we need trained for the 21st century!"

Minnesota is hardest working state in nation

A greater percentage of Minnesotans and, in particular, Minnesota women are in the workforce than in any other state in the nation, according to 1998 statistics released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"Without a doubt, Minnesota has some of the hardest working people," said Governor Jesse Ventura. "While this is great news, we can't rest now. Minnesota workers need to continue to improve their skills and learn new ones."

Underscoring the critical nature of the workforce shortage in this state, Minnesotans lead the nation with a 75.4 percent workforce participation rate or more than eight points higher than the national rate of 67.1 percent. Bolstering the state's overall rate, Minnesota women lead the nation with a 70.1 percent participation rate or more than 10 points higher than the national rate of 59.8 percent. In addition to thee rates, Minnesota's unemployment rate has remained at historic low levels.

"Minnesota workforce resources are stretched to the limit," said Commissioner Earl Wilson, Minnesota Department of Economic Security. "We need to work smarter and make the most of our existing workforce."

Colorado is second to Minnesota with a 74.5 percent overall workforce participation rate. Wisconsin has the second-highest participation rate for women (69 percent) and is third overall (74.4 percent).

The participation rate measures the proportion of the civilian non-institutionalized population that is either employed, or unemployed and actively looking for work.

TOPS urges adding fun to daily routine

Most of us could probably use a little more honest-to-goodness fun in our daily routine. That's not just an indulgence. In today's hectic world, it could be considered a necessity.

"When you inject fun into everyday life, you'll feel more alert, enjoy yourself more, and express yourself more honestly," said Gwenn Smith, a representative of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). "These qualities are important when making major lifestyle changes to lose or maintain weight."

Ways to increase your fun-quotient include:

- Do something just because you enjoy it. "It doesn't have to make you richer, smarter, a more effective parent, or whatever," Smith said.
- Cast a wider net. Smith advised, "Don't just stick with what you've always done. Aim for a completely new experience once in a while."
- Stay "in the moment. Concentrate on what you're seeing, hearing, smelling, feeling," Smith said.

To learn more about TOPS and to locate the chapter nearest you, call Gwenn Smith at 218-246-2180 or toll-free at 1-800-932-8677. Or log on to TOPS' Web site at www.tops.org for that information along with weight-loss tips, facts, and success stories.

Flu shot still best shot for preventing flu

The American Lung Association of Minnesota (ALAMN) recommends that Minnesotans who want to avoid the flu this winter get their flu shot between now and the middle of November. Flu shots are especially important for people at the highest risk for complications from the flu — and people in close contact with them.

High-risk individuals include the elderly and people with chronic health conditions such as asthma, lung disease, heart disease or diabetes. Other people that should get flu shots include health care workers, household members (including children) who live with people in high-risk groups and women who will be in their second or third month of pregnancy during the influenza season.

Unlike other respiratory infections such as the common cold, Influenza causes more severe illness. Typical symptoms of influenza include sudden onset of a high fever and respiratory symptoms such as cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, as well as headache, muscle aches, weakness and fatigue. Symptoms such as nausea, vomiting and diarrhea rarely accompany flu. The term "stomach flu" is an incorrect name. Stomach and intestinal illnesses, caused by bacteria and other microorganisms, are not the flu.

Medications known as anti-viral drugs are becoming more widely available. These drugs have been shown to reduce the length of time that a person has symptoms by 1-2 days. However, it is important to note that they are only available by prescription and must be started within 48 hours of illness to be effective.

"Ask your physician about the role of these medications in treating influenza," recommends Kristin Nichol, MD, MPH, chair of the Minnesota Coalition for Adult Immunization and Chief of Medicine at the Minneapolis VA Medical Center. "In some cases, they may be used to prevent the spread of flu in households, schools, or health care facilities."

"Flu shots remain the best way to prevent the flu," said Richard Woellner, MD, pulmonologist and member of the ALAMN board of directors. "They are inexpensive and readily available in most communities in Minnesota."

Minnesotans have several options when it comes to getting flu shots. Medical clinics may offer "walk-in" hours, the public health department conducts clinics at senior centers or community sites, and other retail outlets such as grocery stores, pharmacies and discount stores offer flu shot clinics. In addition, many employers offer flu shots at the workplace. Check your newspaper for community clinic listings or visit the ALAMN web site at www.alamn.org to find the nearest clinic. Information is also available by calling 651-227-8014 or 1-800-642-5864 in greater Minnesota.

On Sunday, the Kruegers and the Wenzels (all in their Green Bay Packer clothes) watched the game between the Packers and the Denver Broncos. After the game Ron and Kathy Juneau (Kathy in her bronco clothes) stopped in for a little fun! On Monday morning the Wenzels started back to West Bend.

Christian Womens' Club

On October 19, 1999 the Christian Womens' Club of Thief River Falls met at the Best Western Inn. After lunch we had a great program. The feature was "Fall First Aid", given by Betty Langlott of Thief River Falls. Betty was a teacher of nursing at the Thief River Falls college for 10 years and now is the new owner of Chapter 2 Bookstore in Thief River Falls.

Betty gave some great tips on first aid and gave a preview of some of the books offered in her bookstore. Please stop in and wish her well.

Our music was by Char Boyd. Her songs were "I'd Like To Teach The World To Sing" and "Thank You For Giving To The Lord". She sang so pretty.

The speaker was Bev Krusemork from Wadena. All enjoyed her story of growing up and how she came to the Lord.

Our next luncheon will be on November 12, 1999. Come and enjoy lunch with us. For reservations in the Plummer area call me (Kathy Juneau) at 465-4248.

Knowing about cancers can save your life

The cancers that most frequently affect women are breast, lung, colorectal, cervical, and skin cancer. Knowing about these cancers and how they can be detected early or prevented can save your life.

Breast cancer. More women in the United States are diagnosed with breast cancer every year than any other cancer. In 1996, it was estimated that 184,300 cases would be diagnosed and 44,300 women would die of the disease. Many of these lives could have been saved by early diagnosis.

Most women who get breast cancer have no family history of the disease or other risk factors. Breast cancer can occur at any age, but it becomes more common as women get older.

The earlier breast cancer is detected, the easier it is to treat. The American Cancer society recommends the following guidelines for early detection: Age 20-39 — breast self-examination every month, and exam by a health care professional every three years; Age 40-49 — Mammogram every 1-2 years, monthly breast self-exam, and an exam by a health care professional every year; Age 50 and older — mammogram every year, monthly breast self-exam, and an exam by a health care professional every year.

Lung cancer. Lung cancer is the second-most common cancer in women. It was estimated to claim the lives of over 64,000, more than any other cancer. Perhaps the greatest tragedy of lung cancer is that it can be almost totally prevented, but it still takes so many lives each year.

People who smoke are at the greatest risk of getting lung cancer and a host of other tobacco-related diseases such as heart disease, stroke, and emphysema. More than 85 percent of all lung cancers are caused by smoking. Other risk factors include exposure to certain chemicals, such as arsenic, and exposure to radon, asbestos, and radiation, especially in smokers.

Lung cancer is one of the few cancers that can be prevented, because almost all of it is caused by smoking. If you are a smoker, ask your doctor to help you quit. If you don't smoke, don't start.

Colorectal cancer. Colorectal cancer is a disease of the lower digestive tract. Advances in the detection and treatment of this cancer have made it very treatable if caught early.

Anyone is at risk for colorectal cancer. People with a family history of the disease or who have polyps in the colon or rectum or inflammatory bowel disease are at somewhat greater risk than the general population. People with a history of certain other cancers, such as breast cancer or endometrial cancer, are also at increased risk for colorectal cancer.

Most colorectal cancer begins as polyps which later become cancerous. These polyps can be detected and removed before they become cancer. In this sense, colorectal cancer is a disease which can be prevented. Diet also plays a role in this cancer. Eating food that is low in fat and high in fiber appears to lower the risk of colorectal cancer.

There have been remarkable advances in the treatment of this cancer, and very few survivors of the disease are required to have colostomies or wear external bags anymore.

Cervical cancer. Cervical cancer can affect any woman who is or has been sexually active. Risk of cervical cancer is higher in women who have had multiple sexual partners or in women whose partners have had multiple partners. Older women and women without access to regular medical care are especially vulnerable if they do not have regular Pap tests and gynecologic exams. Other women at high risk are those infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), women with genital warts, women with a history of other sexually transmitted diseases, such as chlamydia and gonorrhea, and women who smoke.

Thanks to the Pap test, cervical cancer has become a relatively rare cancer in the United States. A Pap test can detect changes in the cervix that can be treated before they become cancer. The Pap test is also very effective in detecting cervical cancer in its early stages before it has spread to other parts of the body, when it is highly curable.

Ovarian cancer. Ovarian cancer is the fifth most common cancer in women. It causes nearly 15,000 deaths a year, more than any other cancer of the female reproductive system. This is largely because it is a "silent" cancer with no obvious signs or symptoms until its late stages.

As with most cancers, the risk of getting ovarian cancer increases with age. Women who have never had children, women who have a family history of ovarian cancer, and women who have had breast cancer are at somewhat higher risk for this cancer. However, most women who get ovarian cancer do not have any of these risk factors.

Regular checkups are the best defense. Periodic, thorough pelvic exams are important. Unfortunately, there are no effective and proven tests for detecting the disease early, such as in the case with mammography, and breast cancer. The Pap smear, so effective in detecting cervical cancer in its late stages only rarely detects ovarian cancer and usually in its late stages.

Skin cancer. Although there are over 800,000 cases of skin cancer diagnosed each year, most of these cancers are easily treated and cured. One type of skin cancer, melanoma, is deadly and is increasing rapidly in both women and men.

People with fair skin, especially redheads, have a greater risk of getting this type of cancer than people with darker coloring, although anyone who spends a lot of time in the sun is at risk. People who have had close family members with a melanoma are at higher risk for this type of skin cancer as are people who had severe sunburns before the age of 18.

Most skin cancers can be prevented by avoiding prolonged exposure to the sun. Wear protective clothing — hats, long-sleeved shirts — and the use of sunscreen on all exposed parts of the skin. If you have children, protect them from the sun and don't let them get sunburned. Examine your skin regularly, and have a skin exam during your regular health checkups.

For more information about cancer please contact your local American Cancer Society branch in your area or call the Senior Linkage Line at 1-800-333-2433 to obtain information on the preventative screenings that Medicare will cover.

Get out and vote next Tuesday

Tuesday is your opportunity, your constitutional right, and obligation to get out and vote. Many of the candidates who provided first-person stories about their background and the issues they support, also urge you to get out and vote. Please get out and vote.

In 1997, the last election during which city council offices were up for election, a total of 3,766 votes were cast. That, however, was the year in which the School Board referendum was on the ballot. With the liquor issue on the ballot again, and 10 candidates and one write-in candidate on the ballot, there should be enough interest in this election to bring out many voters again. I can think of at least two factors that could affect turnout — the lack of advertising, especially in regards to the liquor issue, and the weather. I'm not sure which would be worse, a very cold and wet day, or a beautiful day that would allow everyone to get outside and do yard work.

In this edition of The Times we offer you the opportunity to learn, through first-hand personal letters to readers, who the candidates are and what issues they feel are important. I was very pleased with the candidates' letters. For many years I've tried to encourage candidates to address issues they feel are important. This year, many did!

Well here they are, my guesses. You thought I was going to endorse candidates? Get real! I personally know many of the candidates, and I consider them equally qualified to do the job they seek. Others I've had very little contact with, not because they aren't active in the community, but because our paths haven't cross. And, to be quite honest, an endorsement might do some of them more harm than good.

This is my message to those who I guess will win, and the same might be true for those who actually win: I'm doing you no favor, ask any past council representative. The hours are long, getting results - tedious and slow, and appreciation of a job well-done - almost non-existent. People are more willing to remember you for what you didn't do and the mistakes you made, than all the good you accomplish. On the other hand, you have my respect and the respect of many hard-working taxpayers for the job you will be doing as city council representative.

For those of you who are running and aren't elected, you have my thanks. You've validated my belief, generated hope where it was lacking, that there are people willing to serve others. Thank you!

When the election is over, I promise to eat crow (figuratively) where a poor guess was made, and crow where a good guess was made. No, I take that back. I won't crow if I make a good guess.

The Sunday Liquor issue: This issue has failed every time it has been brought before the voters. In 1977 it was defeated 509 to 1,689; in 1982 1,308 to 2,188; in 1985 653 to 1,356; in 1987 1,210 to 1,313; and in 1988 1,495 to 1,988. I expect it to fail by a close margin again. I sense that many people think six days is enough.

I promised I wouldn't make an endorsement for or against, but in my experience, many of the court cases today involve abuse of alcohol. That's my opinion.

Why would the issue fail otherwise? For whatever reason, whether it was reasoned or not, there haven't been any advertisements for the liquor issue, and I don't feel obligated to try and manufacture reasons why it should be approved.

Ward 1. For me, the toughest guess is who will win in Ward 1. The three candidates, Glen Kajewski, Dennis Nabben, and Steven Narverud, have been campaigning hard. Many yards are littered with signs, and I know they've been campaigning door-to-door. All three have experience that would be of great benefit to the city's taxpayers. I expect to see that this race will be really close, but I think it will be between Steven Narverud and Glen Kajewski. Because Glen seems to have been really working hard at campaigning, I'll give a tentative nod.

Ward 3. Guessing who will win in Ward 3 is probably the easiest guess. Sorry Mark, Dale Wennberg has been around a long time, personally knows the people in his ward, and is the incumbent. Dale, that was not a disparaging comment about your age. If anything is to be learned or gained from this experience Mark, the name recognition you receive from this election will help in the future.

Ward 5. Terry BlackLance was the only candidate running for Ward 5, until only recently. I had anticipated that knowing who would win in the fifth ward would also be easy, but a late write-in effort by Dennis Runtunen, has made the decision much more difficult. Both candidates would make good representatives, but I still believe that BlackLance has the upper hand because his name will be the only name on the ballot, and because he's been on the election campaign trail longer.

Representative-At-Large. Four good candidates are running for Representative-At-Large. That means all citizens in Thief River Falls will be able to vote for one of these four individuals. One individual I talked to said it would be good to have a woman on the council since Jean Heinrichs, who was the representative-at-large, decided not to run for re-election. The consensus among the people I have talked to also indicated that Elvera's experience and support among educators is important. It will be very interesting to watch the outcome of this race. Jerry Unruh has the "name recognition" I indicated earlier could be important in Mark Staite's future. I believe Holten and Meunier could win because of their vigorous campaigning they have done. The only other person with more signs in yards is Glen Kajewski, but that might be an illusion caused by the color of his sign. If voters are looking for help in deciding who they should vote for, I urge them to read the personal articles on the front page of this edition. Like I said earlier, they have touched on issues they feel strongly about. My guess? Elvera, by a inch.

Whoa, that's a lot to take in. We'll find out how I did in my guesses soon enough. The best thing of all, however, is that we, as taxpayers, can hardly lose in this election.

Big machines have been rolling in our corner of town lately. Road repair by the trailer court and the 8-plex was underway. The digging for a new house on Healy Street was done while we were away; but now cement trucks and utility trucks plus the building trades students from school have been hard at work. Add to that a beautiful double-wide pre-fab house, just newly arrived on Minnesota street. Linda Loranson is the proud owner of this house. Our small town is growing, I do believe!

Strandquist News

The weather in northwest Minnesota continues to be the farmers' and gardeners' dreams. It's been great to spend any hours we can spare from "the have to do" life around here, just planting, cutting down and getting the perennial in shape for next spring. I'm sure Y2K won't bother them and they will produce next year again.

Roy has gathered the leaves, mulched them and cultivated them into the garden. There was an abundance of leaves this year and it seems not too many folks around mind if the leaves lay where they fell, for with the help of all this incessant wind they may become someone else's blister-making job to worry about. Roy's blisters have healed up now so he may take it on again. He loves to see the green grass as long as possible, but he also has the snowblower ready to go; a firm attribute for readiness he has, and has tried for 10 years to put me into such a frustrating way of life. The "what if" makes people lay awake at night, especially those which never happen.

There was no news from the Strandquist Seniors this week as the president, Elphie Adils accompanied Shirley Lalrooth and Myrtle Holmstrom were in Minot, ND, taking in the HostFest. Most of us, The Scandinavians anyhow, wish we could have been there to eat lutefisk and lefse to our heart's contentment.

The folks from Bethesda and Salem churches were missing today for dinner at the Community Center. It could be because they ate too much at the Harvest Festival yesterday. We hope to see them tomorrow when Sunday dinner settles down.

Judy Kleinvachter still has her kind hospitality going as usual, but everyone seems to be taking advantage of the nice fall weather so only Bud and Marie Steffen and Jane Kleinvachter have taken time to spend with her this week.

Morris and Hazel Anderson and Dorothy Chaffee of Wibaux, MT, who is staying and helping Hazel, had dinner at Paul and Shirley Anderson's home. Later they went to the Fall Festival at Bethesda Lutheran Church.

Owen and Diane Hogen visited Paul and Shirley Anderson on Sunday afternoon.

Karen Thompson of Thief River Falls and Pearl Thompson visited Elsie Lalrooth on Sunday evening.

Plummer Community News

Effie Byer • 465-4375

WELCA Meets

The Women of Immanuel met on Thursday evening at the church with president Lucille Kvasager presiding. There was a short business meeting and then we heard a most interesting report on the Triennial Convention held in St. Louis last July. Six ladies from Red Lake Falls and Plummer made the trip and four of them were present at this meeting.

They were Carolyn Myhre from Immanuel, Merle Seeger, Sandy Bertilrud and Marian Bjorgan from Bethany church in Red Lake Falls. Those four are already making plans to attend the next convention to be held in Philadelphia.

Hostesses for the evening were Lorna Josmo, Judy Carlson, Arlene Fralland and Carolyn Myhre.

Peggy Hesse visited her mother, Esther Dahl of Middle River, and her brother, Raymond Dahl of Concord, CA, on Friday and Saturday. She also visited with her daughter, Brenda Knutson and family, on Saturday in Middle River.

Lawson and Jessa Pelon and Agnes McCloud of Neche, ND and Mildred Frasier of Walhalla spent Friday with cousin, Edna Hyde.

Bunny DuChamp visited her sister, Gertie Haugen, last Wednesday. Gertie is now living at Valley Home.

On Friday, Rose and Bob Peterson of Mentor and Hazel Ollie attended a program at the Golden Link in Crookston which honored Marian and Jerry Keltenborg as the "Honored Experienced Seniors of the Month". Coffee and cake were served. Three of their six children were in attendance: Gary from Grand Forks, ND, Richard of Los Angeles, CA; and Connie Wormager of Minneapolis; as well as many friends and one granddaughter, Tiffeny Neiss of Grand Forks, ND. Marian is Hazel's sister, so there was a good representation of their family to celebrate with them.

June and Norman Veradahl of Winger visited her mother, Bernice Peterson, last week.

Birthday for Megan

On Friday, October 8, a birthday party for Megan Malwitz, daughter of Gloria and Kevin Malwitz, who turned 9 on October 10, was held at the Pizza Hut in Tie River Falls.

Friends attending were Kalley Bokken, Jami Loe, Michelle McMullen, Janita Ramirez, Brittany Weidal, Ariel Berry, Lindsay Johnson and Cheryl Nelson. Also at the party were Gloria and Brandy Malwitz, Jacob Malwitz and friend Thomas Morinville, Jan Robideaux and Amy Christianson. After pizza and birthday cake, they enjoyed swimming at the Franklin pool.

On Saturday there was a second party starting with lunch at the American Legion. Those who joined Megan for her birthday were Grandma Doris Malwitz, Wayne and Vicky Malwitz, Jen Robideaux, Sharan Baron, Amy Christianson, Travis Peterson, Gloria, Jacob and Brandy Malwitz. After lunch they all gathered at Kevin and Gloria's for the birthday cake.

ECFE Grandparents' Day

Plummer school ECFE held a class on October 6 entitled "Grandparents Are Great" that included activities for the children and their grandparents to share. Children attending included Nicholas, Allison, Brenden, Tyler, Jordan and Jacob Plante with Grandma Sharon Riendeau; Ashley and Kevin Longtin, Allison and Amanda Torkelson with Grandma Cheryl Hince; Jade Kalley with Grandma Judy Kalley; Abby Gorardy with Grandmas Carol Gorardy and Wavell Sorenson; Blake GeHate with Grandparents Jim and Linda Tvedt and Anna DeHate; Sheena and Courtney Lee with Grandparents George and Dorothy Lee and Robert and Shirley Olson; Alysa Krueger with Grandma Kathy Juneau; Emily and Nicole Riendeau with Grandma Sharon Riendeau; Emalyn, Marquelle and Christian Dahl with Grandparents Jerry and Jewel Dahl; Joshua Breeten with parents Tom and Jenette Breeten. Several other parents also attended with their children. ECFE teachers are JoyAnn Dahl and Margaret Hamrum. Thank you to everyone who participated.

Alysa Krueger invited Grandma Kathy Juneau to share a fun-filled evening at pre-school in Plummer. The theme was "Grandparents Are Great". Grandma and Alysa made hand prints to take home, played games, listened to a story and made a lot of grand memories.

Friday morning visitors of Peggy Hesse were Marian Pearson of Washington, Harriet Norman, Loretta Hesse and Doris Malwitz.

Jean Carpenter arrived home on Saturday night after a two-week visit with son Corey and Rose, Miranda and Tyler in Forest City, IA. Rose is recuperating from surgery and Jean was able to help out while there.

Karen and Lowell Johnson of New York Mills spent Saturday with her mother, Amelia Eskell.

Della Rewertz, Margie Prestebak, Shirley Yonke and her daughter, Carol and son Lucas lunched together on Saturday and then Della and Margie paid a visit to the Jon and Paula Preske home to see little Kylee Christine, the newest member of the family.

Jerry Skjerven and son Mike spent the weekend at Grand Rapids at the home of Kathy and Randy Helmbrecht to assist in a project there.

Justin Rewertz, student at UND of Grand Forks, ND and friend Jamie of Moorhead visited Della Rewertz on Saturday night.

Lionesses Change Name

Plummer Lioness Club has been changed to Plummer Too Lions club. It still has a membership composed of only women. A charter night was held on Saturday evening with many attending who had been charter members of the Lioness Club. They were presented with a gift of $500 from the Lions Club.

Present officers are Toni Nemic, president; Marlene Haugen, first vice-president; Deb DuChamp, second vice-president; Nancy Brey, third vice-president; Lynn Gallant, secretary; Linda Homley, treasurer; Janet Berberich and Mel Brualad, tail twisters; and Carly Carlson, lion tamer.

Sandy Greenwald, Sandy Hesse, Kim Holmes and Denise Konickson are charter members of the Board of Directors. There is a total of 22 charter members and meetings are held on the last Monday of each month.

25th Anniversary

Debbie (DuChamp) and husband Wayne Vettleson of Trail were honored on Saturday night, October 9 at a celebration of their 25 years of marriage. The party was held at their home in a new storage building. It was sponsored by their children: Tella Mitzner, of Bemidji; Wyatt of Bemidji State University; and Dede of Trail, assisted by aunts and uncles. A program featuring a mock wedding was given by Cherlene Myhre, Deb DuChamp and Lori Raebel. Jim and Deb had also assembled a video of Wayne and Deb's lives which was very good.

Members of the original wedding party who attended were Jim DuChamp, best man, and groomsmen Mike Person of Halstad and Kevin Vettleson of Trail. Bridesmaids present were Penny Pehlon Retzer of Fargo, ND, and Sheila Horn of Gonvick.

Also in attendance were all of the Vettleson brothers and sisters and their children. Plummer folks who shared the evening were Bunny DuChamp, Merci DuChamp, Steve Kicoty, Chris DuChamp and Bobbi Berberich, Wavell and Lloyd Sorenson, Deb V. (who grew up in Plummer) and Wayne are successful dairy farmers and have surely had a busy and happy 25 years together. Congratulations.

Members of the Hesse family, decendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Hesse, met on Sunday following church services for a dinner at Brooks Third Base. In attendance were Marion Pearson of Washington, Harriet Norman, Doris Malwitz, Helen Simpson, Floyd and Fern Hesse, Peggy and Mel Hesse, Sylvester Hesse, Loretta Hesse and daughter Linda Mattison and son Chris of Thief River Falls, Diane Hesse Grinde of Elk River. Three birthday people were recognized: Fern Hesse (October 11) and daughter Diane Grinde (October 13) and Harriet Norman (September 30).

Jeff and son Nicky Vigstol of Thief River Falls were Monday luncheon visitors of Grandma Effie and Burnel Byer.

Floyd and Fern Hesse took his sister, Marian Pearson, and Doris Malwitz to the fish fry at the VFW in Thief River Falls on Friday night. Afterwards, they stopped for a visit with Clair Lorson.

Birthday for Fern

Fern Hesse's house was filled on Monday evening, October 11, with loving relatives and friends to honor her on her birthday. A huge potluck supper was served plus wine from Theresa and there were lots of cards and gifts.

Some Commissioners expressed concern on a diagonal ditch located in Section 3, Black River Township. The ditch system located in that section is referred to as County Ditch #96, Branch #2. The problem is that the diagonal ditch is not shown as part of the legal ditch system on the current Pennington County map, but was viewed by the ditch viewers for CD #96 and was given a benefit amount to be assessed. A meeting with Ray Sauve is set for on June 9, 1999 to discuss the diagonal ditch.

Motion unanimously carried.

Gerta Boen and Delaine Augustson met with the County Board to discuss the letter from District Court Judge Dennis Murphy. They requested the authorization to go from 37 ½ hours to 40 hours in the Court Administrators office. The County Board is checking with the State of Minnesota to see if it is even possible to change the hours of the office because of the take over by the State. The County Board took no action until further information could be obtained.

Terry Bayne, Chief Deputy Sheriff, discussed with the County Board the new K-9 unit. The K-9's name is Magnum. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to support a raffle for a $500.00 travel gift certificate at $1.00 each if the application is approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Variety of tools needed to fix farming problems

by Gene Hugoson
MN Dept. of Agriculture Commissioner

Early autumn usually a time of anticipation for farmers as the harvest draws near, but this year things are different. With prices for many commodities still far below break-even levels due to oversupply and sluggish export markets, it's easy to see why the usual excitement has been largely replaced by apprehension. Although it looks like many parts of the state have another bumper crop on the way, farmers and elected officials are focusing more on the price problem and what may be done to correct it.

Early this year, before many public officials had even acknowledge the farm situation as a priority, Governor Jesse Ventura developed a two-pronged strategy for helping Minnesota farmers. One prong would focus on providing immediate help, and the other would focus on long-term remedies to make our farmers less vulnerable to price fluctuations.

The short-term strategy featured immediate tax relief for farmers. Meanwhile, the long-term strategy called for marshaling the state's resources to help boost farmers' competitive position and pushing for federal action on exports and revenue assurance. We have already started to see success in some of these areas.

Thanks to Governor Ventura and state legislators, the 1999 state legislative session was one of the best ever for Minnesota farmers. The big news was the $122 million total farm tax relief package, the largest ever for Minnesota farmers. In addition, the farm community received millions of dollars in research, marketing and development initiatives.

Next, the Governor's recovery strategy called for the state to help strengthen the competitive position of Minnesota's agricultural community. Governor Ventura created his FARM (Farmer and Rural Minnesota) cabinet to do that. The idea behind the cabinet is that by combining the resources of many state agencies, we can more effectively remove unnecessary obstacles — regulatory or otherwise — that limit farmers' competitive power.

Another important part of the Governor's relief strategy was pushing for the federal government to do its part. The need for action at the federal level is especially important considering the national and international roots of this price problem. That was the message Governor Ventura and I took to Washington in June. In meetings with federal officials, we asked them to do their part to expand export opportunities for our farmers. We also asked them to help devise better revenue assurance options, including a better national crop insurance program to help farmers weather future market downturns. Finally, we demanded reform of the nation's outdated and unfair dairy pricing system.

We have seen success in this area as well. Our Washington trip attracted media attention to our message and turn up the heat on Congress. Several weeks later, the Senate defeated an attempt to resurrect the old dairy pricing system, clearing the way for USDA to go ahead with reforms that reduce the price discrimination against our dairy farmers. Our hope is that the House will refrain from meddling with the USDA reform plan.

Now it appears Congress is moving forward on a sizable package of farm aid. Although many things still need to be ironed out, it looks as if Congress will pass more than $7 billion in relief to farmers. That money will likely be paid out in the form of supplemental Agricultural Marketing Transition Act (AMTA) payments and other programs.

Short-term aid may boost spirits, but it will not get to the root of the problem. Governor Ventura believes Congress should also be looking at long-term solutions that will help farmers become less vulnerable to price fluctuations. That is why we continue to push for improvements to federal farm programs, especially for stronger crop insurance and more effective marketing assistance. This marketing assistance should concentrate not only on expanding export opportunities abroad, but also on educating farmers here in the United States about the marketing options available to them.

Much has been said about the current farm situation, but one message we have heard time after time is that farmers do not want to be dependent upon the government for their livelihood. They want to be self-sufficient. Governor Ventura greatly respects this attitude, and he and I will continue to push for the types of federal and state policies that allow farmers to be self-sufficient and to live the kind of lives they want.

Of course we realize that Minnesota cannot single-handedly lift global commodity prices, but as I have said before, it was not one thing that got us into this mess, and it will not be one thing that gets us out of it. We will have to use a variety of tools to fix this problem.

For example, in November Governor Ventura and I will travel to Japan with members of state farm groups. In Japan, the world's largest economy after the United States, we will meet with officials to talk about strengthening their agricultural trade ties to our state. We also will continue to work with the other members of the Farm Cabinet to find ways the state can help farmers improve their competitive standing and reduce their costs of doing business. It is my hope that next time there is a bumper crop across much of Minnesota, we will feel more excitement than we do this fall.

Soybean acreage takes big jump in Red River Valley

Soybean acreage is on a big upswing in Minnesota's Red River Valley. Over 700,000 acres were planted to soybeans in eight Minnesota counties in the Red River Valley in 1998. That's well over three times the acreage of 10 years earlier, says Dave Schwartz, soybean educator with the University of Minnesota Extension Service. He cites depressed small grain prices and plant diseases for shifting more small grain acres into soybeans.

Soybean acreage figures from the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service for the eight counties are: Becker 24,400 in 1988 and 62,700 in 1998; Clay 74,500 in 1988 and 113,600 in 1998, Kittson 3,500 in 1988 and 35,800 in 1998; Marshall 19,500 in 1988, and 88,300 in 1998; Norman 47,100 in 1988 and 126,300 in 1998; Pennington 3,100 in 1988 and 37,200 in 1998; Polk 38,500 in 1988 and 196,00 in 1998; Red Lake 5,200 in 1988 and 41,300 in 1998.

Barley acreage in the eight counties during the same period dropped from 831,600 acres to 294,000 acres. Oats acreage fell as well, slipping from 114,000 acres in 1988 to 60,700 in 1998.

"Depressed small grain prices and diseases have reduced incomes to the point where farmers are forced to plant alternative crops," says Schwartz.

"Breweries that once purchased much of the Red River Valley malting barley crop are now relying on growers from states farther west where plant diseases are less of an issue. Soybeans and canola are replacing barley in Red River Valley crop rotations."

Soybean conferences will take place at two locations in the Red River Valley this winter to address production and management issues. They will take place January 25, 2000 at Sahlstrom Hall on the campus of the University of Minnesota - Crookston, and January 26, 2000, at the Best Western in Moorhead. Co-sponsors of the conferences are the Minnesota Soybean Growers Research and Promotion Council and the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Study to examine senior residential care in Argyle

The City of Argyle was recently granted $4,100 for technical assistance from the Northwest Minnesota Foundation for the purpose of pursuing senior housing for the community.

Through the use of a professional consultant, research and information can be collected and analyzed to determine the feasibility and market potential of a residential care facility, enabling seniors in need of assistance to remain in the local community.

The City of Argyle will work with the Argyle Rural Economic Authority to act upon the recommendations of the consultant with the consultant helping the city in determining the need and most feasible size of a senior residence which would provide some level of care services.

According to Bruce Hantnes, president of the NMF board of directors, the Argyle community has been committed to the senior housing issue for years. A market study, he says, is needed for the purpose of issuing bonds for building construction rather than as a part of a larger and often uncertain grant search.

Farmers to meet on trade issues

Hundreds of American and Canadian farmers and ranchers will meet in Fargo, ND, this November to discuss agricultural trade issues between their countries, Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson announced recently.

Despite recent trade disputes, Canada and the United States remain each other's biggest trade partners. "The Northern Plains Producer Conference — On Common Ground," will assemble farmers and ranchers from Minnesota, Manitoba, North Dakota, Saskatchewan and South Dakota with the goal of improving trade relations in the region. The event will take place from November 15-17 at the Ramada Plaza Suites in Fargo.

"Improving trade relations with America's largest trading partner is important for the economy of Minnesota," Commissioner Hugoson said. "Every day, $1.5 billion in goods and services cross the U.S./Canada border, and that trade volume has steadily increased in each of the last five years."

Commissioner Hugoson will co-host the conference along with North Dakota Agriculture Commissioner Roger Johnson, South Dakota Agriculture Secretary Darrell Cruea, and the soon-to-be-named agriculture ministers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Both provinces held elections in September, and the new provincial governments are expected to make cabinet appointments within weeks.

"This conference will be the first of its kind in this region," Commissioner Hugoson said. "The participants of this conference will be farmers and ranchers from each state or province, and the format will encourage face-to-face dialogue. Our hope is that this conference will lead to greater understanding all around."

Each state and province will send up to 50 producers to work on the conference goals:

- Identifying trade issues and opportunities;
- Developing a mutual understanding of U.S. and Canadian agricultural industries;
- Establishing a regional producer network to find solutions to existing problems; and,
- Dispelling agricultural trade misconceptions.

Commissioner Hugoson pointed out that despite the increasing trade volume between the two countries, a number of trade dispute have popped up recently. One particular dispute flared up in late 1998, and centered on shipments of Canadian agricultural commodities coming into Minnesota and other northern states.

"Trade irritants and disputes with Canada have been amplified by the economic pressures farmers face on both sides of the border," Commissioner Hugoson said. "We need better communication in order to ensure a trading relationships that benefits farmers on both sides of the border. This conference will help by giving producers a chance to interact face-to-face with neighbors who share common backgrounds and interests."

Farm organizations in each state and province have been invited to send producers to the conference. Producers looking for more information on the Northern Plains Producer Conference can contact the Minnesota Agriculture Department at 1-800-967-2474.

New program available to NW MN growers

A new crop diagnostic program is currently being offered to assist agricultural producers in evaluating their businesses.

The first objective of the project will provide direct assistance to individual growers, helping them in identifying ways to improve their crop production enterprise through on-site assessment by a diagnostic team of professionals.

When an individual joins the program, a farm business management instructor will coordinate with the grower to develop a complete farm financial analysis if one has not already been done. This analysis, when completed, will be sent to the diagnostic team consisting of a farm business management instructor, banker, extension educator and agronomic professional such as a crop consultant or supply dealer agronomist.

The banker, agronomic professional and possibly other members of the team will be persons who are not currently advising the grower. This will allow the grower to obtain a broader, independent range of input from more people. If desired, the grower's personal banker can be a member of the team.

The diagnostic team will do an on-site assessment of the crop production enterprise with the grower and will generate a report focusing on improvements that can be made. A second visit will be scheduled to present the report to the grower.

Individual grower information will be kept completely confidential, and it can be expected that the diagnostic team will provide the grower with a number of changes/improvement suggestions which can improve the profitability of his crop production enterprise. Recommendations may also improve the quality of the grower's life by providing him with time saving ideas, information about stress management, etc. While some of the changes will result in short term benefits, others will produce long term benefits.

Currently the program is open for producers in northwest Minnesota, south from the Canadian border to Moorhead and Detroit Lakes. Funding has been secured to conduct over 20 farm visits. For producers not currently working with a farm business management instructor, cost will be 25 percent of the farm business management enrollment fee (less than $150) with the remainder of the cost being covered by the project. For those who are part of the farm business management program, there will be no cost for the program.

The second objective of the project is learn through the on-site assessment of several farms the common areas for potential improvement among farm production enterprises.

Self-discipline, goals key to grain marketing

Strive for an above-average price when marketing grain. Take a profit when you can or avoid a huge loss if you can. That's more realistic than trying to guess the market high, says Jim Nesseth, educator in Jackson county with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Human nature promotes going for the 'home runs' in pricing one's grain," notes Nesseth. "However, 'home run' prices only happen rarely and few people are in a position to take advantage of them. Establishing a 'keep you in business' marketing plan has a much higher probability of putting more dollars in your pocket."

Nesseth cites figures from U of M Extension farm management specialist Erlin Weness. The figures show that for a 600-acre southern Minnesota corn and soybean farm with average yields, increasing the selling price five percent can increase annual profit by $10,000.

"There is a great opportunity today to use many different marketing tools and information sources," says Nesseth. "The key is to let them work for you and not confuse you. Self-discipline and realistic objectives are critical."

Nesseth suggests some basic steps in developing a marketing plan:

- Set a price goal that covers production expenses plus a realistic allowance for family living expenses. Some years this may not even be possible. However, if you don't set a price goal and sell at that price you may never sell, but will continue to wait for a higher price. It is nearly impossible, emotionally, to sell on a day the price goes down.
- Know storage costs. Storing harvested crops is highly expensive. Have a clear understanding of the costs and turn production into cash as soon as possible to avoid interest on grain and possible price depreciation. Be aware of the risks of fire, wind, spoilage, insects, rodents, spillage and theft.
- Set up your marketing plan in advance, up to a year before the production year.
- Set target prices at which you will sell a certain percentage of the crop, and as better prices materialize, more increments of the crop. You always need a back-up plan if price levels never occur. A back-up plan might be based on time or dates of USDA crop reports to guarantee you sell the crop near or at normal seasonal highs. Don't let a year such as 1998 happen again without pricing any grain.

Minnkota makes wind energy option available

Minnkota Power has announced a renewable energy option available to the associated cooperatives and municipals who purchase wholesale electricity from the generation and transmission cooperative. The Minnkota-associated systems serve more than 106,000 customers in eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

"Customer interest in wind-generated electric energy and the willingness to pay more for it are primary reasons why Minnkota is interested in offering the wind energy option to the associated cooperatives and municipals, and their customers," said Dave Loer, Minnkota President and CEO.

Wind is a renewable energy resources. There is no energy cost in wind, but harvesting it takes technology and that requires an investment.

In September, cooperatives and municipals who elected to participate in Minnkota's "Infinity Wind Energy" program began notifying their customers. Interested customers can participate by indicating their intention to purchase 100 kilowatt-hour (kWh) blocks of energy at cost. These blocks of energy will not be available until a suitable wind turbine is operational.

With sufficient customer interest, Minnkota will proceed with a developer to design, site and build wind turbines after December 1. These turbines could be operational by October 2000 and will be sized according to market interest in the Minnkota service area.

Using current technology, wind is capable of generating electric energy about 25 percent of the time on average. Even in areas like the upper Midwest — labeled the Saudi Arabia of wind — the wind speed is not sufficient to generate electric energy all of the time.

"Clearly, there still is a long-term need for continuously available central station electric power from sources such as lignite-fired generation," said Loer.

Subscribers to Minnkota's "Infinity Wind Energy" program will be billed up to an additional $6 per month for each 100 kWh block of wind energy. This amount will be billed in addition to the regular cost of electricity.

Currently, no federal or state production incentives likely exist that would apply to the production of wind energy. If such incentives were renewed, the billing premium for wind energy blocks would be reduced.

Minnkota Power is a generation and transmission cooperative supplying wholesale electricity to 12 rural electric cooperatives serving a 34,500-square mile area in eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota. Minnkota also is operating agent for the Northern Municipal Power Agency, which serves 12 municipal utilities. Minnkota's primary source of electrical generation is the lignite-fired Milton R. Young Station, located near Center, ND.

House Ag Committee holds hearing in TRF

■ Rep. Tim Finseth declares that as far as he is concerned the committee will not review drainage laws

About 40 people attended a hearing by the Minnesota House of Representatives Agriculture Policy committee at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls Friday, October 29. The purpose of the hearing was to discuss drainage issues that affect agricultural land.

Chairman of the Committee, Tim Finseth of Argyle, said at the conclusion of the meeting that from the testimony he heard during an earlier hearing in Roseau, and the meeting in Thief River Falls that afternoon, the drainage issue is closed.

Finseth explained at the outset of the hearing that over the last few years he had heard some rumblings about the need for changes to the drainage law. For that reason, the committee scheduled hearings where testimony could be recorded.

Attending the hearings were members of the committee: Rep. Finseth, Rep. Torrey Westrom, vice chair, Rep. Al Juhnke, Rep. Bob Westfall, Rep. Doug Peterson, Rep. Howard Swenson, Rep. Gary Kubly, and Rep. Rod Skoe. Rep. Jim Tunheim also attended the hearings. The hearing in Thief River Falls focused on drainage issues, and testimony was accepted from: Dave Ladd, a field representative for U.S. Sen. Rod Grams; Wally Sparby from Congressman Collin Peterson's office; Rhonda and Larry Amundson, dairy farmers from Excel township; Chuck Fritz, Red Lake Watershed District Administrator; Mike Bruer, Minnesota Wheat Growers; Curt Swanson, farmer; Jerry Larson of the Potato Growers; John Jaschke of the Board of Soil and Water Resources; Delroy Larson, Marshall County Commissioner; and Howard Person, Minnesota Extension Agent in Pennington county.

Rhonda Amundson made a gift of cattails to the committee. She explained that the ditches near her dairy farm in Excel township are full of cattails. Because little has been done to address the problem, cattails are proliferating and adding to the drainage problems.

The second purpose of her testimony, she explained, was to inform the committee of the affect of drainage problems on livestock producers. Amundson said with all of the rain, their lagoon filled more quickly that anticipated, but it didn't run over. In an effort to head off the possibility of the lagoon running over its banks, the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency was contacted. If it had run over, the dairy farm would have faced penalties from the MPCA. Despite the early notice and request for assistance to MPCA, Amundson said the MPCA offered no help. Even though MPCA was contacted the dairy may face penalties, and if that happens, Amundson promised she would be in contact with the committee members.

Curt Swanson, has farmed west of Thief River Falls for the past 20 years on a Century farm, said he would not like to see the drainage laws opened. He said he fears further restrictive regulation. Swanson said under the law the ability exists to clean and maintain ditches, and control mechanisms are already in place.

Mike Bruer of the Minnesota Wheat Growers, said many ditches in fields have filled in or are in disrepair because farmers have been unable to clean them. He urges farmers to mark those ditches on county maps to make sure that they aren't judged "abandoned". In his area, Bruer said tiling is becoming a big issue. Water capacity in soil where tiling exists is greatly enhanced. Tiling has been very successful on his farm, and asked that the committee consider making funds available to farmers for tiling.

Jerry Larson, of Climax who represents the Potato Growers of the Red River Valley, said potato growers are getting along pretty good with the drainage regulations. Where they have problems, he said, is when they want to clean a natural drainage area. He explained that few peo-

Wally Sparby of Congressman Collin Peterson's office, and Dave Ladd, field representative for U.S. Senator Rod Grams, provided an overview of current legislation and proposed legislation to the Minnesota House of Representatives' Agriculture Policy Committee. The committee held a hearing on the drainage issue in Thief River Falls on Friday, October 29.

Violence Intervention Project in TRF receives $200,000 loan

Seeks additional funds for match to complete fund-raising for proposed building project on Greenwood Avenue

Violence Intervention Project (VIP), a grassroots advocacy program for battered women and children, which covers seven northwest Minnesota counties, has been notified that it has received a $200,000, zero-percent loan, to be used toward the construction of a building located in Thief River Falls.

VIP applied for the loan from the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency in July. The funds will be used to help construct a $1,037,000 building, which will house transitional apartments, an emergency safehouse, a childrens' visitation center, and administrative office.

Denise Sevigny, VIP director in Thief River Falls, said Lowell and Marge Swenson, lead donors in the capital campaign, had contributed $100,000 which allowed for the purchase of land for the building at 1911 Greenwood Street East from Jake and Ann Barnick. The initial contribution leveraged foundation awards of $175,000 from the McKnight Foundation, $50,000 from the Bremer Foundation, $120,000 from the Bush Foundation. The Department of Children Families and Learning has committed $50,000 toward the visitation center portion of the building; and the Department of Housing and Urban Development has committed $200,000 toward construction of the transitional housing; along with $100,000 in operating funds over three years. Contributions in various amounts have been received from individuals, civic organizations, and churches throughout the seven-county region.

The loan has brought the project into focus and has initiated a drive to complete the fund-raising project for the building. With approximately $100,000 remaining to be raised, Lowell and Marge Swenson offered to contribute an additional $50,000 if residents and businesses in the region would match their challenge. The Bremer Bank of Warren has contributed $1,000 and the Thief River Falls Kiwanis Club $100 toward the challenge. Match contributions toward the Swenson challenge grant can be mailed to P.O. Box 96, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

With the completion of the fund-raising campaign in sight, a groundbreaking ceremony at the site of the building has been planned. The ceremony will be held at 1911 Greenwood Street East on Tuesday, November 16, at 10:30 a.m.

TRF Council proceeds with crosswind runway study

After receiving $30,000 from Jobs Inc., a private development agency in Thief River Falls, the Thief River Falls City Council decided to proceed with an environmental assessment of the Regional Airport Crosswind Runway project.

Having already completed a study of the justification for the crosswind runway project, the council was asked to proceed with the next step — an environmental assessment. The federal environmental assessment will analyze the potentially significant impacts of the proposed alternative to expand the regional airport. It will be good for a period of five years.

Tuesday, the council agreed to proceed with the understanding that Jobs Inc. knows that the council could decide to not proceed any further after this study is completed. With the donation from Jobs Inc., the city would have to come up with $3,200 for the environmental assessment.

Don Stewart, Jobs Inc., said the board of Jobs Inc. appreciates the position the city council is in, and believes that they need all the information to make a decision. Going through with the next step, he said, will help answer some of the unanswered questions.

Dale Wennberg, council representative, said after approaching Arctic Cat and Digi-Key that he was told that a crosswind runway was not necessary to do business. So, he asked, who's pushing for a crosswind runway? He said he understands why airports are important to communities, but said "'potential' is too big a word to hang your hat on."

Representative-At-Large Jean Heinrichs had trouble believing that the businesses didn't want a crosswind runway and said she wanted to see it in writing.

Mayor Mark Borsheim said he got in touch with representatives of Arctic and Digi-Key later and said Digi-Key said it was important to their business.

Wennberg made a point of reminding council representatives that the city currently spends about $160,000 on operating the airport each year. Wennberg said he wasn't saying that we don't need a crosswind runway, but that the council needs to remember how much it costs to operate an airport especially during times of tight budgets.

Representative Dave Carlson questioned information presented to the council at the last council meeting. He asked for clarification regarding a statement that planes were not taking off or had to lighten their load before taking off because the city doesn't have a crosswind runway. Carlson said that's important to know. He also said the airport is not just important to Arctic and Digi-Key, but it's important to many businesses in the area. Hardly any business can afford to have a large inventory on hand, and next day service will become increasingly important in the future, he said.

Representative Don Barron said Jobs Inc. has indicated its support and that deserves the council's consideration.

Representative Ken Schmalz said it's a good project, but the city just doesn't have the money for it.

The motion to proceed with the environmental assessment was approved with Schmalz and Wennberg voting against it.

Ray Williams has been hired to fill the position of City Building official. Don Stewart said the city received 14 applications for the position, but only three were certified building officials licensed by Minnesota. The consensus of the administrative services committee, he said, was that due to the current level of construction in Thief River Falls it is important to have a certified building official. By the time the city got to the interview process, however, two of the Music history will be explored and students at Franklin Middle School will perform a variety of tunes from different periods in music during the upcoming Music History Concert at the school. Warrant issued in horse case

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Cindy Rae Carter, formerly of Thief River Falls, Monday following her failure to appear in a Ninth District court on two misdemeanor charges stemming from incidents involving horses in her care last January.

The charges of failure to provide adequate health care for equine, and failure to provide food of sufficient quality and quantity for normal growth of equine, are misdemeanors and stem from an investigation that began in January of 1999.

According to the criminal complaint, the sheriff's department received a complaint from a local resident about dead horses at a farm in Smiley township of Pennington county. Upon investigation, the deputies found two dead horses at the farmstead, and three dead horses in a pasture. A subsequent search warrant was requested and executed. The search revealed another 10 dead horses in the pasture.

Three of the dead horses were sent to North Dakota State University for a necropsy. The report indicated, according to the criminal complaint, that all were in poor body condition, and they exhibited "severe depletion of internal adipose deposits and/or serious atrophy that was reflective of a negative energy balance." The report also indicated a "high level of internal nematode parasitism."

The sheriff's department also had another veterinarian conduct necropsys on seven of the 10 dead horses delivered to him. He noted in his report, according to the criminal complaint, that the horses were thin and had little or no body fat. In addition, he discovered that seven horses had a high amount of parasites in their system.

If convicted, the maximum penalty for both charges is 90 days, $700 or both.

Monday, bond was set by the judge at $700.

FMS Chorus presents music history concert

Franklin Middle School Chorus will present a Music History Concert at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, November 9, under the direction of Ruth A. Stenson.

The concert not only provides an opportunity to hear wonderful music, but an opportunity to learn more about various periods in music history. Students will present information about the following choral performances of a song. For example, following a choral performance of "Gloria," a translation of a medieval round, by Guillaume Dufay (1400 to 1474), Suzy Rosencrans, Megan Comstock, and Chrissy Paulson will give a presentation on the Early Christian Period of Music (200-800). Other periods examined and presented include: the Medieval Period of Music, Renaissance Period of Music, the Baroque Period of Music, Classical Period of Music, Romantic Period of Music, Impressionistic Period of Music, and Contemporary Period of Music.

Music performed by the students will include everything from a Gregorian Chant to "Good News in the Kingdom," a West Indies Spiritual.

ple seem tounderstand that natural drainage areas can fill up with silt and debris too. It was his understanding that cleaning those natural ditches is allowed under the law.

John Jaschke of the Board of Soil and Water Resources said the agency does not believe there is a need to open the law up. More can be done under current law to make it work, he said.

Delray Larson, Marshall County Commissioner, said he's opposed to changes in the drainage law. He said any changes to the law would make it even more expensive and costly to manage ditches than they already are. He added that the wetlands law has had an impact on ditch cleaning. Larson also urged the commissioners to have the state pay its ditch taxes.

Rep. Finseth explained that his committee and the legislature had passed a law requiring the state to catch up on its ditch taxes, but the Governor vetoed the law after the legislature had adjourned.

Howard Person, Minnesota Extension educator in Pennington county, said drainage is the number one issue in this area.

Person also noted that the failure of many of the ditches in the area to handle the excessive moisture the area received this summer, had a tremendous negative impact on the economy in the area.

Dave Ladd, field representative for U.S. Sen. Rod Grams, gave an overview of the recent $8.7 million Farm Relief package passed by the U.S. Congress. Wally Sparby also addressed various concerns and legislation supported by Congressman Collin Peterson.

Chuck Fritz of the Red Lake Watershed District provided the committee with an update on the State Ditch 83 (Thief River) project, the summary judgement, and efforts being taken toward mediating the dispute.

three certified building official candidates had withdrawn. Nevertheless, Stewart said, Williams is very qualified and comes with a broad range of qualifications.

The city approved a recommendation from the public works committee to vacate the south 80 feet of the North 190 feet of LaBree Avenue south of First Street and adjacent to Northwest Medical Center. Ron Lindberg explained that the city vacated portions of the street years ago for the hospital. Vacating this portion would allow construction to proceed at the hospital. If the city gave away the remaining portion of the street, Lindberg feared that it would amount to setting a precedent of putting signals on private drive. In addition, there is a utility loop in the street, and the city would lose $130 per month in state aid.

The council approved the recommendation.

The city council also approved the following: certifying the unpaid 1999 lawn mowing assessments to the Pennington County auditor for collection through property taxes; charged-off liquor store NSF checks to bad debts expense; on- and off-sale 3.2 beer license for Bradley E. Erickson at Danny's Pizza and Italian Restaurant; bank services proposal from Northern State Bank covering the city's general and payroll accounts for a three-year period; an extension of time to use accrued vacation for Arlo Rude from October 24 to November 23; approved the Teamster internal transfer request of Jeff Joppru to the second public works maintenance - government buildings position (custodian); and approved advertising for the vacated public works maintenance-government buildings position (custodian).

Essay offers thought-provoking account of homelessness

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Sixteen-year-old Gabrielle Lee of Thief River Falls has been named the first place winner of the annual writing contest sponsored by the College of St. Benedict and St. Jon's University.

The competition was held in conjunction with the schools' peace studies conference. This year's conference is entitled, "Nowhere Else to Go: Local, Regional and Global Dimensions of Homelessness," and Gabrielle's winning essay addresses the issue of homelessness.

The contest was open to juniors and seniors from across the country, and the written piece could be in the form of an essay, story or poem. The prize is a $1,000 scholarship to be applied to the student's first year's tuition at either the College of St. Benedict or St. John's University.

Gabrielle's well-written and poignant essay is reprinted with permission.

About the Writer

Gabrielle Lee is a junior at Lincoln High School who is currently enrolled in the literary arts class which is part of the Northern Expressions School of the Arts.

Gabrielle says that she has always enjoyed writing and names reading first when asked about her hobbies. She reports that she enjoys reading "everything except "westerns" and love stories that are "too dumb."

She also enjoys activities very typical of young women her age such as "hanging out with friends, talking on the phone and writing letters," and her taste in music is similar to that of books with Gabrielle liking "everything" except "that real twangy country stuff."

She has a part-time job, working 12 to 15 hours a week at SuperValu, and describes herself as a "good student" although she says, "This year is hard."

Gabrielle records her experiences, thoughts and feelings in a journal.

While she is obviously a gifted writer, her goals include helping to keep others' smiles as bright as her own as she aspires to be a dentist someday.

On October 15-17, Gabrielle was among the students of the Northern Expressions School of the Arts who enjoyed a trip to the Twin Cities. The annual trip includes a number of tours, plays and visits to museums. The trip was made more exciting when word reached Gabrielle's literary arts teacher, Regina Olson, that Gabrielle's essay had won the contest. Usually, the contest is won by a high school senior, and learning that she had won, Gabrielle says that her first reaction was "Whoa!"

Forget Me Not

by Gabrielle Lee

Natasha's whole life was a scene out of a low-budget movie, the really bad ones where the actors can barely read their lines and the camera is always moving instead of being stationary.

Her brother Jimmy was always the one who took her vicious abuse when she was drunk, and everyone knew the inevitable would follow her extra drinks. Drink after drink the drunkenness set in deeper and deeper, as if Natasha were the ocean absorbing the rain in October. The meanness set in almost as fast as the drunkenness and there was no running from it. Nobody tried to stop her, and they couldn't have if they had wanted to with all their might. I guess it just bothers me to know they didn't want to because deep down everyone has motives.

Jimmy, the baby of eight, had been the butt of many jokes, and one of the first to act on some goofy whim. Natasha was the first to put salt in his wound. No matter how painful the memory or regretful he was, she would bring it up. Watching him were the peering eyes of seven siblings, a mother, and various people passing through watching him crumble time after time. Those, too, could be considered victims. Not comprehending how to help him copy, no one told Jimmy he was not at fault. Instead they would say the opposite when they took a notion to say anything at all. Then there was the stinger. . . when someone would be quick to point out how troubled Natasha was. How poor Natasha couldn't possibly help who she was. Jimmy should be able to take a little kidding around; we all have to sometimes.

It amazes me how the con artist can turn the most obvious around in her favor. It's as if the people playing into her hand didn't want to acknowledge her sins.

One night Natasha kept up with the nonsense. Jimmy's silly memories as a five year old were an easy target for her, and she picked him apart. In reality, he was a 39 year old man sitting before her. He was not in control.

No one saw him get up and leave the room. Danni, Natasha's son, saw him go to his closet and take out a shotgun.

They all heard the shot. Danni, who was nine at the time, had a close view of Jimmy hitting the cold hard floor, lifeless.

Neither the cops nor the ambulance were called right away. Jimmy bled to death on the hard wood floor. Natasha couldn't remember anything she said, or so the story goes. Jimmy lived at home surrounded by people who loved him, and still I consider him homeless.

Within two years of Jimmy's death, Natasha's son Danni knew neglect like the taste of milk. To this day he has blocked out the memory of his childhood. Children can sometimes survive through anything, and Natasha went on more crazy crusades than trips to the grocery store for cereal. Saving the whales and preaching God's word were of more consequence than staying sober or checking for babysitters' references.

Giving me bubble-gum after just brushing my teeth and whispering John 3:16, she tucked me into the bottom bunk. Constantly washing her hands, she swore germs were taking over the earth. Then one day she was nowhere to be found.

My grandma on my mom's side died when I was five, and Natasha tried to go to the funeral. Her sisters told her she wasn't sober enough, even though she hadn't been drinking. They never went to pick her up. Danni thought she never tried, but he never got the message. Family has always been good at keeping secrets.

Days stretched into months and months into years. Nobody ever heard a thing.

One day my aunt Cindy received a message that a severely beaten woman was found drowned on a California beach. With no I.D. available, they asked my aunt to come down and at least see if this Jane Doe could be a relation to her. They wanted my aunt to see if this Jane Doe was Natasha. Reluctant to find out, she went. All the way there Cindy held her breath. Taking a look down, almost wishing her family had been there for one another, my aunt peered down at Jane Doe. Seemingly resentful to have to say this poor girl was not Natasha, my aunt went home to make "the necessary calls to all concerned relatives."

With each new call came more malicious gossip about Natasha — sarcastic statements as to how Natasha put their mother in her grave and how they were angels sent from above, conveniently leaving out how moving their families into their mother's home could have caused more stress than was needed. They all conveniently forgot to mention how my mom, Natasha, and Jimmy were the designated baby-sitters for their dysfunctional families, live in babysitters who never got paid one red cent. At least six or seven years later they were each paid $5. Tough to call the kettle black and never feel a tinge of remorse.

Nobody heard from Natasha and could only be left to their own thoughts on the subject. Preferring to avoid family fights, my mom worried alone, grieved alone, and drank alone. To have a sister out there wandering, trying to live from day to day is a lot to ponder alone.

The news came last year in 1998. Witnesses knew no more than they saw. No letter to anyone, no last words. Natasha is said to have walked out on to the train tracks, turned her back to an oncoming train, and squatted down. No one from the area knew her; at least no one was talking.

Some authorities called by aunt Cindy again and told her the news. Not caring that her sister had died in a horrible fashion, Cindy asked the coroner to check Natasha's system for drugs.

My mom heard this and called long-distance to the coroner's office and told him to stop the drug testing process. Her sister had died in a horrible fashion, but this did not mean she was all cracked out. She told him that being homeless didn't mean that the person was a drug abuser. He listened, and didn't test Natasha's system for anything. My aunt Cindy still resents this. My mom knows that it was the right thing to do.

For some people being homeless is a way to cope with everyday pressures or the last place to turn. The security of a doorway, if only for a night, may be easier than being rejected by family.

When someone leaves, however, they take not only the things they may have randomly packed in a fit of rage. They take with them all that they have learned and those attitudes of people who have imprinted themselves in their memories in some way or another. I feel a part of me was always with her when she was away. Maybe it was my five-year-old voice saying sincerely that I loved her or my little face blowing "monster" bubbles out of six pieces of Big Red. I hope she can see me from where she is. I can see her in my dreams.

Natasha taught me that homeless does not mean forgotten. My family can never change how she was, nor can they change themselves. I think they feel guilty though and call each other less to gossip about their past sins.

Homeless to them must not have registered in their minds as dangerous. Or lonely. Or real. Natasha's face was never put on posters or placed on quaint milk cartons. No one every really grasped that she could have been sober when she committed such a willful act of suicide.

I don't know how many, if any, whales Natasha saved. I don't know if numbers matter much. She tried to save an animal threatened by extinction and no one tried to save her.

Comprehension is key, and if not comprehension then the ability to try to comprehend is. The homeless know what having this and lacking this mean: rent-free constantly meaning roof-free and very little to eat. One thing that people would think they could count on is family. These are the people who are supposed to try to relate to you, no matter how hard that task may be.

Homelessness goes beyond holding a cardboard sign for the world passing by to critique and becomes holding up your self-respect. Natasha did not want to have people looking down on her because of circumstances she herself could not comprehend.

Check children regularly if head lice outbreak occurs

If your children attend a school where head lice have been reported, you need to check your children regularly. But don't panic. Head lice do not transmit disease, says Jeff Hahn, entomologist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Hahn says adult head lice are about an eighth of an inch long, grayish, flattened, and wingless. Their legs are claw-like to hold onto hair. Most head lice are found on young children, clinging to hair shafts within a half-inch of the scalp. Lice eggs, commonly called nits, are only one-thirtieth of an inch long.

Head lice do not jump or fly, says Hahn. But they can move from person to person when children are playing or otherwise in close contact. Head lice can also move to new host through sharing of combs, brushes, scarves, clothing, hats, towels, or similar items. They can cause itching that can result in infection if scratched too vigorously.

"To check your children for lice, start from the back of the neck and move forward, parting their hair so you can examine the base of the hair shaft," says Hahn. "Use a good light and a magnifying glass if possible. Objects found loose are probably not anything important; lice or nits are tightly attached to hair."

If you find something suspicious, have it diagnosed by a health care professional or entomologist, says Hahn. Not all suspected cases actually involve lice. If the diagnosis is that lice are present, there are several tactics to consider.

"In the past, insecticidal products have been the first stop in the war on head lice," says Hahn. "However, there are an increasing number of reports of resistance by head lice to these products, causing concern about their use. Insecticides containing permethrin and pyrethrins are common in shampoos and lotions available over-the-counter. If you use one of these products, follow their directions precisely. Remember, they contain insecticides and should be used with great care and respect.

"Lindane is available by prescription. However, it is the most toxic of all the products and should be used only as an absolute last resort."

If family members are still infested after using an insecticidal product, discontinue using it, says Hahn. Applying a shampoo or lotion repeatedly not only doesn't improve effectiveness, but puts the child or adult at greater risk due to increased exposure to insecticides.

"Don't use dubious methods such as kerosene, pet shampoos or other insecticides," says Hahn. "These methods are not more effective, just more dangerous."

Regardless of how effective insecticidal products are, physical removal is essential in head lice removal, Hahn points out. Use nit combs to remove the lice and eggs. You can purchase nit combs through pharmacies or from the National Pediculosis Association web site at 222.headlice.org. All bedding and clothing of infested people should be washed or dried at high temperature. Pillows or other non-washable items should be placed in plastic bags and put in a cold place for several days. Check other people in the family, even if they don't appear to be infested.

"Head lice maintain an intimate relationship with their host and can not survive off a human for more than two days," says Hahn. "Because of this, thoroughly cleaning a home is not important. Concentrate on treating the individual. Never apply insecticides inside a home to control lice."

For more information, check the web site of the National Pediculosis Association, at the above web address.

MDA unveils price reporting on the internet

Minnesota Department of Agriculture has announced that livestock producers will now be able to access pricing information supplied by meat packers each day on the Department's website at http://www.mda.state.mn.us.

The 1999 Minnesota Legislature directed the MDA to collect information from livestock packers about the prices paid to farmers for swine and cattle. The Legislature also directed the MDA to make this pricing information available to the public, so long as the information does not disclose a packer's proprietary information or a seller's identity.

Information presented in the MDA website is compiled from data provided by livestock packers who buy hogs and cattle from Minnesota producers. The hog price information is currently available, and the cattle price information will be available in a few weeks.

In addition to hog prices for open market and cash purchases, the MDA receives price information on up to six types of hog purchase contracts. Those contracts may include: formula; fixed tied to futures; fixed tied to feed prices, no ledger; fixed tied to feed prices, ledger; window risk sharing, no ledger; and window risk sharing, ledger.

The MDA strives to ensure that the figures reported to the Department on a daily basis are accurate. However, due to time constraints and other factors, errors may occur. Those who access the site must keep in mind that they assume the risk of any reliance on the information.

The MDA will provide this information on its website unless Congress enacts legislation preempting states from doing so. Legislation is pending in Congress to that effect.

Monday marked the first day of the 1999-2000 skating season with the opening of the skating rink at Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. While ice time is often at a premium, open skating is held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day while students are in school. A number of local adults take advantage of the ice time and skate together, usually in the mid to late morning, nearly every day. Kicking off the season on Monday to waltz music were (from left) Doc Sam Samuelson, Betty Langelett, Wendell Olson, Ed Sisler, Robert Wengenstein and Jan Lee. Robert Wangenstein is the coordinator of the informal club, and others who skate on a regular basis include Walt Wicklander, Clinton Castle, Robert Reed, Hilery Stoltman, Cliff Steinhauer, Neil Gillespie, Lanny Hellquist and Charles Bedard. Skaters purchase 10-skate punch cards for $4 and are treated to an afternoon party at the end of the season by the Parks and Rec Department. The skaters encourage others to join them, stressing that skating is like riding a horse or a bicycle — you never forget how!

NW Minnesota Foundation honors Community Builders

The Northwest Minnesota Foundation recently awarded its regional Community Builder awards at an event held at the Northland Lodge in Crookston.

Honorees included Sandra King, Liz Thompson and Nancy Carroll.

Sandra King of Red Lake was selected for the award in the area of professional excellence, using her writing skills to aid her community.

She has brought special consideration and awareness to needs that are not being met in her community. She has done grant writing for such projects as the Red School House, Heart of the Earth and Minneapolis YWCA, obtaining funding for the development of new programs as well as for maintenance of existing programs.

In 1996, Sandra was elected as a Beltrami County Commissioner for District Four and has demonstrated the ability to gauge the needs of the community, reaching out as the representative for the upper half of Beltrami county.

She is also the published writer of poetry, news articles, essays and a children's book, and she is currently writing a novel. Sandra and her husband have four children and five grandchildren.

Liz Thompson of Crookston was honored as a Community Builder in the area of outstanding mentor, helping to shape area youth through her involvement in a number of mentoring activities in the community, schools and her church.

For 20 years, Liz served on the board of directors of Camp Sunshine and for nine years was active in the "Rainbows for Children" program, a program for children who have lost a parent due to death or divorce. Currently, she works with a group of fifth grade girls, having started working with them when they were in kindergarten.

Liz is also a TRUST (Teens Receiving Unconditional Support Time) mentor for three high school girls.

For the past 10 years, she has taped textbooks for vision impaired students at the University of Minnesota Crookston and for the past six years has performed the same service for students at Highland Elementary School.

Liz is a former board member of Valley Group Homes and is currently serving on the human relations committee for REM Group Homes.

Prior to her retirement, Liz worked at the Polk County Day Activity Center for 10 years and then at the Diocese of Crookston Resource Center for 20 years. At Trinity Lutheran Church, she sings in three groups and serves on the worship and music committees. She is also very active in community theater and musical organizations.

She and her husband, Tom, have lived in Crookston since 1956 and have four children and five grandchildren. In 1996, Liz was named Crookston's "Experienced American" for her contributions to the community, and in 1998, she was selected as the Woman of Achievement by the General Federation of Women's Clubs of Minnesota.

Nancy Carroll of Park Rapids was honored as a Community Builder in the area of leadership.

These skills have helped her in coordinating large and small groups of people as she has been involved in county and city government and her community's school.

In all of her activities, Nancy has enjoyed leadership roles, utilizing her organizational skills and attention to detail.

She has been the grant coordinator of waste education for Hubbard county school districts, developing and supervising waste reduction, recycling and waste education projects in Park Rapids, Nevis and LaPorte schools.

Appointed in 1998, Nancy is a city councilor whose responsibilities include policy development, citizen liaison, strategic planning and needs assessment. She serves on the public safety committee, personnel and finance committees and is the council representative on the city's Planning Commission.

As co-chair of Park Rapids school district's Outreach committee, she has worked to pass a referendum for curriculum and technology and has also worked for bond issues and as a classroom volunteer.

In 1995, Nancy received an Award of Merit for her contributions to Boy Scouts. Active in the program, she has served as committee chair, trainer for adult leaders and workshop development and presentation for adult leaders.

Nancy is very active in her church, helping to raise $600,000 for a building addition and serving as Sunday school superintendent, release time coordinator and Sunday school teacher. She is also currently serving in her third year as president of the Heartland Concert Association.

Residents of Park Rapids, for nine years, she and her husband, Mike, have three children.

The theme for the October 23 event was "Successful Women Build Successful Communities" with The Honorable Kathleen A. Blatz, Chief Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court, as its keynote speaker. Justice Blatz discussed the court system's response to challenges faced by Minnesota's children and families.

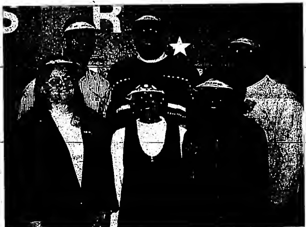
The afternoon also featured the performance of Peaceful Women, an a cappella quartet, as wells as drawings for door prizes and a raffle for a Bobby Wagner original quilt.

Among those attending the event from Thief River Falls included Darla Twomey, Jean Heinrichs and Carol Ihle.

The Northwest Minnesota Women's Fund was established for the purpose of promoting ideas and supporting programs for the continuing strengthening and empowerment of all women. Its goals include creating public awareness of the issued and challenges specifically affecting women and girls and their impact on families, schools, the work place and communities and creating opportunities for women to develop strengths and reach their full potential, to exercise their own judgment and to direct their own finances in support of projects benefiting women and girls.

For more information about the Northwest Minnesota Women's Fund, call 1-800-659-7859 or (218) 759-2057.

Shirley Colden was the winner of the recent Women's 4-Game Singles tournament at Family Bowl. The tournament, open to all WIBC members, included 16 entries. Shirley won with an 850 total, four games with handicap. Deanne Thompson finished second, and Suzanne Paterson and Val Peradis tied for third place. A woman's doubles tournament is scheduled for December 4 with more details available at Family Bowl or from E.J. Landobeje, tournament committee chair.



Millennium Madness Starts Here! Those words greeted students at the front door of Challenger Elementary and Preschool on Monday as the school launched a new reading program. Most teachers and faculty wore visors and the commons area was decorated, sparking the students interest in the program. Pictured are (front left) Judy Lindquist and Julie K. Olson, Title I teachers; Darcie Delager, second grade teacher; (back, left) John Rutten, asst. principal; Howard Thorson, dean of students; and Jeff Murrell, principal. Millennium Madness challenges students in each of the school's four "schoolhouses" to read 2,000 books by January 1, 2000. Students who are too young to read will compete by having books read to them. Once a book has been read, the student writes the name of it on a Millennium Madness paper strip which will be used to create a chain. If the challenge is met, a celebration will be held following the holiday break.

New State rules on septic systems now in effect

The state rule governing septic systems was recently revised, and contractors and local regulators should be advised that a new rule is now in place. Minnesota Rule Chapter 7080, governing the location, design, installation, use and maintenance of Individual Sewage Treatment Systems (ISTS, commonly known as septic systems) became effective October 4, 1999.

The revised rule is the result of more than a year of extensive public outreach and input, culminating in public hearings last spring. The new rule gives local governments several new options for individual sewage treatment.

"A big advantage of the new rule is it gives property owners and local governments more flexibility to choose among a variety of sewage treatment options, especially for different local or regional conditions," said Lori Frekot, ISTS coordinator for the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency. "It gives us more management tools to ensure responsible use of ISTS technologies."

The rule has a number of other new provisions, including revised training and inspection requirements for ISTS professionals, and a requirement for septic-tank pumpers to keep records which must be provided to property owners if requested when the property is sold or transferred.

Copies of the rule will be mailed to all county and city governments that have adopted ISTS ordinance. It is also available on Internet at www.revisor.leg.state.mn.us/arule/7080. For more information the revised rule contact Lori Frekot or Mark Wespetal at the MPCA, 651-296-6300 or 1-800-657-3864.

What To Do Instead of Spanking

Parents who use spanking as a method of controlling their children's behavior usually do so because 1) it seems the easiest, most effective way to modify behavior, 2) by and large they themselves were spanked and 3) they believe they have no other option. In truth, research shows that spanking is a poor disciplinary measure with harmful long-term side effects (see last week's column). The good news is that there are many other ways to manage a child's behavior. Here are some suggestions:

1. Create an environment of clear expectations, which help kids feel safe. Clear expectations include statements that describe your expectations in terms that your child can understand.

2. Reward appropriate behavior. Hugs, smiles and special time together are all rewards that reinforce appropriate behavior and encourage progress.

3. When a child breaks a rule or acts inappropriately, find a consequence that fits the problem and the age of your child.

4. Keep in mind that very young children are not candidates for discipline. You need to deal with infants and toddlers in a different manner. They are not yet able to control their behavior as an older child does. To prevent them from hurting themselves, baby-proof your house and use redirection or distraction when a child is in danger or misbehaving.

These are only a few ideas for parents to try. The more ideas you have the better, as no one idea will work in all situations or with all children. Good Luck!

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

For infants and toddlers, redirection can simply mean to distract: "Look what I have over here!" and then get them interested in something else.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Election Day Is Upon Us

I'm writing this column Monday, the day before Election Day, so I can say that I am looking forward to casting my vote tomorrow and I hope everyone else exercises his and her right to vote too. By the time you read this, most of the hoop-la will be coming to a close, or maybe, for those of you who get your Times on Wednesday, it will already be over, but tonight I have no idea how the elections will go and I can speculate all I want.

This year we have a wonderful variety of candidates to choose from and a very important issue to decide, that of whether or not some of our eating establishments will allow hard liquor sales on Sundays. It is very important that our opinions are heard on this issue and I'm anxious to hear how the vote goes on it. It is also very important that we choose a good person to represent us on the city council. If we've done our homework, it should be a simple matter to choose the best person for the job, right?

Speaking of a wonderful variety of candidates, isn't it something how many brave people chose to cast their hats in the ring for the council member positions? There is a good mix of candidates for this election and we should all be able to find one or two who we feel can represent us best. Some of us are lucky enough to be able to choose council members from our districts as well as a council member-at-large, so will have a chance to choose two people to represent our interests.

I was very surprised to see how many of our citizens decided to run for the council member positions this year, and I would like to congratulate all of them. I'm sure they are all aware of the time and energy it will take to hold a public office, and it shows their commitments to our fair city that they are all willing to put forth the effort. Too bad that only a few of them will be able to win, but I hope those who do not win will learn from the experience and consider running in the next election.

Our town needs new blood, new people with new ideas, to join those leaders who are more experienced. We need a good mixture of ages leading our city, too, the older to guide and teach the younger and the younger people to bring some fresh and novel ideas to revitalize our town. Younger people should not be afraid of seeking public office. After all, what better model do we have for young citizens than our young mayor, who, it appears, is doing a very good job.

So, as well as having an outstanding, unusually large array of candidates for city council this year, I hope we also have an outstanding, unusually large voter turnout too. It seems that the older citizens always make their way to the polls for an election, but not so many of the younger people bother to take the time to vote. Those of us older citizens remember that voting is a privilege and an honor, hard fought for and won, and we're going to take part in it no matter what. I hope the younger voters learn to feel the same.

So, good luck to all of the candidates and thank you for your time and effort in trying to make our city better. We appreciate you, and even if you don't win, keep right on trying.

Program to train pastoral assistants

A program for training lay people to be pastoral assistants in the Northwestern Minnesota Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America will be launched Saturday, November 6 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church in Moorhead.

The program called GIFTS, "Growing in Faith to Serve," was started in 1986 at Bethany Lutheran Church in Minot, ND and has been a program of North Dakota synods of the ELCA since 1989, training over 250 men and women to become pastoral assistants.

Participants choose a major area of study and work such as ministry to youth or elderly, assisting in worship, educational programs, visitation of shut-ins and other work as needed in their congregations. Pastors serve as mentors.

Luther Seminary of St. Paul provides staff for most of the teaching sessions, and twice a year, participants have the opportunity to attend special training sessions at the seminary. There are also several training sessions held in the synod during the year.

Rev. Arland O. Fiske is coordinating the program in the Northwestern Minnesota Synod. The founder of the program, Rev. Fiske has been a pastor and educator in North Dakota, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota.

Both lay people and ministers are invited to the sessions at Trinity Lutheran in Moorhead. For more information, call Rev. Nancy Larson at the synod office in Moorhead at (218) 299-3019.

Zion Leisure Fellowship to meet

Zion Leisure Fellowship will meet today (Wednesday, November 3) at 2 p.m.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

It is time to ban artificial, manufactured, trained, forced, corporate cheerfulness!

I just called a hotel, and instead of hearing the usual, "Hello, Dixie's Deluxe Hotel," I was treated to the following lingo: "You're someone special at Dixie's Deluxe Hotel, this is Trevor, how can I help you?"

I couldn't hold back. I blurted out, "You poor kid, having to answer the phone like that!" Trevor stuttered around before connecting me to the room I wished to call.

Ten minutes later, I called again, half trying to get ahold of a friend at the hotel, and half trying to see if these people were for real.

They were. Once again: "You're someone special at Dixie's Deluxe Hotel, this is Amanda, how can I help you?"

"Well, you're special too, Amanda," I said. "Please connect me to room 241."

This phony friendliness is spreading like an epidemic throughout American business.

You go to a chain restaurant, and the wait-persons act as if they are reading off of cue cards. "Hi, my name is Mindy, and I will be your server tonight."

"Well, my name is Eric, and I am going to be your customer tonight," I sometimes reply with a toothy, fake grin.

But that is rude. None of this is Mindy's fault. It is the fault of some idiot back at headquarters who decided that you can stuff people's head with memorized phrases which will make them seem helpful even when they really don't care.

Chain restaurant wait-persons are trained to come back to the table every five minutes, clasp their hands, smile, and say, "Is there anything else I can get you folks tonight?"

I beat one waitress to the punch. As she approached for her obligatory visit, I asked for some ketchup.

She acted annoyed and mumbled okay. Then, despite already knowing what I wanted, she clasped her hands, pasted on a plastic grin and said in a sing-songy voice, "Is there anything else that I can get you folks tonight?"

I had already told her what else I needed that night, and it was ketchup, but she stuck to her script. The ketchup never came.

What would be wrong with training servicepersons to treat others like they would like others to treat them? Service can't be memorized or faked. It has to come from the heart.

The bogus "You're someone special..." lingo at Dixie's Deluxe does the hotel no good. It just makes me cranky. I don't want some Trevor or Amanda telling me that I am special. Trevor and Amanda don't know me, and they probably wouldn't think I was special if they did.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Lisa McKercher, Lincoln High School

Something incredibly strange is going on. It isn't at school and it doesn't involve the police. It involves my basement – more specifically, my laundry room.

Ah, the laundry room. Many hours of my time are spent there sorting, bleaching, ironing, and folding. Not too much action can happen in a laundry room, huh? Think again.

It all began about two months ago. The routine was the same. I took a bundle of whites from the dryer and began to fold. The radio was on and each fold was right on beat. Got to make it interesting somehow, right? All of the sudden I noticed what I was folding was not my own. I took a closer look at the unidentified shirt with the bright sun on the font. In the middle it read, "A slacker revolves around the world just as fast as a productive person." Ok, this was a bit odd. This shirt appeared from the dryer, yet I have no memory of it or its entrance into the washing machine. You'd think you'd remember a shirt like that. Without trying to figure out a mystery I didn't actually care much about in the first place, I let it slip from my mind without much more than a second thought. That was incident number one.

About a month and a half down the road, I was spending yet another evening with the laundry. After creating a variety of individual piles and delivering them to their designated homes, my final stop was my bedroom. I put my pajamas in the drawer and jeans in the closet, but then I came across something unexpected- an unfamiliar sweater. This was no "slacker" shirt as I'd come across the month before. This was a nice, high quality sweater. "Could this be...a mystery sweater?" I pondered quietly to myself. At this point I really started to think. I'd heard of clothes disappearing in the wash or one or two socks vanishing, but whole articles of clothing appearing from nowhere? Come on now. Could my dad be amusing himself by strategically fooling with the laundry, along with my head? No, I ruled that out. Once again, I ignored the laundry. I accepted the mystery sweater as one of my own and invited it into my closet to bond with the others. That was incident number two.

This brings me to last Sunday morning. I gathered the laundry basket full of dirty clothes and made my way down the stairs. My bare feet hit the cement and I flipped the light on. Right away I noticed them. They were hanging from the ceiling with tee shirts from the week before. I set my basket down and my hands actually flew up and covered my open mouth. There were my gray sweat pants, looking better than ever before. Oh, the comfort. I thought they had left me, without a farewell, in the bag my sister took to college. There they hung, calling out my names as if to say, "Put me on, old friend. I'm comfy." So I did, forgetting just how they had actually come back to me. That was incident number three, the final incident.

I'm not complaining about the new wardrobe I am receiving, although, although I am a bit frightened. What will I be wearing next week? Only the mystery of the laundry will tell.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I reach age 62 next January when the change in retirement age takes effect. Will this also change the age at which I can get Medicare in the future?

A. No. Changes to the retirement age did not change Medicare entitlement so you will still be able to sign up for Medicare when you attain age 65. This question refers to the age a person must be in order to receive an unreduced Social Security retirement benefit. Since the program began this age has been 65, also known as the "full retirement age", because starting benefits at age 65 meant that benefits were not reduced for age. Legislation enacted when Ronald Reagan was president stipulated that the full retirement age would gradually increase up to age 67 with the initial year of birth involved being 1938. To get an unreduced Social Security retirement benefit, those born in 1938 would have to be age 65 plus two months. Benefits can still be started at age 62 assuming all requirements are met. The gradual phasing in of the age change is scheduled to conclude with those born in 1960 and later at which time the full retirement age will be 67. Even then, SSA retirement will still be able to begin at 62 although reduction rates for early retirement at age 62 will be different than they are now.

Q: If a man is disabled can he receive disability through the work record of his wife if he does not have much work on his own record?

A: No. Social Security does not have a benefit category for a husband or wife to receive disability through the work record of their living spouse. There are provisions for disabled widow(er) benefits within set requirements.

Q: with the new year fast approaching, I am considering the use of magnetic media reporting of wage information for my business. Where do I get information about this?

A: The Social Security Administration magnetic media coordinator for this area is Bill Bates. He is based in Denver, CO, but has the toll-free number 800-314-1964. This number is strictly for the magnetic media wage reporting issues. Call him for the information sought.

Q: Is there a fee for changing my name on my Social Security card? I just got married.

A: No. Fees are not charged by Social security for any of its basic activities including anything dealing with the issuance, maintenance or replacement of Social Security cards. To change the name on your card we will need to see an original (not a photocopied) document, such as the marriage certificate, showing both your old and new name. Multiple documents established in both your old and current name are also acceptable. Documents are returned to you. You will also need to complete the application form SS-5, which is available at many post offices, the SSA national toll-free number 800-772-1213, all Social Security offices and from the agency website www.ssa.gov. You can complete the entire process by mail. Again, there is no charge for this service.

Update: Earlier this year the Federal Record Service Corporation had a civil suit filed against it by the U.S. Attorney in Manhattan, NY. This court action alleged that Federal Record Service mislead and defrauded the public through solicitations for services that purported to assist people in obtaining Social Security cards for newborns or replacement cards for newlyweds. Federal Record Service Corporation charged a $15 fee for services available for free from the Social Security Administration (SSA). Many consumers, including local people had complained that the mailings led them to believe that they were being contacted by SSA or a company affiliated with SSA.

An agreement has been reached with the firm, which effectively shuts down its operation. The corporation will be dissolved according to NYS corporate law and has been fined a penalty of $195,000 and other costs. The settlement also prohibits the firm from selling or transferring personal information received from consumers to any other person, corporation or entity. Proceedings against other defendants in the case are still pending.

In a release concerning the case, SSA Acting Inspector James G. Huse Jr. said, "bilking consumers under Social Security's good name will not be tolerated. Fighting deceptive mailings involving SSA's trademarks and logos will continue to be a top investigative priority for our office."

See the SSA website, www.ssa.gov for more information about this settlement and other Social Security information.

The wind is raising havoc around there today. Limbs have been falling on the roof making me think someone is in the other rooms. The big evergreen trees are getting a real workout, but the ones with no leaves left on have nothing for the wind to push against. If they had been fully covered with leaves, I think they would have blown down.

Nordics part of 8A tournament

■ MCC will face Win-E-Mac in semifinal match

Head coach Mark Jorgenson is concerned that Marshall County Central will be battling two foes Friday when his team takes on Win-E-Mac in the 1999 Section 8A high school volleyball tournament semifinals at Crookston High School.

The perennially strong Patriots present the first challenge. Nerves could also be an obstacle for the Nordics since it'll be their first sectional tournament appearance in 11 years. During that same span, Win-E-Mac has won five Section 8A titles and finished as Class A state tournament runner-up three times – in 1990, 1996 and 1998.

"Nerves could be a factor," admitted Jorgenson. "We haven't been to the (section) tournament since 1988. We'll have to get used to the tournament atmosphere, and the pressure that comes with it. That's something that teams like Win-E-Mac are used to since they've been there before."

But that's not to say the Nordics don't belong in the four-team state tournament-qualifying field. They are 20-6 after coming back from a 2-0 deficit to beat Climax/Fisher 13-15, 11-15, 15-8, 15-13, 15-11 in Thursday's Sub-Section 31A finals.

Section 8A Volleyball
■ Semifinals Friday, Nov. 5 - (at Crookston High School) Ado-Borup vs. Kittson Central, 5 p.m.; Win-E-Mac vs. Marshall County Central, 6:30 p.m.
■ Championship Saturday, Nov. 6 - (at Crookston High School), 1 p.m.

Jorgenson starts seniors Kristi Kilen, Mandi Blawat, Christa Hagen, Holly Augustine, and Emily Kragness, along with junior Tera Davidson. Senior Jill Anderson, junior Missy Jorgenson and sophomore Alicia Halvorson are the top players off the bench.

Kilen and Davidson are the team's leading hitters, with Blawat and Kragness providing support.

"Our strength is up the middle," with Kristi and Tera," said Jorgenson, "but we can move it around. Defensively, we like to try to stop teams at the net with our blocking. Our back row is solid, too."

The last time Marshall County Central extended its season this far was in 1988 when the Nordics lost a 15-7, 15-10, 15-13 Region 8A tournament semifinal match to Cass Lake, then beat Plummer 15-13, 15-13, 4-15, 15-13 in the third place match to finish 22-4.

That was under Tom Mjelde, who stepped down at the close of the season after leading the Nordics to five district titles during an eight-year stint as the volleyball coach at the Newfolden school, where he was also the head girls basketball coach. Jorgenson succeeded Mjelde as volleyball coach the next fall.

Win-E-Mac was an 8-15, 15-7, 15-9, 15-10 Saturday winner over Fosston in the Sub-Section 29A finals.

The Section 8A tournament opens with a 5 p.m. match Friday that will pit Ada-Borup against Kittson Central. The Cougars swept Norman County West 15-3, 15-3, 15-4 in the Sub-Section 30A championship match Saturday. The Wolfpack got by Stephen-Argyle 15-6, 15-12, 12-15, 15-8 in the Sub-Section 32A title match Friday.

Winners will meet in the 1 p.m. Section 8A title match Saturday. Combination Class AAA, AA and A state tournament will be played Nov. 11-13 at the University of Minnesota.

Mustangs lose in overtime

Climax/Fisher scored with four minutes remaining in regulation time for a tie, then reached the end zone on the first play in overtime Friday for a 38-30 Nine-Man Section 7 high school football playoff semifinal win over Red Lake County Central.

The Mustangs' 1999 season ended at 5-5. They were the defending Section 7 champions.

"It was a good ball game," said Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Somebody's got to win and somebody's got to lose. Unfortunately, we were the ones to lose."

Red Lake County Central ran up some impressive numbers, but fell short where it mattered the most – on the scoreboard. With Matt Hruby rushing for 240 yards on 23 carries, the Mustangs finished the game with 399 yards on 64 running plays. Wade Westlake wound up with 89 yards on 15 carries and Andy Gustafson gained 70 yards on 23 attempts.

"We did a phenomenal job running the ball," said Brantl. "We did what we wanted to do on offense; we moved the ball on the ground.

But Climax/Fisher also did well on offense. Freshman quarterback Nick Beiswenger was 14-for-21 passing for 267 yards and three touchdowns. With an additional 256 yards on the ground, the host Knights accumulated 523 yards worth of offense.

"It was a good offensive show," acknowledged Brantl. "Neither defense was able to stop the other team."

Red Lake County Central opened the scoring with a second-possession touchdown when Hruby broke away on an 85-yard run. Westlake added the conversion run.

A 54-yard Beiswenger touchdown pass to Brian Peterson and a Nick Beiswenger conversion pass to Nathan Beiswenger tied it.

Nine-Man Section 7 Football
■ Semifinals Friday, Oct. 29 - Win-E-Mac 42, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 12; Climax/Fisher 38, Red Lake County Central 30 (ot)
■ Championship Wednesday, Nov. 3 - (Fargodome) Win-E-Mac vs. Climax/Fisher, 10 a.m.

Gustafson scored on a 5-yard run and Hruby reached the end zone on the conversion attempt for a 16-8 Red Lake County Central lead that held up at intermission when Hruby stopped a Climax/Fisher threat on an end zone interception with two seconds left in the first half.

First Red Lake County Central drive of the second half expanded the Mustangs' lead to 22-8 when Westlake scored from seven yards out.

Climax/Fisher pulled even, though, on Nick Beiswenger touchdown passes covering 37 yards to James Midboe in the third quarter and 25 yards to Nathan Beiswenger in the fourth quarter. The game-tying score capped a 99-yard drive following a Red Lake County Central fumble at the Knights' goal line that kept the Mustangs from gaining another two-touchdown edge.

Hruby scored on a 2-yard run and Benji Kvasager added the conversion points on a pass from Carl Dugstad to put Red Lake County Central back on top 30-22 with 7 1/2 minutes left on the clock.

Climax/Fisher again met the challenge on the Knights' next possession that ended with Nick Beiswenger scoring on a quarterback keeper from a yard out with 4:19 to play. The conversion pass went to Peter Vigness for a 30-30 tie.

Red Lake County Central won the overtime coin toss and elected to go on defense. But the Mustangs gave up a first-snap, 10-yard tie-breaking run to Darrin Hollands. The conversion was a Nick Beiswenger pass to John Hrabik.

That put the pressure on the Mustangs' offense when their turn came for a four-down overtime series from the 10-yard line. On a third-and-five snap, an errant pitch-out was recovered by the Knights to end the game.

"Both teams played hard," noted Brantl. "Both sides were exhausted when it was done."

Hruby complemented his big offensive night with impressive numbers on defense as well with 12 unassisted tackles, 11 assisted stops, an interception and a fumble. Kvasager had 8 tackles, 5 assists and an interception; Westlake had 7 tackles and had 5 assists; Brent Nelson had 4 tackles, 5 assists and an interception; while Heath Rosten had 3 tackles, 4 assists and a fumble recovery.

The setback followed a late-season pattern for the Mustangs, who lost three of their final four games by a combined total of 12 points – including a 21-20 setback at the hands of the Knights two weeks earlier.

"We may have lost some games, but I thought we played well down the stretch," pointed out Brantl.

MCC beaten 58-0 in semifinals

One-sided scores popped up Friday in the Nine-Man Section 8 high school football playoff semifinals as Kittson Central belted Marshall County Central 58-0 and Stephen-Argyle rolled past Kittson County North 49-0.

The Nordics, by virtue of a 24-22 regular season win over the Wolfpack, owned a higher seed and the home field edge for the post-season rematch. But Kittson Central added Aaron Austin to its line-up since that Week 2 meeting. And that made a big difference, according to Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker.

Can one player make that big of a difference? "They do in Nine-Man," said Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "He (Austin) is a remarkable athlete."

Austin started the game by turning a pass from Mitch Deere into an 89-yard touchdown. In the second quarter he caught a 47-yard touchdown pass and returned a punt 53 yards for a touchdown as the Wolfpack opened up a 32-0 halftime spread.

"They (Wolfpack) played really well," noted Parker. "Offensively they have a lot of weapons. Defensively, their linebackers come up fast to fill holes and make tackles – they don't miss."

■ Championship Wednesday, Nov. 3 - (Fargodome) Stephen-Argyle vs. Kittson Central, 12:30 p.m.

Kittson Central racked up 507 yards worth of offense, with 320 coming on the ground and 187 in the air on just 5-of-9 passing by Deere. Marshall County Central netted 201 of its 202 yards on the ground.

Second-seeded Marshall County Central had not played since beating Tri-County 20-6 back on Oct. 12. The loss ended a 4-4 season for a program that has been inching forward with 2-5 and 3-6 finishes the previous two years after an 0-7 effort in 1995.

"It's not the way you want to end," acknowledged Parker, who completed his second year as the Nordics' head coach, "but we did a lot of good things this year. The program is coming around. Every year we're getting better."

A bright spot in the Nordics' final-game blowout was a 23-carry, 130-yard rushing effort by Bjorn Halvorson to hike his season total to 1,118 yards. The 5-9, 170-pound senior, who also excels at linebacker, has been a starter for 3 1/2 years, and served as team captain the past two seasons.

"Bjorn has been a very good leader for us," pointed out Parker. "He has decent speed for a back, but he's not a blazer. He has good vision and can see the field."

Gators drop 22-20 rematch to Ponies in 8A quarterfinals

Section 8A Football
■ Quarterfinals Tuesday, Oct. 26 - Fertile-Beltrami 50, Cass Lake-Bena 6, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 22, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 20, Red Lake Falls 26, Ada-Borup 14, Clearbrook-Gonvick 22, Fosston 20
■ Semifinals Saturday, Oct. 30 - Fertile-Beltrami 27, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 25, Red Lake Falls 42, Clearbrook-Gonvick 14.
■ Championship Thursday, Nov. 4 - (Fargodome) Fertile-Beltrami vs. Red Lake Falls, 3 p.m.

Less than a week after Badger/Greenbush-Middle River beat Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 24-8 to finish the 1999 regular season, the tables were turned in a quick post-season rematch as the Ponies knocked off the Gators 22-20 in a Tuesday (Oct. 26) Section 8A high school football playoff quarterfinal round game at Middle River.

The Gators, after a tough first half in which the Ponies had a 17-7 time advantage on offense en route to a 16-7 lead, closed the gap after intermission. A 1-yard touchdown run by Kagen Waage with 2:15 to play made it a two-point game, but Warren-Alvarado-Oslo came up with a game-saving defensive effort against a bootleg pass on the conversion.

"It was a frustrating night," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "We shot ourselves in the foot with three fumbles and an interception."

Waage rushed for 114 yards and Josh Smith had 82 in the Gators' 215-yard ground game. David Truscinski, who continued to play despite suffering a shoulder separation on the second half kickoff, was 8-for-15 passing for 166 yards. Ian Rinde caught four passes for 35 yards. Smith netted 89 yards on a pair of receptions.

It was an earlier-than-expected exit for the Gators, who have played for a title the past three years. Bouncing between three different classes, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River won a Section 8C title in 1996, claimed a Section 8AA crown in 1997 and was a Section 8AA runner-up in 1998. Because of a change in enrollment figures, the Gators were in Class A this fall.

"They (Ponies) made the big plays," noted Neibauer. "Our defensive line just didn't come ready to play in the first half."

Marshall Co. Central sophomores...

Larsons are Class A state meet qualifiers

Twin brothers Josh and Andy Larson, sophomores at Marshall County Central, will be competing in the Class A boys portion of the 1999 Minnesota state high school cross country meet Saturday at St. Olaf College in Northfield.

The Larsons, who run with the multiple-school, multiple-community Badger/Greenbush-Middle River/ Marshall County Central/Tri-County cooperative, advanced to state with top-seven finishes at the Section 8A meet Thursday in Bagley, where Josh was second by a 16:09-16:28 margin to Stephen Staskivige of Bagley/Fosston and Andy was fourth in 16:49.

In addition to the individual qualifiers, the top two teams also earn state meet berths. Bagley/Fosston and Warroad finished 1-2 in the boys' race, while Deer River/Northland and Perham were first and second, respectively, in the girls' competition. Carolyn Sailer of Perham was the girls' individual winner.

It'll be the second state meet appearance for Andy, who finished 75th in last year's meet. Late-season illness robbed Josh of a chance to run at the state as a freshman. It's normally a Josh-Andy finish in meets, with Josh winning individual honors at Park Rapids, Crookston and Karlstad this fall.

It's a competitive sibling rivalry, but nothing that gets overly personal. "They make real good practice partners" said Kim Jones, half of the coaching tandem who directs practice sessions for the Marshall County Central and Tri-County portion of the program that has been together for a number of years. Mitch Harmonning handles the job for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River runners, who joined the cooperative four years ago. "The coop works well," noted Jones. "It allows us to field complete teams. We get together about five times during the year for team workouts in the state park."

Jones said the state meet is a deserving reward for the efforts the Larsons put in, not only during the season, but during the summer when Newfolden-area distance runner Kent Warne becomes their mentor.

"We're hoping they do well," said Jones. "Compared with other sections, their times are competitive."

Combination Class AA and Class A boys and girls state cross country meet will begin with the Class AA boys race at 11 a.m., followed by the Class AA girls at 12-noon, Class A boys at 1 p.m., and Class A girls at 2 p.m.

Cardinals claim two cross country titles

Host Alexandria won both team titles Thursday at the 1999 Section 8AA boys and girls high school cross country meet.

The Cardinals finished with a 45-65 edge over runner-up Sartell in the boys' portion of the meet and had a 70-79 edge over second place Moorhead in the girls' race. Top two teams advance to the state meet, along with the top seven individual runners.

Those individual qualifiers were led by Ryan Ford of St. Cloud Apollo and Lisa Remark of Moorhead.

The 96 boys and 94 girls who competed in the meet ran under near-ideal weather conditions that 49 degrees, sunny skies and a light wind, reported Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons. His Prowlers trailed the field in both races.

"Some of the top runners were turning in great times," noted Persons. "We didn't come with our best results. We had a good effort, but the results weren't as positive. I felt we had rested enough to where our team's legs could take their times down."

Senior Brody Anderson (85th) and sophomore Jackie Mooney (71st) were the Prowlers' top place finishers in the two races.

"I feel disappointed for our seniors, who had good expectations," said Persons, who completed his first year as the Prowlers' head coach.

Two Northland volleyball players earn recognition

Two Northland Community and Technical College volleyball players were named to the Minnesota Community College Conference All-Northern Division team announced at the close of the 1999 season.

Sandy Brekke, a freshman middle hitter from Win-E-Mac, was a First Team selection, while Amie Kotrba, a sophomore outside hitter from Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, was a Second-Team pick.

"It's a great honor, as a coach, to have two players named to the all-division teams," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "Both Sandy and Amie are so deserving of the honor. I am very proud of them, and of the accomplishments of the entire team this season."

Northland finished the year 13-12 overall and 7-7 in the Northern Division.

Agassiz Refuge open for 1999 deer season

The 1999 firearms deer hunting season at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be held Nov. 6-14 in accordance with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and federal regulations, it was announced this week by refuge officials.

Zone 2 Permit Area 203 consists of Agassiz and the Elm Lake, Eckvoll and Mud Lac Wildlife Management Areas. The area will be open only to legal bucks. There were no antlerless permits offered for this area due to the low deer population.

Aerial deer survey Feb. 20, 1998 estimated the deer population to be approximately 450. A year later, a Feb. 17, 1999 survey estimated that population to be 500. Mild weather conditions have been recorded during the winters of 1997-99, permitting a high survival rate. Many does produced twin fawns in both 1998 and 1999, helping the recovery of the deer numbers in the area.

For 1999, the pre-hunt deer population is estimated to be between 700 to 800 within the 131 square miles of Area 203. The pre-fawn (spring) deer density for 1998 and 1999 was four deer per square mile – much below the density objective level of 13.5 to 16.5 deer per square mile.

Deer taken in Permit Area 203 must be registered in Zone 2. There is no check station at the refuge headquarters, but there is at least one in most nearby towns. A total of 40 buck deer were harvested in Area 203 in 1998. Deer harvest average for the past 10 years is 381.

Except for two closed areas around the headquarters and maintenance center building areas, the entire refuge will be open to deer hunting. Closed areas are posted with signs and are clearly marked on refuge hunting leaflets. Entrance into these areas is not permitted. If a wounded deer goes into a closed area, refuge personnel must be contacted before the deer can be pursued. Deer hunting regulation signs with a map of antlerless Area 203 are placed at six locations on the refuge showing open roads and listing refuge regulations.

Any hunter that is permanently or temporarily physically challenged and wants to use the refuge deer hunting platform needs to contact refuge personnel at the headquarters before or during the deer season.

Within Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, preseason scouting will be allowed Friday, Nov. 5, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Gates will be closed at 3:30 p.m. that day.

Hunters are reminded that construction of, or hunting from, permanently constructed tree stands is illegal. Portable stands are legal and can be placed at any height, but cannot be left overnight to pre-empt a hunting area.

Spotlighting is illegal on the refuge all year. Casting spotlights or vehicle lights from a public road onto the refuge is considered spotlighting.

Camping is not permitted on the refuge. Camping is available on an adjacent state wildlife management areas where camping permitted signs are located.

Access onto the refuge by foot or vehicle is permitted after 5:30 a.m. You must leave the refuge as soon as possible after legal shooting hours. Gates on roads that will be open to vehicle travel will be opened at 5:30 a.m. All other refuge roads, trails and dikes will be restricted to foot traffic, bicycles and non-motorized carrying devices for transporting deer.

Non-motorized vehicles is prohibited on the refuge. For information on the use of off-road motorized vehicles on state wildlife management areas during the firearms deer hunting season, see the DNR 1999 hunting regulations.

Hunter safety is always of special concern, said refuge officials, who noted that hunters need to be aware of others in the area to prevent shooting accidents. They add, "always be sure that the object being shot at is a deer. Look beyond the deer to make sure another person is not standing in the line of fire."

Potential for hypothermia and heart attack also exists. You should check ice conditions before attempting to cross any water areas. Most ditches in the area have five to eight feet of water. Hunter caution and awareness is advised.

First aid rescue equipment is on hand at refuge headquarters. If assistance is needed contact refuge personnel at headquarters. All hunting accidents on the refuge must be reported immediately at headquarters.

You are invited to stop by the refuge office and share your deer hunting story with refuge personnel.

Any questions about deer hunting on the refuge can be answered by calling 218-449-4115, extensions 211, 214 or 215.

Rochester wins MCCC state football title, 42-9

Rochester pushed its record to 10-0 Saturday with a 42-9 win over Ridgewater in the 1999 Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoff finals at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

The regular season MCCC Southern Division champion Yellowjackets reached the title game with a 39-0 semifinal victory over Vermilion a week earlier. Ridgewater beat Northern Division pennant winner Northland 19-9 in the other semifinal game to earn a spot in the finals.

Change announced for Franklin pool schedule

Due to scheduling conflicts with lifeguards, morning lap swimming hours at the Franklin Middle School pool will be changed, effective Monday, Nov. 8.

The new hours will be 6 to 7:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Lap swimming will no longer be available Thursday mornings.

Lack of participation necessitated the canceling of the water polo program at this time, but look for the activity to resume again next summer, said pool officials.

Cost for using the pool is $1.50 for ages 18-under and $2 for adults. Water aerobics utilizes a pass that can be purchased at the pool.

Pool users were reminded that if school is cancelled, or has a delayed start, lap swimming is cancelled. And if school is let out early due to weather, the pool will be closed that evening.

Weekly Pool Schedule
■ Lap swimming - 6-7:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday; 6-7 p.m. Monday through Thursday.
■ Water aerobics - 6-7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Gallagher is selected Player of the Week at Northwestern College

John Gallagher, a Northwestern College senior defensive tackle from Goodridge, was named the National Christian College Athletic Association football Player of the Week for his Oct. 23 efforts against Westminster College.

Gallagher's career day included four sacks, 11 tackles (five of them for losses of 22 yards), two forced fumbles, a fumble recovery, and a pass deflection. He anchored a defensive effort that held the nation's No. 1 offense to half of its season-long average.

Chris Grabowska, another Goodridge product on the Northwestern College defensive line, earned NCCAA Player of the Week honors Sept. 18.

Prowler swim team to finish regular season at North Border meet

Final regular season outing of the 1999 season will take the Thief River Falls girls high school swim team to Roseau Friday for the North Border Conference meet.

The Section 8A swimming and diving championships will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 12 and 13, at the University of North Dakota.

Thief River Falls' final dual of the year was held Thursday when the Prowlers came up with a 135-46 win at Crookston.

A personal-best 1:14.31 by Tiffany Sorenson in the 100 breaststroke was an "outstanding swim," according to Thief River Falls coach Mary Helen Houlihan.

Other highlights, pointed out Houlihan, from the win that completed an 8-4 dual meet season included first place finishes by Kristin Naplin in the 50 freestyle (28.02) and Chelsea Haviland in the 100 backstroke (1:05.01), along with a close 1-2-3 finish by Brittany Haviland, Lindsay Ehrenstrom and Danica Schroeder in the 100 freestyle.

"Crookston is always an interesting pool to swim in because it is a metered pool rather than a yardage pool, so all final times have to be converted in order to qualify for the regional (section) meet," explained Houlihan.

TRF Sports Boosters to meet at noon Thursday

Fine arts programs at Lincoln High School will be the topic of conversation Thursday during the weekly 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meeting at the Elks.

Guest speakers will include choir direction Darcy Reese, theatre director Connie Stock and orchestra director Derek Druse.

TRF jail facility receives 100% rating from state

Pennington County Sheriff Michael Hruby announced last week that the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center jail facility had received a 100-percent rating from the Minnesota Department of Corrections.

Sheriff Hruby said that this rating continues the many years of excellence the jail has recorded, and despite the fact that the new wing of the facility was included in the inspection. Hruby explained that the jail has received a 100-percent rating for the last five to six years. It is important this year, he said, because the addition of the new security facility means the new building, and more people were included in the inspection.

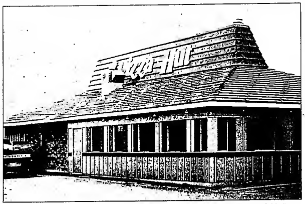
Inspections are conducted every year. Officials can drop in anytime for an inspection, but big inspections like the one conducted last Tuesday, are usually announced. These inspections cover all aspects of jail operation.

9-1-1 system in Pennington Co. is Y2K compliant

Pennington County Sheriff Michael Hruby announced last week that the 9-1-1 system in Pennington county is Y2K compliant.

Sheriff Hruby said that in talking with telephone service providers, and checking the lists of equipment and specifications of the 9-1-1 system in Pennington county, the last bit of information received indicates that the system is Y2K compliant.

Sheriff Hruby said, however, there is always the possibility that something will go wrong. In the event that something does go wrong, the regular telephone number for the law enforcement center is available. That number is 681-6161.



Monday's high winds raised havoc with a number of area businesses and homes, including the Pizza Hut on Hwy. 59 south. Pizza Hut manager Mery Mertell said that the loss of shingles from the building's roof was like a "domino effect." Customers were warned of the flying shingles by staff and Thief River Falls police officers. Mery expressed her gratitude to Brian Schindler, a construction worker who happened to be driving by, who stopped to help with the recovery of shingles. The incident did not interrupt the restaurant's service, and Mertell said, "The rest of the day was a normal Monday."

Applications for state gambling committee sought

The Minnesota Department of Human Services is seeking applications to fill 13 positions on its advisory committee on compulsive gambling. Terms run from January 1, 2000, to December 31, 2001. Applications are due November 15.

The committee, which meets bimonthly, is charged with advising the department on policy, programs and funding related to the Compulsive Gambling Treatment program mandated under Minnesota statute 245.98. The program sets treatment certification standards and also funds inpatient and outpatient treatment, research, a resource library, public education and awareness efforts, in-service training and statewide conferences and a statewide, toll-free, 24-hour referral service number (1-800-437-3641).

In making appointments, consideration will be given to achieving geographic, age, gender and cultural balance on the committee.

Interested persons should contact Kathleen Porter at 651-582-1819, or fax to 651-582-1831, or kathleen.porter@state.mn.us

Extension Service offers age guidelines for tractor driving

What is the right age for a boy or girl on a farm to start driving a tractor? The safety of the child is clearly the first consideration, says John Shutske, agricultural safety and health specialist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"There are 100-150 childhood fatalities in farming each year in this country, and more than 22,000 serious injuries," says Shutske. "These numbers are not acceptable. The best way to reduce risk for our kids is to make sure they are physically and mentally ready to do a task safely."

Guidelines on the appropriate age for children to be allowed to operate tractors in various situations are contained in a booklet available from the University of Minnesota. A working group of U.S. and Canadian farm safety experts and child development specialists in cooperation with dozens of farm families in both countries developed the guidelines.

"The guidelines are based on practical knowledge of child development principles," says Shutske. "They incorporate information about an individual child's capacity to make decisions, react accurately to situations, process information, and understand the results of potentially dangerous actions. The team that developed the guidelines was also sensitive to the fact that parents take great pride in teaching their children about the values and work ethic that come from working on the family farm."

The booklet with guidelines for tractor driving is available from the University of Minnesota and other sources for $6.75 per copy. The booklet contains information on five specific tractor-related tasks, as well as a general safety chart on tractor operation.

To obtain a single copy of the tractor operation guidelines, order by check or money order payable to the University of Minnesota for $6.75 plus $1 for shipping and handling. Send orders to: Farm Safety and Health Program, Bio-systems and Agricultural Engineering Dept., University of Minnesota, 1390 Eckles Ave., St. Paul, MN 55108. To inquire about volume discounts or for further information, e-mail fs@gaia.bae.umn.edu or call 612-624-7444.

Students urged to look into Project 120

by Rep. Jim Tunheim

High school students interested in learning first-hand about state government have a unique experience through the Project 120 Program. I encourage students interested in spending a week at the State Capitol in St. Paul during the legislative session to look into this program.

During the 2000 Legislative Session, Project 120 will conduct eight seminars beginning on February 6, and ending on March 30. Six of these are open to students in grades 9-12. Two of the seminars have unique program emphasis and eligibility requirements. One is directed toward new American students who have been in the U.S. less than five years and the other is for Native American students to study state and tribal government.

Although there is no deadline for applications, students are encouraged to apply early to enable them to participate in the seminar of their choice.

This "hands-on" study of state government helps prepare students for a life of active and informed citizenship through observation and personal involvement with officials in all three branches of government. Outcomes include: increased knowledge of state government and the leadership process; enhanced skills for accessing and participating in government; meeting students from other parts of the state; and leadership skills. In addition, participation in the program meets some of the State Graduation Standards for this year's 9th and 10th grade students.

Through Project 120, students meet with constitutional officers, legislators, judges, lobbyists, and others who play a vital role in the operation of Minnesota's state government. Participants assume an active role in these meetings and in a variety of workshops, lectures, and tours.

Students currently enrolled in a Minnesota public or private high school in grades 9-12 are eligible to participate. Project 120 seminar fees are $250. This includes tuition, meals, lodging, transportation during the program, and all seminar materials. Transportation to and from the Twin Cities, as well as extra snacks and personal shopping, are the student's own responsibility. All program participants will stay at the Hilton Hotel in downtown Minneapolis. Students will be assigned three to a room.

Scholarships are available for those who demonstrate financial need and meet eligibility guidelines. In addition to Project 120 scholarships, students who require aid are encouraged to seek additional sources of funding from their communities.

For more information and an application, contact the Project 120 office at 332 Minnesota Street, Suite E-1240, St. Paul, MN 55101, proj120@mtn.org or call (651) 224-2100. The program also has a web site at www.project120.org.

Any students with questions about the State Capitol or the Twin Cities can contact me at Box 77, Kennedy, MN 56733, rep.jim.tunheim@house.leg.state.mn.us or (218) 674-4480.

NCTC instructor receives award

Diane Scott, nursing instructor at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls, has received nationwide recognition from the National Council of State Boards of Nursing, located in Chicago. Scott was one of only 16 nurses from across the nation selected to participate in a development panel discussion forming the National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX).

Scott is an instructor at NCTC's satellite nursing school held on the campus of Bemidji State University. At the beginning of this month she traveled to Princeton, NJ, in order to participate as a NCLEX item writer, to assist in the development of exam questions. The Minnesota State Board of Nursing nominated Scott for this prestigious assignment based on her background and nursing expertise.

NCTC President Dr. Orley Gunderson was pleased to hear the announcement. "I am very proud that Diane received such an honor. She is a fine example of the caliber of instructors we have at Northland," said Dr. Gunderson.

Passing the NCLEX is one of the requirements necessary for attaining a nursing license. The National Council is responsible for developing and administering the NCLEX for all nurses in the United States and five U.S. territories.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

-The weather in northwest Minnesota is absolutely wonderful, cool and comfortable. We are noticing the loss of daylight, but with Christmas here in two months, we will be on the other end of the stick again and watch the days lengthen. Since time is all anyone really has, and we all age at the same rate, it's a good idea to take care of it.

Thinking of light, I'm reminded of a fact I once learned, that if you can look beautiful under fluorescent lights, that's something! Even colors are not the same as in daylight or candescent lights. So when you wish to look your best, go for the candles or better yet, moonlight, everyone looks good then.

Roy is interrupting my thinking by chasing a fly which had dared to take refuge in the house from the cold outdoors. Too bad for her that she didn't know Roy's attitude about what is allowed in this domicile. He refuses to cover the big square hole in the middle of that Scandinavian swatter-ss-that would not be giving the fly a fair chance of survival. I thought he meant to kill it anyhow??

Elphie Adlis, president of the Strandquist Seniors, returned from Minot, ND, on Monday, where she had taken in another Hostfest for the umpteenth time. She still enjoys going to the fest, but I think she enjoys seeing her daughter and her family who live there more than all the other Scandihoovians and their lutefisk and lefse. On Thursday the seniors met and pinned a quilt and she took it home and sewed it so it is ready to be tied this coming Thursday when they meet again. Their visitors' were Margaret Lindgren who had chauffeured her mom, Helen Jacobson, Mary Manwarren, Walt Ruud, and Bonita Kosmierczak to the fest.

State tax policies are target for change in electric restructuring

Minnesota's investor-owned and cooperative electric utilities provide about 85 percent of the electricity consumed in Minnesota. In addition to providing a vital commodity, these utilities contribute substantially to the state's tax revenues through tax laws based not on energy policies but on the state's overall revenue needs. The dilemma produced by this tax policy, according to Steve Minn, Commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Commerce, is one of the most difficult problems that must be solved in restructuring the state's electric industry.

"Open and fair competition among all electric generation providers is the ultimate goal of restructuring. It is the prize from which all the other benefits — lower prices, increased innovation, customer choice — will flow," said Minn. "Minnesota's tax structure definitely reduced the likelihood of achieving true competition."

Unlike any other type of business in Minnesota, investor-owned and cooperative utilities are assessed a tax on personal property and machinery. One result is to make these utilities less able to compete with out-of-state and other types of generation companies not subject to these taxes. A second result is to make them a significant source of tax revenue for many counties.

Goodhue county, for example, home to the Prairie Island nuclear power plant, receives nearly 48 percent of its property tax revenues from the owner of that plant, Northern States Power. Itasca county collected 32.8 percent of its property taxes from utilities — nearly all from one utility, Minnesota Power. Electric utilities paid 36.8 percent of Sherburne county's property tax bill and 27.4 percent of Wright county's bill. (The percentages are based on 1995 tax data.)

"These figures underscore the magnitude of the problem," said Minn. "How do we create a level playing field for competitors and at the same time not unduly hurt local governments that depend on these revenues?"

Possible solutions to the problem are being explored by analysts at the Department of Commerce and Department of Revenue, as well as by the local governments and others with an interest at stake. Suggested options include replacing the personal property tax with a transmission line charge, generation tax, or tax on gross receipts. An advantage is that these charges would apply to all generators and level the playing field within the state. Disadvantages include the difficulty of applying these to out-of-state generators. How to distribute these revenues back to the local communities is still another problem.

Eliminating tax disparities is just one of many problems that must be resolved in the restructuring plan that the Ventura administration is scheduled to present to the legislature in 2001. Here is a brief summary of a few of these issues:

- Stranded costs" refers to financial obligations assumed by regulated utilities that are, with the approval of regulators, recovered through customer rates. In a competitive market, customers would be free to leave the utility for a lower cost competitor, "stranding" these costs. The utility could then either "swallow" the costs or spread them among remaining customers, increasing rates and making the utility even less competitive. To avoid this outcome, a number of options are being studies that would allow the utility to recover legitimate, verifiable, stranded costs.
- Reliability of electricity must be a foundation on which a competitive market operates. This includes having an adequate supply — or capacity — as well as a reliable transmission and distribution system. The Department is working closely with the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission and other agencies to determine to what extent the free market can be relied upon to provide adequate supplies and what other means may be necessary.

"Power outages this summer have raised questions about the reliability of the present system," said Minn. "Electric use grew nearly a third within the last decade, and this increase is straining the system. It also appears that because of changes in the industry, many utilities have been reluctant to make the financial investments needed to improve and expand the system. This is another pressing reason why Minnesota and other states must move ahead with their restructuring plans."

The reliability of the transmission system will to a considerable extent be the responsibility of the federal government. Regional transmission organizations are being formed and one or more of these will be responsible for the day-to-day reliability of the power system in our area.

- Unbundling. For the consumer, the "unbundling" of rates will be the necessary first step in presenting customers with choice. Only when generation services are separated out from other costs will the consumer be able to make a rational choice. This summer the Public Utilities Commission began developing guidelines for determining the boundaries between transmission and generation functions and between transmission and local distribution. Other questions to be considered as part of unbundling prices include the methods of pricing and identifying the cost of services and how they should be allocated.

More information on the Department's restructuring plan is available on the Department's web page at www.dpsv.state.mn.us.

DNR financial woes troubling in a time of plenty

by Sen. Roger Moe

It is very troubling to find cuts in popular public services at the same time the State of Minnesota is giving back a record-setting tax break and rebate. The most obvious example of the shortfall comes from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The lack of dedicated hunting and fishing funds — as well as general fund money for state parks, have had serious consequences.

Although funding for park management was increased for the new two-year budget period, DNR officials indicated that they would have needed a larger hike to avoid major service cuts. Of particular concern is the recent closure of camping grounds in 20 state parks.

Historically, state parks with camping facilities have stayed open throughout the year. The DNR decided last month to close camping in several smaller and lesser-used parks from Labor Day to Memorial Day. In some cases, communities have rallied to support their nearby parks, providing stop-gap funding to keep the camp grounds open.

The closings were announced at about the same time state taxpayers received the largest tax rebate in Minnesota history. The rebate returned $1.3 billion as part of an overall $2.9 billion tax cut. The pressure on legislators to provide the largest-possible tax cuts and rebate meant that many of the state agency requests for budget increases could not be fully funded.

Some legislators were caught off guard by the decision to close 20 campgrounds and I agree it may not have been the most appropriate place to cut back based on the Department's claim of a lack of funding. The Legislature appropriated slightly over $24 million for the biennium, up by $850,000. DNR officials had requested another $238,000 above that. They noted that the park system had been struggling to keep up with rising costs.

Minnesota parks are a popular destination. Their use increased by 28 percent between 1987 and 1999. With greater use comes an increase in costs necessary to properly maintain the parks. Fees charged for entering the parks are among the lowest in the nation in an effort to keep them accessible to all families. However, park-entrance fees account for less than one-third of the cost of running the state park system. General state funding picks up the rest of the cost.

In my opinion, the Legislature should look closely at the problem and consider taking appropriate action to ensure in the future that campgrounds are not forced to close due to lack of funds. Unfortunately, Governor Ventura's administration at this time has not committed to support for any supplemental funding during the 2000 Legislative Session.

The parks funding issue will be studied by the Senate Environment and Agriculture Budget Division on Tuesday, Oct. 5, at 1 p.m. in Room 107 of the State Capitol.

Although General Fund dollars are also available to support hunting and fishing, the funding shortfall in this DNR budget area is primarily related to the dedicated license fees paid by hunters and anglers. An effort to raise the fees did not pass the House and was not passed before adjournment of the legislative session, but support for the increase from numerous sporting groups and the general public will make this issue a high priority to address next year.

Hunting license fees have not been raised since 1991, and the most-recent fishing license increase of only $2 came in 1997. The lack of adequate funding from hunting and fishing licenses has resulted in cancellation of the Fall 2000 moose season, halted printing of the DNR magazine Fish & Wildlife Today, and resulted in reduced habitat management and wildlife protection efforts in a variety of areas.

For Minnesotans who appreciate using the camping grounds at our state parks and want to continue enjoying our state fish and wildlife population, the current funding shortfalls in these areas of the DNR budget certainly are disturbing. Unfortunately, when the decision is made to use revenues to cut state taxes sharply, and distribute a record-setting tax rebate, services may suffer.

Protecting logging means protecting Minnesota jobs

by Sen. Rod Grams

In Washington D.C., that stressful time of the year has again arrived during which we consider how the federal government is going to spend the taxpayer's money during the coming fiscal year. And with that annual ritual come the yearly attacks on timber harvests in National Forests.

Unfortunately, this year has been no different than previous years. During Senate consideration of the Interior Department funding bill, two amendments were offered which were aimed at either eliminating or reducing logging on federal land. Like previous years, those amendments were beaten back with only a few votes to spare, which leaves little room for comfort for those areas of our state that rely on logging for their economic livelihoods.

I was proud to join a slim majority of my Senate colleagues in defeating these attacks on balanced management of our National Forests — and I want to take this opportunity to tell you why.

According to the American Forest and Paper Association (AFPA), America's forest and paper industry employs over 1.5 million people and ranks among the top 10 manufacturing employers in 46 states. I think it is important to point out that these are good jobs. These are traditional jobs, that help a family make a living, allow children to pursue a higher education, help keep rural families in rural areas, and provide a legitimate tax base from which rural counties can fund basic services. These are jobs that we in Congress should be working diligently not only to protect, but to grow.

The reduction in the timber program in Minnesota's National Forests has had a dramatic impact over the past 10 years on the number of jobs in our state. According to the Minnesota Forest Industries (MFI), jobs provided by the timber program in Minnesota have dropped from over 1,900 in 1987 to less than 1,100 last year, and they continue to decline.

The reduction in timber harvests on federal lands has had an equally dramatic effect on unrealized economic impacts. MFI estimates that unrealized economic benefits include over $10 million from timber sales, $25 million in federal taxes, $2.5 million in payments to states, and $116 million in community economic impact in Minnesota alone.

It's important to point out that the timber program in National Forests has a very positive impact on the amount of federal money that goes to rural counties and schools. Nationally, the program contributes $225 million to counties and schools each year through the receipts from timber sales in national forests. In Minnesota, the timber program provided roughly $1.7 million to counties and schools in 1998 alone. If the timber program would have met its allowable sale quantity in 1998, that number would have risen to nearly $25 million.

So when your representatives in Washington take steps to reduce or eliminate logging on federal lands, they are also reducing jobs in rural America, weakening the rural tax-base, taking money from counties that are already having a difficult time making ends meet, and depriving your children of the educational opportunities they deserve by taking money from rural schools.

Unfortunately, many Members of Congress who advocate these ideas have never taken the time to understand the positive economic and environmental benefits of science-based timber harvests. They've never sat down with a county commissioner who doesn't know where he is going to get the money for some of the most basic services the county provides to its citizens. They've never considered that for every one million board feet in timber harvest reductions in Minnesota, 10 people lose their jobs and over $570,000 in economic activity is lost. They've never taken the time to go into a healthy forest where prudent logging practices have been essential to ensuring the vitality and diversity of species.

And they've never considered the potential negative impacts dying and diseased forests have on the very ecosystems they claim they are trying to protect — impacts that include dramatically increased chances of catastrophic fires.

In fact, few people realize that trees are growing 600 percent faster in National Forests than are being removed from those forests through harvesting. The AFPA estimates that our National Forests are growing more than 23 billion board feet of wood annually while less than three billion board feet are harvested each year. Clearly, our nation's forests are capable of sustaining a science-based forest management program that protects both the environment and the important jobs and economic activity of forested areas.

Those are just some of the reasons why I have been a proud and long supporter of the timber and paper industry in Minnesota and across the United States. I look forward to both continuing those efforts and to the day when we can separate politics from the proper management of our timber resources.

State working on plan to help farmers

by Gene Hugoson
Commissioner
MN Dept. of Agriculture

Early autumn is usually a time of anticipation for farmers as the harvest draws near, but this year things are different. With prices for many commodities still far below break-even levels due to oversupply and sluggish export markets, it's easy to see why the usual excitement has been largely replaced by apprehension. Although it looks like many parts of the state have another bumper crop on the way, farmers and elected officials are focusing more on the price problem and what may be done to correct it.

Early this year, before many public officials had even acknowledged the farm situation as a priority, Governor Jesse Ventura developed a two-pronged strategy for helping Minnesota farmers. One prong would focus on providing immediate help, and the other would focus on long-term remedies to make our farmers less vulnerable to price fluctuations.

The short-term strategy featured immediate tax relief for farmers. Meanwhile, the long-term strategy called for marshaling the state's resources to help boost farmers' competitive position and pushing for federal action on exports and revenue assurance. We have already started to see success in some of these areas.

Thanks to Governor Ventura and state legislators, the 1999 state legislative session was one of the best ever for Minnesota farmers. The big news was the $122 million total farm tax relief package, the largest ever for Minnesota farmers. In addition, the farm community received millions of dollars in research, marketing and development initiatives.

Next, the Governor's recovery strategy called for the state to help strengthen the competitive position of Minnesota's agricultural community. Governor Ventura created his Farm Cabinet to do just that. The idea behind the Cabinet is that by combining the resources of many state agencies, we can more effectively remove unnecessary obstacles — regulatory or otherwise — that limit the competitive power of the state's farmers.

Another important part of the Governor's relief strategy was pushing for the federal government to do its part. The need for action at the federal level is especially important considering the national and international roots of this price problem. That was the message Governor Ventura and I took to Washington in June. In meetings with federal officials, we asked them to do their part to expand export opportunities for our farmers. We also asked them to help devise better revenue assurance options, including a better national crop insurance program to help farmers weather future market downturns. Finally, we demanded reform of the nation's outdated and unfair dairy pricing system.

We have seen success in this area as well. Our Washington trip attracted media attention to our message and turned up the heat on Congress. Several weeks later, the Senate defeated an attempt to resurrect the old dairy pricing system, clearing the way for USDA to go ahead with reforms that reduce the price discrimination against our dairy farmers.

Now it appears Congress is moving forward on a sizable package of farm aid. Although there are many things still to be ironed out, it looks as if Congress will pass close to $7 billion in relief to farmers around the country. That money will likely be paid out in the form of supplemental Agricultural Marketing Transition Act (AMTA) payments.

As much as that type of short-term aid may help boost spirits, it will not get to the root of the problem. Governor Ventura believes Congress should also be looking at long-term solutions that will help farmers become less vulnerable to price fluctuations. That is why we continue to push for improvements to federal farm programs, especially for stronger crop insurance and more effective marketing assistance. This marketing assistance should concentrate not only on expanding export opportunities abroad, but also on educating farmers here in the United States about the marketing options available to them.

Much has been said about the current farm situation, but one message we have heard time after time is that farmers do not want to be dependent upon the government for their livelihood. They want to be self-sufficient. Governor Ventura greatly respects this attitude, and he and I will continue to push for the types of federal and state policies that allow farmers to be self-sufficient and to live the kind of lives they want.

Of course we realize that Minnesota cannot single-handedly lift global commodity prices, but as I have said before, it was not one thing that got us into this mess, and it will not be one thing that gets us out of it. We will have to use a variety of tools to fix this problem.

For example, in November Governor Ventura and I will travel to Japan with members of state farm groups. In Japan, the world's largest economy after the United States, we will meet with officials to talk about strengthening their agricultural trade ties to our state. We also will continue to work with the other members of the Farm Cabinet to find ways the state can help farmers improve their competitive standing and reduce their costs of doing business. It is my hope that next time there is a bumper crop across much of Minnesota we will feel more excitement than we do this fall.

Pharmacies are essential part of rural community health care

by Sen. Roger Moe

The struggle to maintain a strong health care system in our rural Minnesota communities must include a good network of pharmacies. Until recently, local access to pharmacies was not a major concern across the state. The situation has worsened gradually over time and the outlook is not promising unless significant steps are taken to put a halt to the emerging trend.

Loss of rural pharmacies would have a particularly adverse impact on the communities in our area. We have an unusually large percentage of older residents in Northwestern Minnesota, and seniors often depend a great deal on their local pharmacies as well as the entire health care system. Typically, senior citizens take an average of three prescriptions daily, consuming one-third of all drugs manufactured. Older persons also are more likely to have limited mobility, so they need to do their business close to home.

Several factors have emerged in recent years that threaten the future of hometown pharmacies in our smaller communities. The number of community pharmacies has declined by 40 percent in only 15 years as retailing patterns have changed, and competition from mail-order and internet pharmaceutical suppliers have emerged. Approximately 100 Minnesota towns have only one licensed pharmacy and many of those communities are in danger of losing that key component in the next several years.

Considering that nearly 25 percent of rural pharmacists are at least 55 years old, the need to begin replacing them as they reach retirement age becomes increasingly apparent. At the same time, less than 5 percent of recent pharmacy school graduates choose to work in rural communities. The combination of so many retirements on the horizon and so few pharmacy graduates locating in rural communities to replace them makes the dire circumstances clear.

The role of pharmacists as an integral part of the health care system is more apparent than ever as new drugs come on the scene and the medical field moves toward greater specialization.

Pharmacists are relied on to safeguard their customers from the harmful effects of clashing medications. Not only are community pharmacists a key resource for the customers who depend on them for advice about their various medications, but they also advise medical personnel who must deal increasingly with complications arising from the complex mix of drugs taken.

Similar to earlier efforts that ensure an adequate number of hospitals, physicians and nurses are available throughout rural Minnesota, state government can take actions that will help prevent a worsening of the rural pharmacist problem. Earlier this year, the Legislature considered a Rural Pharmacy Access package that would have begun addressing the problem.

The $5 million in state funds requested for the package would have been used to assist pharmacy graduate students who agree to practice in rural communities for at least five years after they receive their degree, and provided a new grant program for financially strapped pharmacies that are the only drug store in town. In addition, funding for a coordinated drug-therapy management services pilot project targeting at-risk populations would have had the potential for saving lives and reducing the number of costly drug-mix-related emergencies.

Final budget negotiations in 1999 put nearly all the emphasis on tax relief and the rebate checks that were mailed in August. Unfortunately, this situation did not allow for funding of several worthy high-priority needs, including the Rural Pharmacy Access package.

It is highly likely that the legislative effort to preserve our remaining network of rural pharmacies will be renewed in the 2000 Legislative Session. Perhaps next year, this emerging crisis will be better recognized and rise closer to the top of the Legislature's priority list.

Soybean Association issues warning to area growers

As confusion and concern grows over the use, testing and regulation of genetically modified crops, the harvest of 1999 is being dubbed as a "harvest of controversy."

Says Kim Larson of Willmar, soybean farmer and national director of the American Soybean Association, "Some first buyers are asking farmers to sign affidavits certifying that the soybeans they are delivering are non-genetically engineered. Minnesota Soybean is concerned that farmers may be putting themselves at considerable risk if they sign affidavits stating their soybeans are 100 percent non-biotech."

According to Gary Beil, executive director of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Assn., current tests are not 100 percent accurate. When soybeans reach export markets and undergo more accurate testing, they could be found to be contaminated and could then be refused.

"The American Soybean Assn. of the United Soybean board warns farmers that it is a 'seller beware' marketplace," says Gary Larson. "If a purchaser asks you to promise that the crop you are delivering is non-genetically engineered, be careful what you sign, or even what oral comments are given."

Producers should instead do the following: State that no seed represented by the seed company as genetically engineered seed was planted; State that seed represented by the seed company as non-genetically enhanced seed was planted; and state that care was taken in avoiding contamination in bins, augers, dryers and combines.

According to Larson, it is recommended that farmers should be careful not to do the following: State that the crop in question has no genetically engineered germplasm; State that no contamination has occurred from mechanical handling and storage of the crop; and state that no contamination has occurred from pollen drift.

The American Soybean Assn. and the United Soybean Board are confident that crops and products enhanced by agricultural biotechnology are safe to grow and safe to eat. After completing rigorous reviews of scientific testing, regulatory agencies, including the FDA, EPA and USDA, have declared these crops safe.

"There is great concern, however, about the level of liability exposure producers could face by signing affidavits certifying non-GMO soybean," Larson stressed. "Bottom line, be very careful what you sign."

Because there are a variety of affidavits being used, producers are encouraged to seek the advice of an attorney if they have any concerns about the level of risk, responsibility and liability they may be incurring.

Meanwhile, the ASA, MSGA and MCIA are working to address these matters on a broader scale and are working with the Minnesota Attorney General to assist the state's soybean producers.

Is it time to talk about sex?

Whatever you think about teaching sexual education in schools or about MOAPPP (Minnesota Organization on Adolescent Pregnancy, Prevention and Parenting), MOAPPP does make a good point about parents and caregivers being a child's primary sexuality educators. October is "Let's talk Month," and perhaps it is time to talk to your children.

This organization makes points saying that parents and caregivers are a child's primary sexuality educator, and further that children with parents who talk to them openly and honestly about sexuality are more likely to delay sexual experiences. Parents and taxpayers should be concerned about this delicate issue. According to data from the Minnesota Department of Human Services, in 1998 44 percent of all welfare dollars — totaling more than $12 million each month — are spent on families started with a teen birth. In addition, more than 18,000, or 41 percent of Minnesota's 44,000 families on welfare started with a teen birth. Each month, Minnesota spends roughly $24.4 million on the family welfare program known as MFIP (Minnesota Family Investment Program). Of that, $12.2 million is spent on families that began with a teen birth; making these families one of the largest demographic groups on welfare today.

If dollars and cents don't help you focus on this issue, perhaps these two stories repeated to me recently will help. A friend repeated figures to me stating that more than half of today's marriages end in divorce, and more than 60 percent of children are not living with both parents. So, what's a family in today's society? I don't know whether those figures are accurate but they do make a point. The second story, related to me by a friend, said she had been asked by a friend whether any of her children were married. When she responded "no," the woman asked whether any of them had children. "No," she said, "we don't do it in that order."

MOAPPP provides some common sense suggestions when approaching this subject, which they admit comes from the North Carolina Coalition on Adolescent Pregnancy. Without repeating all of their suggestions the most important seem to be: Share your beliefs, values and concerns, and let your children know they can trust you and can come to you even when they make mistakes; answer questions honestly, and listen.

If you'd like to know more about MOAPPP or about how to start the conversation or how to keep it going, you can reach MOAPPP at P.O.Box 40392, St. Paul, MN 55104 or 651-644-1447, or 1-800-657-3697.

Raising awareness of domestic violence

Americans need to realize a major problem exists in this society and take steps toward erasing its presence. That problem is domestic violence. U.S. Senator Rod Grams, Minnesota, recently share some of his thoughts on the subject of domestic violence. During this, Domestic Violence Month, I think some of those views need to be shared with the public.

Each year more than 4.5 million American women become victims of violent crimes. The perpetrators in 29 percent of the attacks, were carried out by lone assailants and were someone the victim knew.

Sen. Grams said recently that, "The number of spouses, siblings, and children subjected to domestic abuse remains too high, and I'm deeply concerned about the incidence of these crimes in our society. While domestic violence can affect anyone, most of its victims are women. According to the Minnesota Coalition for Battered Women, 210 Minnesota women died from domestic abuse between 1988 and 1997. Sadly, this loss of life underscores the importance of increasing public awareness about domestic violence and the community-based organizations that are working to prevent others from falling victim to it.

"No American should have to live in fear of being abused by anyone, let alone a family member. Community-based domestic violence shelters and centers are to be commended for their support of victims of physical, emotional, and sexual abuse. Their efforts to provide shelter, counseling, and assistance to battered women and children have helped countless families escape domestic violence."

Grams explains that he supported the Violence Against Women Act, but that many programs now funded through the Act will expire next year unless Congress passes legislation to renew the Act. Senate committees are moving forward with the debate to re-authorize funding and the final proposal should receive enthusiastic support in the full Senate. In addition, many citizens have contacted him to express their support for the programs, and many employers and businesses are taking initiative to support programs, but more support is needed.

"The positive message we hope to share during Domestic Violence Awareness Month is that society isn't facing an insurmountable problem. Yet, in order to tackle such a sensitive issue that crosses economical, cultural, and political boundaries, we must work together. Only through the combined efforts of community groups, families, and law enforcement can Americans take meaningful steps toward erasing the presence of domestic violence in our lives."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In response to the recent article in The Times regarding the meeting on block scheduling, we (parents) would like to respond that we don't think that it should be assumed that light attendance at this meeting means acceptance by the public. Parents are uninformed on the subject, and feel that their input will not make a difference. They are perhaps under the impression that the decision to implement block scheduling has already been made. It is important that the public realize that this has not been finalized. We would like to encourage the public to become active participants in the discussion concerning block scheduling.

At the recent open meeting at Lincoln, parents inquired just what the kids were going to be doing during these blocks of time. Answers to questions seemed vague or incomplete. Responses such as, "We need to look into that," and "These are areas of concern," were not satisfactory. Some parental areas of concern are:

- Substitute teachers
- Retention (especially in math)
- Attention span
- Absentees (will miss 85 minutes per day instead of 55)
- Transfer students
- Large time lapses between courses
- Affect on music programs
- How longer class periods will be handled
- How different learning styles can be accommodated
- Less time spent on core subjects
- Teaching too many subjects that stray from the central focus of developing knowledge and skills in the foundational subjects
- Semester gaps between core subjects
- What new teaching techniques are to be used during the block?
- Is this another fad?
- How to statistically assess student achievement if standardized testing is no longer the tool to be used?
- What if students and teachers don't get along?
- Is "no down sides" really realistic?
- Are there any scientific students which show evidence that academic achievement is better? (not opinions and feelings of people) clear, scientific studies using pre- and post-test.
- Are studies substantiated with other independent studies?
- Multiple rapid changes in education have been overwhelming.
- Cost of teacher training to accommodate?
- Cutting the full year course to a semester course, yet increasing the time from 55 to 85 minutes yields a net class time loss of 22.5 percent per course.
- Is this necessary to implement the proposed School-to-Work program contracted by the Federal government (not the same program already in effect)?
- Is there an evaluation tool in place to identify weaknesses so they can be remedied?
- Liability concerns for transporting students to job shadowing sites during block scheduling (family vehicles have been used in some areas placing minor children in the liability position).

We owe the children of the district a full, intensive effort to examine scientifically any radical change for clear evidence that justifies the change. Why not wait until research is clear before putting students at risk? We can't stop advocating for the children regarding what we feel in our hearts to be in their best interests. When we already have a proven system in place that is serving our district well, why change it?

Sincerely,
Steven Westerman

50 YEARS AGO • NOVEMBER 3, 1949

New Phone Books Issued This Week

"The 1949 edition of the Thief River Falls telephone directory was distributed to patrons Wednesday, it was announced by A. J. Rau, local manager of the N.W. Bell Telephone company. He added that 4,000 of the books were printed this year, the largest number on record.

"A total of 2,824 telephones, Rau said, are now served by the local exchange in Thief River Falls and surrounding rural area, this figure representing a gain of 131 telephones since the last directory was published in November, 1948. Changes in listings aggregating 1,571 were made in preparing the new book for publication."

Open House Friday At New Elevator

"The Farmers Cooperative Grain and Seed association of Thief River Falls will hold open house Friday, November 4, at its new elevator north of the Home Lumber company on the golf course road, Charles Kotasto, manager, announced today. He added that coffee will be served during the afternoon and evening.

"The new structure has a capacity of 78,000 bushels, and more than doubles the capacity of the firm's other quarters on the Great Northern right-of-way. The building, work on which was started during the past summer, was erected by North Star Construction company of St. Paul."

Berge's Office Issues 2,500 Sets Of 1950 Plates

"A. F. Berge, deputy registrar of motor vehicles in this city, stated this week that up to Monday evening, his office had issued approximately 2,500 sets of 1950 license plates. He added that, effective November 1, motorists are permitted to attach the new plates to their cars and trucks."

Steady Headway Is Reported On Two City Projects

"Municipal improvement projects are making steady headway, and work on some of them will continue through the winter months, City Engineer Douglas Stewart stated today. Construction of the huge new water treatment plant is progressing and if there is no setback the structure should be enclosed within the next two weeks. Five bricklayers are currently employed on the project.

"Casper & Lyons of Grand Rapids, Minnesota, Monday started work on the installation of service mains to connect the treatment plant with the city water mains at Nora street and Conley avenue. It appears likely, said Stewart, that the work of laying the mains from the intake on Merriam avenue north to the plant will be deferred until next spring.

"The Minneapolis Bridge Construction company, which is erecting the new First Street span, has started to dismantle the west span of the old bridge."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER NOVEMBER 2, 1899
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

CROSS THE RIVER
This Is What The Great Northern Will Do.

"Several Great Northern officials were in the city last week and while here, made arrangements for extending their railroad across the Red Lake river to the Thief River Falls Lumber company's plant. A bridge will be built this fall and the work will be completed at once. The lumber company will shortly begin the erection of their new planing mill, which will be situated just north of the saw mill. An attempt will also be made to induce the Great Northern to locate their depot in a more central location, and it has been suggested that the old planing mill site be used. This certainly would be a great improvement upon the present location."

AT LAST
The Celebrated Jones vs. Meehan Case Is Decided.

"The celebrated case of Ray W. Jones vs. Patrick and James Meehan was decided Monday by Associate Justice Gray of the U.S. Supreme Court. The decision is in favor of the Meehans, and this settles for all time a question which has been the means of dividing the people of Thief River Falls into two factions.

"The question involved was whether Chief Moose Dung owned the land at the intersection of the Thief and Red Lake rivers, known as 'Moose Dung's Reservation.' The land was given to one of the forefathers of the present chief by the government and the Meehans contended that he had the right to lease or dispose of it. They accordingly leased it of him and Jones a few year later secured a second lease of the land and had his lease approved by the Indian department at Washington. By deciding the case in favor of the Meehans, the supreme court holds that Moose Dung is the absolute owner of his reservation and has the right to dispose of it at any time without the consent of the Indian department.

"The piece known as the fraction, which extends along the Red lake river, was purchased of Moose Dung three years ago by James Meehan Jr. It comprises about 30 acres, and Mr. Mochan now proposes to divide it up into city lots and dispose of it."

ONLY DAYS
The Saw Mill Will Not Run Nights Any Longer.

"The Thief River Falls Lumber company's mill will not be run day and night for the remaining part of the season, owing to the fact that the supply of logs has been nearly exhausted. The mill was forced to close down last Friday and Saturday, but started up again Monday and will continue to be operated days until it freezes up. Considerable lumber has been cut this season, but next year the company intends to do considerable more business."

Strandquist

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota reached 65 degrees for the last day of October with sunshine all day long. In the evening dozens of little ones, angels to goblins, came with bags to put their loot in as they made the rounds. It surely is fun to see all those little "Twick o' tweets" threatening us to put something in their bags, and all the while big-eyed and innocent of tricks. No wonder that of such is the kingdom of heaven.

Along with the end of October came the clock changing back to normal and setting my brain in reverse even to my sunny disposition. By 19 00 p.m. I was too tired to stay awake to listen to our 11 o'clock program. Roy was going to skip it too, but when I awakened when he came in very quietly I asked him to turn it on. I fell asleep again within five minutes and Roy says I snored through the rest of it. It's a good thing that he could remember what the preacher said and was quoting it at breakfast time. I can hardly wait until all becomes copacetic again, it does take time.

The Strandquist Seniors met on Thursday at the center where they visited and played Bingo. They will meet again on Thursdays until the 18th of November, when they will put all their things away until next spring and then go to Irene's Cafe for their dinner. They have lovely doilies and other items which would make special Christmas gifts so come and check them over on Thursdays when they are there.

Larry Adils of Riyadh, Saudi Arabia arrived at the home of his mother, Elphie Adils, for a few days before returning to Saudi. He works for Science Applications International Corp, as a systems engineer, and just spent three days in Paris, France on business and also went to Charleston, SC for meetings and operational tests of communication systems to be installed on Royal Saudi Naval Forces ships. He was visiting with his mother, Elphie Adils, at Elsie Lafrooth's home today, and will be going back in a day or two. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Johnson of Warroad and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson of Albertville visited with Larry on Sunday.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson arrived home after spending most of October with their daughter and her husband, Barb and Tom Woodruff in St. Charles, MD. It's nice to have them home and to hear that Barb is still holding her own and we hope to hear that she will win the long fight.

On Sunday afternoon, Elsie Lafrooth, Walter Thompson, Roy and I went to Salem Church to their fall festival where the "Overtones" of Roseau were singing. They did a great musical program that was enjoyed by all who were there. Later an absolutely delicious dinner was served. Elsie met one of her classmates, Ines Anderson, who was married to Stanley Johnson, now widowed, and living in Hallock.

S.D. 564 to interview candidates for principal

At the meeting of School District 564's Board of Education on Monday evening, Superintendent Jerry Robicheau requested that a board member volunteer to participate in the upcoming interviews of three to four candidates for Lincoln High School principal.

Robicheau explained that the committee conducting the interviews will include LHS personnel, parents, administrative representatives and a board of education member(s), totaling about 18 people.

He also said that each candidate will spend time with a student committee, affording time for the candidates the opportunity to interact with the students while answering their questions and touring the facility.

The students' input regarding the candidates for principal will be considered by the committee which will make its recommendation to the board of education.

Superintendent Robicheau also reported on the recent MREA Conference he attended.

Also making reports were Carl Clark on negotiations, and Jean Larson on staff development.

School Board Chairman Steve Young also discussed the topic of student achievement and stated that he will leave some recently acquired materials in the administrative offices of the District Service Center for other board members to review at their convenience.

At the request of Board Chairman Steve Young, the following changes to the agenda were approved: the withdrawal of the weapons policy pending the review of new information; the deletion of Robin Dahl's name for the Consent Agenda, and changing the time for the next board of education meeting on November 22 from 7 p.m. to 5 p.m. to accommodate the public forum on block scheduling.

• The board of education recognized the following: Hartz Foods, KTRF and Erl's Market for hosting tailgate parties for the Prowler football games; VFW Post 2793 for presenting the colors; and Great Plains EMS which provided emergency services at all home games held this fall.

• Cay and Dee Jay Dunlin made a presentation to the school board about a proposed spring trip to Germany for LHS German students. Cost estimates and a tentative itinerary were provided for the board with Dunlins estimating that 12 to 25 students would make the trip. Presently, eight third and fourth-year German students have committed to making the trip, and 20 second-year students have expressed interest.

• The board of education approved the following personnel items from the Consent Agenda: the resignation of Dale Svensgaard as regular route bus driver effective November 1, 1999; the resignation of Chadwick Persons as assistant track coach effective October 25, 1999; the employment of Danita Torkelson as attendance office secretary at LHS effective November 8, 1999 with salary and benefits per negotiated contract; the employment of James Lehrer as regular route bus driver effective November 3, 1999, four hours/day with salary and benefits per negotiated contract; and the employment of Sheryl Hagen as kitchen helper at Lincoln effective November 3, 1999, 3 hours/day with salary

Special Y2K edition printed in next Watch

The next edition of the Northern Watch will feature a special insert on Y2K readiness in the region. Over 10,000 copies of the special edition have been printed.

The special edition addresses the extent to which local businesses, communities and utilities have gone to prepare for the Year 2000. Most of the work involved months of work checking and double-checking computers to make sure that they don't fail when clocks record 01/01/00. The situation stems from the use of a common short cut: the two digit year (e.g. "99" instead of "1999".

Although this section provides useful information for many people, it was done at the request of the City of Thief River Falls. The Times/Northern Watch is proud to present this supplement as a public service.

This special edition will be delivered to homes in the following communities: Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Goodridge, Grygla, Gatzke, Viking, Middle River, Plummer, Brooks, Newfolden, Strandquist, Oklee, and Red Lake Falls. If a reader does not receive a copy of the special supplement and would like to, they should contact the administrative offices for the City of Thief River Falls at 681-2943.

Stephen man shot while hunting in Marshall county

Francis Osowski, 76, of rural Stephen was shot in the abdomen while hunting in Fork township section 4 of Marshall county. The Stephen ambulance transported Osowski to Altru Hospital in Grand Forks, ND.

As of Monday, November 8, he was listed in stable condition.

A preliminary investigation by the Marshall county sheriff's department indicates the shooting was accidental although the investigation continues.

Thief River Falls boy injured in hunting accident

A 12-year-old boy from Thief River Falls was injured Saturday, November 6 in a hunting accident in Polk County.

According to the Polk County Sheriff's Department, the victim was hunting with his father in Section 4 of Garfield township near Fertile when he lost his footing and his firearm accidentally discharged. The sheriff's department received the call at 2:15 p.m.

The boy was transported by a private party to the hospital in Crookston and was later transferred via Great Plains ambulance to Altru Hospital in Grand Forks.

Typical November day?

Is this November? Bud Enge, Kjell Melvie, Bill Corliss, and Jack Boyer played 18-holes of golf at the Thief River Falls Golf Club Monday morning. They started at about 8:30 a.m. and were on the 18th green at about 11 a.m. Kjell said the course is in good shape. On November 10 of 1998 residents of Thief River Falls were shoveling snow. The picture to the right was taken during that storm. We didn't receive a lot of snow during that first storm of the season, but it did bring with it a lot of ice.

Recount adds one more vote to Narverud's total

One more vote was counted for Steven Narverud following a recount of last Tuesday's election results. Narverud, who trailed Glen Kajewski by a total of seven votes for council representative of Ward 1, requested the re-count. That recount was held Monday night in the meeting room of the city council.

At the conclusion of the recount, Narverud said he requested a recount for his supporters. He said he thought it was important for him to demonstrate to his supporters that he was really interested in obtaining the position of Ward 1 representative. In addition, the vote count was so close he just wanted to make sure for his own peace of mind.

Kajewski said the process Monday night was fair, honest and well done. He said Roger DeLap and Lisa Johnson, also did a good job of explaining the process.

To a very small group of people gathered at the recount, DeLap explained that since less than 10 votes separated the candidates, either candidate was within their right to request a recount.

Following the election last Tuesday, all of the ballots were sealed in a box. Typically, those ballots are kept for two years. By law, ballots must be kept for a period of one year. Monday night, the sealed ballot boxes were opened and a manual recount was conducted with both candidates in a position to examine each ballot as it was counted. When the counting was over, Narverud had challenged one ballot which would give him one more vote.

While ballots are counted mechanically, there is room for error to occur. One was discovered Monday night. In this instance, instead of using the pencil provided, the voter marked the ballot with an ink pen. The ballot counter kicked out this ballot and recorded it as an under vote. An under vote is a vote not cast. In this election there were a total of six under votes. None of the other under votes was challenged.

There were also three over votes. Over votes occur where the voter casts a ballot for more candidates than allowed. The ballot counter is very sensitive. An over vote may be counted by the ballot counter if the voter accidentally leaves what DeLap called a "hesitation mark". A hesitation mark may be left on the ballot when the voter leaves a mark next to a candidate's name but decides not to vote for that candidate and votes for another candidate. A very small mark left on the ballot may be recorded by the ballot counter as an over vote.

The challenge vote made Monday night was sealed in an envelope and will be (was) examined by the canvassing board Tuesday, November 9. (The canvassing board is the city council.) The election results recorded last Tuesday are not official until after the canvassing board reviews the votes and approves the election results.

DeLap said as he recalls, there has been one other recount requested that he remembers. That occurred when the office holder did not seek re-election and no one filed for office during the filing period, so all of the votes cast were for write-in candidates. That election was in 1985 and the write-in candidates were Don Barron, Mike Novak and Frank Womack. Name confusion on the ballot played a part in the request for a recount in that election. Don Barron still holds the office he was elected to that year.

Just in time for Veterans Day, a monument honoring and remembering all of the men and women who served in the armed forces has been installed at the Viking Cemetery. The cost of the $2,000 granite monument was divided between Viking township and The City of Viking. The Viking Cemetery is located 2 miles west and one mile north of Viking. The land for the cemetery was donated to the township by Matheis Tostrup in 1882 after the death and interment of his wife at the site. Additional land was later donated by the Dou family. Pictured with the monument are (from left) Wayne Peters, Tom Yutrzenka, Leonard Larson and Earl Erickson. All are veterans. Peters is currently serving as Viking's mayor, and Yutrzenka is chairman of the Viking township board. Once the city and township committed to the project, Erickson did much of the leg work to make it happen. Coincidently, the monument was installed on October 27, the 82nd birthday of Leonard Larson and the 74th birthday of Earl Erickson. The monument will be dedicated during Memorial Day services next spring.

Liz Ott returns to The Times

Reporter Liz Ott returned to The Times and Northern Watch staff on Monday, November 1, much to the relief of Editor Dave Hill who, from the time of former Editor Marv Lundin's retirement on September 30 until November 1, had been short-staffed.

Dave commented, "Good, you brought your camera," noting the bag slung over Liz's shoulder that first morning, only to be informed by the thoroughly modern young mom that the case instead contained a breast pump.

Liz and her husband, John, had their second child, Neyland Broylco, on September 17. They also have another son, two-year-old Hayden.

Children are new to Liz since she worked at The Times in 1995 and 1996, and she has had plenty of experiences between then and now.

A 1993 graduate of the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Liz has a Bachelor of Arts degree in communications.

After working as a hostess/cashier at the Holiday Inn in Duluth from 1992 until February of 1995, Liz put her degree to work as a reporter at The Times. At that time she was in charge of the Community Focus section of The Times, wrote feature stories for The Times and Northern Watch, obituaries and other assignments.

It was during her first stint at The Times that she married John Ott. In August of 1996 the couple moved to the Twin Cities where Liz worked as a reporter for Larson Publications in Osseo. There, she covered city, community and school news for five communities in western Hennepin and eastern Wright counties.

After the couple's first son was born in November of 1997, Liz worked part-time at the deli counter of SuperValu in Crystal and enjoyed the rest of her time as a stay-at-home mom until May of 1998 when they returned to the Thief River Falls area.

From June until September of last year, Liz worked as a teller at Norwest Bank and from September of 1998 until Neyland was born at Arctic Cat as an administrative assistant to the technical communications coordinator.

After a much appreciated albeit brief time-out for motherhood, Liz returned to The Times on November 1. Her responsibilities will include government, police and court reporting as well as feature writing, photography and other assignments.

Husband John is employed by Northland Community and Technical College as a coach, teacher and general recruiter. Liz and John are members of the Presbyterian church in Red Lake Falls.

While the books she is currently reading are board books with only a few words on each page, Liz does enjoy reading "big people" books. Theater is a hobby she hopes to someday resume, and she also enjoys sewing.

Can you afford to store grain?

Farmers need to consider the cost of grain storage before making the decision to store this year's crop, according to Steve Drazkowski, extension educator with the University of Minnesota Extension Service in Wabasha county.

"Before you decide to place your 1999 crop into some type of storage, evaluate your costs and returns related to storage," Drazkowski says. "Are you going to get back what you invest?"

Following are some suggestions that Drazkowski has for farmers who are considering their marketing and storage situation going into this harvest season:

Remember what it costs you to continue to own grain. If you sell your grain right at harvest, you will be able to pay down debt that has interest tied to it or else invest it in an interest-earning investment. This cost is big and is often overlooked. If you use a 12 percent figure for opportunity cost, that means one percent per bushel per month. At $2 corn, that comes out to 2 cents per bushel for every month that you own it.

The cost of storing grain is substantial no matter which type of storage is used. Elevator storage fees are 2.5 to 3 cents per month. Storing grain on-farm can cost anywhere from 20 to 30 cents per bushel per year, depending on the type of bin.

There are shrinkage costs associated with storage. At $2 per bushel, 3.5 percent shrink means 7 cents per bushel. It can cost 2 to 4 cents per bushel to dry the corn below 15.5 percent moisture. This is required for safe long-term storage of the grain.

Storing grain increases risk. If grain is sold directly from the field, spoilage risk is zero. If it's stored, weather and insects are opponents that can bite even deeper into crop returns.

Given these costs, a grain producer who decides to store the 1999 corn crop for nine months could expect on-farm storage and ownership costs to be anywhere from 40 to 48 cents per bushel. Ownership and commercial storage costs for nine months can amount to 48 to 53 cents per bushel. These figures will go up for longer storage periods and down for shorter storage periods. If you are able to capture the necessary additional gain in price by storing your 1999 crop, storage will pay. If you cannot offset these costs with higher prices, selling your crop directly out of the field is the only option that makes economic sense.

November is time to think risk management

November is typically a time for farmers to wrap up the harvest and put away their machinery for the winter. Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) Risk Management Specialist David Bullock suggests that November is also a good time to think about marketing strategies, not only for the current crop but also for next year's crop.

Two of 12 meetings held throughout the state to address marketing plans will be held in the region. On November 19, a meeting will be held beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Northwest Technical College in Moorhead. Also on November 19, beginning at 6:30 p.m., a meeting will be held at the Northwest Experiment Station in Crookston. The focus of these meetings will be on understanding and developing written marketing plans. Each two-hour meeting will start farmers on the process of putting together a plan and making it work for them. There will be no charge to attend the meetings, but advance RSVPs are required. To reserve a spot, farmers should call 612-233-0333.

Today's agricultural economy leaves little room for marketing mistakes, and Bullock says farmers can benefit greatly by putting together a comprehensive business plan that includes strategies for managing risk. Bullock offered farmers some tips as they get out of the combines and into the books:

• Now is a good time to assemble the farm management records needed as a starting point for next year's risk management plan. These include (1) cost-of-production budgets for each part of the enterprise, and (2) a preliminary balance sheet and cash flow statement for the entire farming operation.

• The next few months will also be a good time to sketch out preliminary risk management goals for the 2000 crop. Start with general goals for the entire operation and then determine each enterprise's contribution to each goal.

• Keep a close eye on the farm policy debates at the federal and state levels. In particular, watch discussions about crop insurance reform, as they could have an impact on the risk management environment for the 2000 crop year and beyond.

For those with Internet access, a good website for monitoring farm policy is www.agriculturelaw.com. Also, monitor the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Risk Management Agency website at www.rma.usda.gov and the USDA Farm Service Agency website at www.fsa.usda.gov for updates on crop and revenue insurance policies and current farm program revisions.

• Make a list of new tools to add to your risk management toolbox (forward contracts, revenue insurance, etc.) and develop an educational plan that will allow you to become familiar with how and when to use these new tools. The National Ag Risk Education Library (www.agrisk.umn.edu) has a complete selection of materials for practically any ag risk management subject.

• Consider joining a local risk-management club, if available. If one is not available, consider starting one in your area. If you would like some help organizing a risk-management club, contact the MDA at 651-284-3705.

Area cattleman produces Hereford Dam of Distinction

Ottesen Hereford Ranch was recently recognized by the American Hereford Association for producing six cows named to the Dams of Distinction list.

"These are the most efficient cows in the Hereford breed," said Craig Huffhines, AHA's executive secretary. They have met the strictest requirements for early calving, reproductive efficiency, calving intervals of no greater than one year, and weaning weight ratios in the top end of the breeder's herd.

Ranch owners are Linda and Lloyd Ottesen of the Newfolden area.

Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Vettleson herd tops DHIA list for September

The Wayne Vettleson dairy cow herd was ranked the top producing herd in the Red Lake-Pennington DHIA during the month of September.

Randy and Margaret Rasmussen, supervisors of the DHIA, put the following herds at Top 15 in the association for the month of September, 1999.

The Vettleson's recorded 94 percent of their 163 cows producing milk. They produced an average of 70 pounds of milk, 2.7 pounds of fat, and 2.3 pounds of protein.

The second-ranked herd for the month of September was the Tom Willett herd. Ninety-four percent of the herd, 48 cows, produced an average of 65 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, and 2.1 pounds of protein.

The third-ranked herd for the month of September was the Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (large herd). Ninety percent of the 41 cows, produced an average of 64 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of fat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

In order of ranking, the other herds were: 4) Gary and Polly Bakken, 32 cows, 94 percent milk, 64 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat and 2.0 pounds of protein; 5) Todd and Kathy Johnston, 67 cows, 87 percent producing milk, averaging 62 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, and 2.0 pounds of protein; 6) NW Ag Experiment Station (small herd), 59 cows, 86 percent producing milk, average 62 pounds of milk, 2.3 pounds of fat and 2.0 pounds of protein; 7) Tom and Diane Kolstoe, 43 cows, 93 percent producing, an average of 61 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, and 1.9 pounds of protein; 8) Excel Dairy 3X, 1,140 cows, 84 percent producing milk, average 61 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat and 1.9 pounds of protein; 9) Marlyn and Debbie Omquist, 44 cows, 80 percent producing milk, 59 pounds of milk, 1.9 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein; 10) Greg Zak, 45 cows, 84 percent producing, 59 pounds of milk, 1.9 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein; 11) Water Bros. Farm, 248 cows, 84 percent of milk, 58 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein; 12) Schafer Farms, 41 cows, 100 percent producing, an average of 57 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat and 1.8 pounds of protein; 13) Beyer Farms, 81 cows, 86 percent producing, an average of 54 pounds of milk, 1.9 pounds of fat, and 1.7 pounds of protein; 14) Arnie and Barb Schmitz, 38 cows, with 87 percent producing, an average of 54 pounds of milk, 1.8 pounds of fat, and 1.6 pounds of protein; 15) Lyndon Schultz, 92 cows, with 96 percent producing an average of 53 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat, and 1.8 pounds of protein.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low, even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

Gulf War vet shares unique story

by Elizabeth Ott
Times Reporter

Veterans Day is the day Americans pay tribute to those who were called to serve their country in times of war and conflict.

Desert Storm veteran Margo Peterson is one of those people. She is also an example of how times and soldiers have changed, and of how they have not changed.

Margo was asked to join the Army Reserve in the mid-1980's. At the time, she was an RN teaching in the nursing program at Northland college. The Army was always sending her recruiting information for her students, but also asked her to join.

The thought had crossed her mind many times, says Margo. Even in high school she had an interest in the military. Her father served in the Navy, and when she was a girl, she had posters of WACs on her bedroom walls.

The retirement benefits and extra money were also factors which attracted Margo to the Army Reserves. After giving it serious consideration for about two years, Margo finally joined the Army Reserve in 1985 or 86 (she cannot remember exactly).

Because she was a professional with special training, she entered as an officer. She was committed to serving one weekend a month and two weeks a year.

A few years later, in 1990, Margo found out she was expecting her second child. She and her husband, Gordy, already had one nine-year-old son, Treavor.

Waiting game

In August, Margo was told her unit was going to be called up to be mobilized, but it was short a few nurses, so it would have to wait until those slots were filled. The Petersons did not know when her unit would be sent to the Persian Gulf. At the time Margo was still pregnant. If she was still pregnant or less than six weeks post-partum when her unit was called up, she would not have been sent to the Gulf. Meanwhile, the family waited to see what would happen.

On October 16, Margo gave birth to a son, Kent, two weeks before his due date. While she was still in the hospital with her newborn son, she realized she was not making an attempt to bond with her son.

"I was just going through the motions," she said.

She was staying in a corner room that overlooked the hospital parking lot. From her bed she could see the American flag which flew in the parking lot. She realized she was not bonding with Kent, because she knew she would have to separate from him. She asked herself which she was going to bond with, the baby or the flag. Margo made a decision to bond with the child she would soon leave behind.

Margo's unit was called up when she was exactly six weeks post-partum. On December 26, the day after Christmas and 10 weeks after she delivered her baby, Margo's unit was mobilized.

Margo promised her son Treavor, she would quit the Reserves after the war.

Prior to being sent to the United Arab Emirates, Margo was sent to Ft. McCoy, WI for cultural training. There she learned about cultural difference and what to expect from native Arabs.

Far from home

Margo's plane was one of the last planes into the UAE before the bombs began to drop. Although they were on a commercial flight, the reservists were dressed in combat uniforms and had their weapons with them. The plane also had escorts.

"We didn't know what would happen when we got there," she recalls.

At first they lived in empty wards of the hospital with no security.

"It was scary," Margo admits.

As an American, Margo's only pervious exposure to Arabs was through news reports of terrorism.

"It was a surprise to see them as gentle, loving people," she said.

While in the UAE, Margo worked in a hospital in the dessert, she never saw combat. Ironically, she worked on the post-partum ward in the nursery.

On the home front

"On a day to day basis it was harder for the people here (in Thief River Falls)," says Margo of her time in the Gulf. "There it was a work day. At home they didn't know if you were in (the middle of combat)."

When Margo was in the Gulf, Congress approved a measure to hold reservists in the Gulf for up to two years if needed.

"It didn't seem like it would end," she said. "But my husband kept saying, 'you'll be back by my birthday in March.'"

He was just about right. Margo returned home after three months.

Margo's older son was perhaps most influenced by his mother's absence and even wrote a story about it for school

Fortunately, the Petersons had the support of teachers, friends and neighbors to help get them through the difficult times. One day Treavor's teacher drove him to his grandparents' home after school. A family friend took care of the baby on weekends. Other friends and neighbors brought food. And everyone wrote letters to Margo.

"No one in my unit got more letters than me. I must have gotten 60 a day," she said.

Being separated from her family changed her priorities. Before leaving, Margo had applied for medical school. When she returned, she decided not to attend medical school because she knew she could not separate from her young sons again.

Margo kept her promise to Treavor and did not re-enlist after serving eight years in the Guard.

"I'm really proud to have the status of a veteran, but there's a ton of them out there that did way more than me," she said. "When you see veterans that's never an issue."

Margo Peterson stands outside the bedouin-style tent that was her home during the Persian Gulf War. Margo was sent to the gulf only a few months after giving birth to her second son.

Persian Gulf veteran Margo Peterson holds a medal she received from the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia as a thank you for her service in the Gulf War. On the table are memorabilia and a National Defense medal and Southwest Asia Service medal.

MASTER GARDENERS

Arlene A. Hume

Winter protection of roses successfully used by gardeners

Adequate winter protection is necessary for all roses except those that are completely hardy. Roses must be protected not only against low temperatures, but against fluctuating temperatures.

The two methods described below have been used successfully for protecting roses in winter. Spray all the rose bushes with a fungicide to prevent disease organisms from over-wintering on plants. Plastic-foam cones are not good for winter protection.

Tipping:

1) Shortly after the middle of October, make a trench extending out from the base of the bush. Make it deep enough to accommodate the plant. You can put more than one bush in a large trench.

2) Tie canes together in a bundle and gently tip the bush into the trench. To facilitate tipping, loosen the soil around the plant with a spading fork.

3) Cover the plant with the soil from the trench.

4) When the ground is slightly frozen, cover the plant with a three-to-five inch layer of leaves. A week later, add a one-foot layer of marsh hay.

5) In the spring (about April 1), remove all covering in stages as it thaws out. When the ground has thawed, carefully raise the plants, replace the soil around the plants, and water them thoroughly.

Mounding:

This is the method I successfully use.

1) Prepare the soil with sprinkling alfalfa meal and phosphate.

2) Spray rose bushes with a fungicide and Superior oil.

3) Do not prune in the fall.

4) Using our compost, mound the base of each plant with 10-12 inches of soil. Place wire netting around entire bed. We find we don't need to do this because of its location. We simply fill the enclosure with 3 or 4 feet of leaves (preferably oak). You may also cover the leaves with marsh hay to prevent them from blowing away. Do not cover leaves with plastic, tar paper or waterproof covering. About April 15, depending on the weather, (if it's a cool spring wait until temperatures warm up slowly) remove the soil mound and water plants thoroughly.

Kickoff meeting set for Red River Basin Water plan

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) will hold an implementation kick-off meeting to unveil its recently completed Minnesota Red River Basin Water Quality Plan 1999 on Monday, November 15, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Detroit Lakes Holiday Inn. MPCA Commissioner Karen Studders will be on hand to celebrate the hard work of citizens, business, and local, state and federal resource managers in the Red River Basin.

The project began more than two years ago when the MPCA adopted a watershed-based approach to managing Minnesota's water resources. A major component of this "basin management" approach was to develop a custom-tailored plan for managing water quality within each of the state's 10 major drainage basins. The concept called for basin residents and interested organizations to develop a water-quality plan that met the need of residents in the basin while addressing state and federal water-quality regulations. In 1997, the MPCA developed the "Red River Basin Information Document," which contained detailed information about the basin as a whole. The recently completed water-quality plan is based on that document and contains goals and strategies to be implemented over the next five years.

The temperature is dropping and football has come to an end. The leaves are gone, and there's an odd pile of snow behind the Old Arena. This could mean only one thing: it's time to play hockey.

The "fastest game on earth," "the great northern past time," whatever you call it, it's what we love. But hockey doesn't come without a cost to its players. Sometimes it demands that sacrifices be made. For example, I couldn't participate in the fall play this year because it would interfere with hockey. Some kids are in both, but for me to be at my best, I needed to put hockey first.

Hockey has always been important in my family. Back when you could show up and get tickets at the door, my family always drove the 70 miles to watch the Sioux hockey team play. Playing hockey has always been a dream of mine. Problem was, I moved here from a town that didn't have hockey. I knew how to skate, but didn't know how to play hockey. So, when seventh grade football was over, I quit basketball and joined hockey. Let's just say trying out for hockey was a learning experience. On the day of try outs, I called Bailey Nordin and he rummaged around for some hockey equipment for me to use so I could tryout. On the day of tryouts I learned two things: everyone was better than I was; and secondly: I couldn't skate.

This presented a problem. If I couldn't skate, I wouldn't play much. So, one day, I found my answer in a big pair of pads and a fat stick. Yep, I was a goalie, and my Peewee B2 team and I rocked the ice. Actually, I wasn't that good, but with the help of my coach, the late Max Radniecki, I did get better. He worked with me and got me excited about being a goalie.

I was very fortunate to be a part of the team that went all the way to the section championship last year. I was only the back-up goalie, but just seeing all those people and hearing the roar of the crowd was the most amazing feeling I've ever had. You know you live some place special when that many people come out to support you. Coach Bergland told us all year that we played for the play-offs and he was right.

Because of that experience I have a new resolution this year. I want to hear that roar again. But I don't think any of us who played on that team last year will be happy with another second place in the section. We want to play at the Target Center in the state tournament. We want everyone who came out last year and supported us to get the chance to cheer for us in the cities. With your support again, we can get there.

Volunteers to launch appeal for hunger relief

Next week, unpaid volunteers will begin ringing doorbells across the state and in our community. They will deliver the annual report for a charity that combats world hunger overseas, helps the homeless and inner-city children here in the United States, and provides disaster relief around the globe.

The charity is ADRA — the Adventist Development and Relief Agency, a recognized non-profit organization with projects in 140 nations. It operates refugee camps in Rwanda, drills wells to bring clean drinking water to villages in Cambodia, and helps families in crisis right here in our state.

ADRA provides non-sectarian services, and it is sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist church. The volunteers are from the Thief River Falls Adventist congregation located at 1024 Tindolph Avenue South.

This "ADRA Annual Appeal" is the only time the general public is asked for cash donations each year. Last year church members raised $6,427,332 through the nationwide campaign.

According to Marcus Mundall, pastor of the local church, each volunteer will be identified by a badge. He says that the use of volunteers cuts fund-raising costs to a minimum.

"If anyone has a question about the authenticity of a solicitor or feels that our volunteers have not used good manners, they should call me," says Pastor Mundall. "We want to demonstrate the compassion of Christ."

TRF students complete STAR Team training

Seventh grade students from Redeemer Lutheran church, along with advisor, Kara Balmer, recently completed the Students Teaching Attitudes of Respect (STAR) Team program sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF). They were among a group of 40 students and advisors attending the two-day STAR Teams training at Concordia Language Villages near Bemidji.

"STAR Team" nurtures young people in the development of their character, values and relationships. Focus is on communication skills, media awareness, personal styles in conflict management, non-competitive games and thought processes. Training is provided by STAR trainers, a team led by Sue Liedl that includes Sandra Robinson, Candy Roberts and Susan Smith. Along with team and individual training for the students, team building training for advisors is also provided. STAR Teams sessions include development and enhancement of skills on the following subjects: personal reflections, cooperative skills, skills to build self-awareness, preparation for potential conflicts, communication skills, and bringing back skills to our families and communities.

STAR teams training sessions are held in the fall with a follow-up "retreat" in April. STAR teams is available to sixth and seventh grade students from schools throughout the 12 northwest Minnesota counties including Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. To date, more than 456 students from area schools have taken part in the program.

Pennington County has begun a new 4-H year, and with that, new officers have been elected for the local Pennington County Leaders council. This year's offices include left to right President Katy Olson, Vice President Lisa Sorteberg, Second Vice President Susan Olson, Secretary Marsha Lubitz, Treasurer Jody Holand, and Reporter Kay Steiger.

Pennington County 4-H leaders hold meeting

Newly elected officers assumed their new rolls at a recent meeting of the Pennington County 4-H Leaders Council. New officers include: President Katy Olson, Vice President Lisa Sorteberg, Second Vice President Susie Olson, Secretary Marsha Lubitz, Treasurer Jody Holand, and Reporter Kay Steiger. Installation of officers followed the elections held at last month's meeting.

The Pennington County 4-H Leaders Council meeting was held on Monday, November 1 at the courthouse meeting room. The meeting was called to order by President Katy Olson. Flag pledges were said and roll call was taken. The secretary's report was read and approved as written. The treasurer's report was also read and approved as written.

The old business discussed was the 4-H Carnival, volunteer screening, the record change committee, and the new camera purchased by the county.

The new business discussed was the four sponsors needed for the 1999 Awards banquet, Knowledge Bowl, Ag Activities Day held December 3, the arrival of State Fair premiums, the date of the next meeting, and the Hog Dog award.

People with traveling-plaques are reminded to bring them into the extension office for the awards banquet. The Hot Dog award was given to DeDe Swanson.

The next meeting of the Leaders Council is scheduled for November 29, one week earlier than usual. The 2000 county fair will be held July 18-23. The meeting was adjourned.

ACTIVITIES

Fine-Feathered Holder

This fine-feathered Thanksgiving project holds plenty of treats! To make one holder, cut six inches off the top of a brown paper lunch bag and save the bottom part. Cut six 2" x 5" strips of brown construction paper. Fringe each strip along one side. To both the front and back of the bag, glue three strips (fringe down) so that they overlap slightly. Bend the fringe upward. Cut a brown head, a yellow beak, a red wattle and tail, and white eyes with black centers from construction paper, then glue the red tail on one end of the unfringed side and the completed head on the other unfringed side. Fill the completed holder with treats, such as pretzels or bags of candy corn. Gobble, gobble!

PARENTING TIPS

Books or Television

Today's world is clearly different from the world that most of us grew up in. Today's children are growing up with television and video cassettes. This can make story time a real challenge for parents. Some children may actually say that they prefer television and tapes to books. Some parents may feel that because their children have already seen the tape, they won't enjoy the same story read to them. So what can we do? We know that reading to children is important but how can we compete with television and video cassettes?

Children's books contain many of the same elements that draw children to movies and television: action, drama, rhythm and dialogue, but it is up to the person reading the story to bring these qualities to life. Following are some ways to do this:

- Be aware of your reading speed. Either too fast or too slow can lose your listener. Also be sure to vary the speed according to the story. Do the same with your volume.
- Try a different voice for each character so your child can tell them apart.
- Try adding texture and character to your reading. It's the difference between reading "Look at the snake slide through the grass," and "Look at the snaaaaaake sliiiiiide through the grass." Use expression and you will find your children will truly enjoy listening to you.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

When we move from daylight saving time, life changes dramatically. With one hour of daylight lopped off the end of the day and moved to the beginning, where many of us seldom see it, we now find ourselves eating supper in the dark.

Coffee takes on greater importance this dark time of year, due both to its warmth and its effects as a stimulant. The main struggle of the morning is dragging oneself out to the coffee maker, dumping out yesterday's filter, and cranking up a new pot.

I am usually able to perform the coffee ritual flawlessly, but about once per week I either forget to put water in the receptacle, which isn't much of a problem, or I forget to put the pot under the drip thing, which can develop into a problem.

Another trick is to leave for work without turning off the warmer under the pot. By the time I get home, the bottom of the pot is covered with a sick-smelling black muck.

I am glad coffee doesn't cost all that much. I go through a pot or two every morning, although I actually drink very little. I pour it up, drink a sip, then forget about it until the cup gets cold, dump it out, refill, drink a sip, repeat until fully awake.

Of course, coffee is an addictive drug. And I am a junkie. For me, quitting coffee means three days of headaches and many long naps. I don't even try quitting any more for fear that I will end up in the emergency room with a migraine.

Coffee may seem harmless when set against alcohol and tobacco, but too much of it can turn people into jittery wrecks. Article after article says that people who suffer from anxiety and depression should give up coffee right away.

What's more, the complicated social and psychological forces which make it so tough for people to quit drinking and smoking apply equally to coffee.

What would mornings be without the gurgle of the coffee maker? Lonely and cold. What would a trip to the local cafe be without a cup of coffee? What about a visit to an elderly friend? To turn down coffee on such occasions is like refusing communion.

Pulling a cup of hot coffee to one's lips and having the steam cloud up one's glasses makes one look thoughtful. Sipping coffee allows people to say little or nothing in social situations without seeming sullen or rude.

So, one must sometimes put one's foot down in the face of all the doom-and-gloom medical studies. Life is too short and the winters up here are to long to try to survive without the elixir which has sustained our people for generations.

Parents Forever class offered by MN Extension

The next session of "Parents Forever," a course for divorcing parents, is scheduled for November 19-20. The Friday evening class is 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.; the Saturday session will run from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Classes are held at the Northwest Service Cooperative, 114 West First Street, Thief River Falls.

When a mother and father divorce, it is a major life change for all members of the family. Each family member's emotional, psychological, physical and financial well-being are impacted. Children are often affected for years to come by decisions made by their parents during the divorce process. This course helps provide divorcing couples, or those contemplating divorce, with information that will help them make decisions that minimize the stress of this transition time.

Topics included in the class series are: Impact of Divorce on Adults, Impact of Divorce on Children, Money Issues in Divorce, Legal Issues and Role of Mediation, and Pathways to a New Life. Cost of the course is $45, which includes books. This course provides the requirements for divorcing couples, as mandated by the state court system. This is the last offering of the course for this year. The next course will be taught in February of 2000.

For more information or to register for the course, call Glenice Johnson at the Pennington County Extension office at 683-7030.

Thief River Falls runners compete in national races

Mark Yuska and Jim Grindley of Thief River Falls recently competed in a couple of long-distance running events.

Yuska recently completed the Chicago Marathon in 3:28:58. He competed in the event with his brother, and roughly 29,250 other runners.

Jim Grindley recently completed Le Grizz, a 50-mile ultra-marathon in Montana. He completed the event in 10 hours and 43 minutes. The race is held in Hungry Horse, MT. The race starts at Spotted Bear and finishes at Lion Lake.

...Need a Laugh?

What with all the fall church suppers, festivals and bazaars going on, you might enjoy reading some Church Bulletin Bloopers. You may have read these before, but even if you have, they are always good for another laugh or two.

 Ladies, don't forget the rummage sale. It is a good chance to get rid of those things not worth keeping around the house. Bring your husbands.

 Smile at someone who is hard to love. Say "hell" to someone who doesn't care much about you.

 Today's peace-making meeting has been cancelled due to conflicts.

 The sermon this morning: "Jesus Walks on the Water."
The sermon tonight: "Search for Jesus."

 Next Thursday there will be tryouts for the choir. They need all the help they can get.

 The agenda was adopted and the minutes approved. The financial secretary gave a grief report.

 Barbara C. remains in the hospital and needs blood donors. She is also having trouble sleeping and requests tapes of Pastor Jack's sermons.

 The "Over 60s Choir" will be disbanded for the summer with the thanks of the entire church.

 Missionary from Africa speaking at Calvary Memorial Church in Racine: Name: Bertha Belch. Announcement: "Come tonight and hear Bertha Belch all the way from Africa."

Grant assists counties adopt restorative justice initiatives

A new grant from the Minnesota Department of Corrections will assist communities in a seven-county area to adopt restorative justice initiatives.

Restorative justice is an alternative to the current way of thinking about crime and criminal justice. Under restorative justice, crime is viewed as a violation against the victim and the community, rather than a violation against the state. Offenders should be held accountable then to victims and the community, not just to the state. Accountability for offenders means taking responsibility for actions and taking action to repair the harm caused to the victim and community. Restoration or making things right replaces punishment as the highest priority for the system.

The grant will allow the Bemidji District of the Minnesota Department of Corrections and Upper Mississippi Mental Health Center to work with interested individuals and agencies in Beltrami, Clearwater, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Pennington, Kittson and Marshall counties. As part of the project, Restorative Justice County committees will be set up in each county to select restorative justice projects that meet local needs. Funds from the grant will allow for staff to assist these committees in developing and implementing these projects.

Already there are some impressive examples of restorative justice practices in place in this region. Sentence to Serve, juvenile restitution, victim/offender mediation panels, community response to crime panels and a quilting program for restitution are all in place in at least some of the counties in the project's region.

To help kick off this effort there will be community discussions held in Bemidji and in Thief River Falls featuring Sue Stacey from the Minnesota Department of Corrections. Stacey is an expert on how communities can implement and benefit from restorative justice projects.

In Bemidji, there will be two sessions held on November 18, at 3:30 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m., at the Crying Wolf room at Bemidji State University.

In Thief River Falls, there will be one session, currently scheduled for 9 to 10:30 a.m. on November 19 in the Pennington county courthouse.

The public is invited to attend any of these sessions. Volunteers are also sought to join the Restorative Justice County committees.

Academic Boosters to meet

The Academic Boosters will be meeting Wednesday, November 10, at noon at the Best Western. Yvonne Asp, Anthea Olin and Annabelle Cuppette will be speaking about the Girls' State program.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I'm confused. The SSA representative said that my first retirement check would come in November, but he also said that I am first eligible for October. Why the difference?

A. Taken together, both statements actually go together. What seems to be confusing you is the difference between the month that you are eligible for benefits and when checks for that month arrive. SSA benefits for a month are only payable after the month has ended, and for that reason, they are received in the following month.

In other words, your first check, which is for the month of October, is not due until November. The check for November will arrive in December.

Something else you should keep in mind is that the actual arrival date of the retirement benefit is based on your birth date. If your birthday is on 1st-10th, your check will arrive on the second Wednesday. For those born on 11th-20th, checks arrive on the third Wednesday, and for those with birthdays on 21st-31st, checks will arrive on the fourth Wednesday.

Q. How much will the cost of living increase be this year, and when will we get it?

A. The year 2000 cost of living adjustment (COLA) for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries will be 2.4 percent. The Social Security COLA will be effective with the benefit for December to arrive in January 2000.

For recipients of the separate SSI program, the COLA will be received in the payment due December 30, 1999. This is actually the January payment coming early because of the New Year holiday.

As usual, the 2.4 percent figure is a national average and some individual variation can occur.

Did you know? Social Security benefits were approved to 3.8 million people in 1998. Of these, 43 percent were retired workers based on their own work records, 16 percent were disabled workers and the remaining 41 percent were survivors and/or dependents of workers —spouses and children of retired or disabled workers who received benefits based on the worker's earnings record.

Two lucky sixth grade students who participated in the "Trick or Treat for the Needy" food shelf drive had the opportunity to win a $50 savings bond from Northern State Bank. For every three items a student brought to school on Monday, November 1, his or her name was placed in a hat for a drawing. Winning the bonds were Jessica Willett and Peter Hoks, pictured with (from left) Kyle Anderson of Northern State Bank and Juneal Paterson and Gary Laidley, sixth grade social studies instructors at FMS.

The sixth grade classes at Franklin Middle School spent Halloween night conducting a food shelf drive. The project's theme was "Trick or Treat for the Needy" with student going door-to-door collecting various food items for the food shelf in our community. The successful service project netted 1,337 assorted canned and boxed food times.

Today's ribbon wearers have 'made a difference' for LHS nineth graders

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

That special person. . . someone who has made a difference in our lives. . . Many of us have someone — a friend, neighbor, teacher, coach, family member.— who has touched us, pulling our heart strings and making our lives more meaningful.

Today (Wednesday, November 10) approximately 205 ribbons, signifying the wearers as "someone who has made a difference," will be circulating in the community.

The ribbons were made by the ninth grade health students of Helen Anderson, Jeff Mumm and Jeff Johnson. Each student also completed an assignment sheet naming the special person and describing how that person has made a difference in his or her life.

Each students then delivered the ribbon along with the assignment sheet to the person he or she had selected. The special person then had room to respond to the honor on the assignment sheet and was asked to wear his or her ribbon on Wednesday, November 10.

Cari Harbott, a second hour student of Helen Anderson, selected Janet Hoffard as "Someone Who Has Made a Difference In My Life!"

In answering the question, "How has this person made a difference in your life? Cari wrote: "Janet is the nicest person I have ever met! She has been through so much but is always there with a smile whenever I need to just 'get away.' She always has time for me and lets me talk to her about anything, and she gives me advice on what to do. I consider myself the luckiest person to have such a great friend and neighbor!"

Cari presented Janet with her ribbon at Northwest Medical Center where she is employed, and Jan responded with the following comments: "What an honor it is to know that I've 'made a difference in someone's life!' When Cari came to me with this award, it made my day, and I felt very special. Anyone would be proud to have Cari in their life. She is just like a daughter to me, a 'buddy' and friend.

During all that I've been through in the past few years, Cari has always been there for me — her beautiful handmade cards, helping out at our home with whatever needs to me done, taking care of our grandchildren and two dogs, and always having time to spend with me when she could have been out with her friends. Cari lifts my spirits and keeps me young. She's a wonderful friend, and I love her very much. I think that Cari also deserves the honor of having the special "She Makes A Difference" award.

For those of you who do not know, Janet Hoffard has recently suffered a number of hardships including a bout with thyroid cancer, aneurysm surgeries and the simultaneous heart ailments of her husband, Lowell.

Jan's strength and courage are an inspiration to many of us who know her, and she was the subject of a feature story in The Times earlier this year.

Cari, the daughter of Hal and Nancy Harbott, is Jan's long-time neighbor, and she and the rest of her family have extended themselves to the Hoffards in much appreciated friendship. Cari's choice of Janet as the special person who has influenced her life is an obvious sign that the friendship is a two-way street.

Cari and Janet's story is only an example of what the ribbons being worn by folks around town today signify.

If you meet someone who's sporting a ribbon today, congratulate them. The person will have made an important difference in a young person's life, and perhaps he or she will also have a special story to tell.

Portraits in hues of blue and gold are currently transforming a wall at Franklin Middle School. Three Focus on Kids classes are painting the "art gallery wall" under the direction of instructor Mary Follett. Digital pictures were taken of the students. Students then traced around their pictures looking for light and dark values and labeled them light, medium or dark. The images were drawn on the wall by Jeremi Hanson and Chris Krapohl, and the students in the three classes began painting them three weeks ago. The target date for completion is Thanksgiving vacation. Visitors to FMS are encouraged to take time to view the project.

Missy Jorgenson of Marshall County Central received this Win-E-Mac serve during Friday's Section 8A high school volleyball tournament semifinal match at Crookston. The defending champion Patriots beat the upset-minded Nordics 15-2, 13-15, 15-12, 11-15, 15-3 to earn a spot in Saturday's championship match.

Marshall County Central challenges Win-E-Mac...

Nordics lose 3-2 8A semifinal

In golf, Mark Jorgenson would have been granted his wish by using a "mulligan." But unfortunately, this was high school volleyball, and his desire to replay a game or two is not part of the role book. That meant the Marshall County Central coach had to accept the Nordics' 3-2 loss at the hands of Win-E-Mac in the Section 8A tournament semifinals.

The defending champion Patriots won the nearly two-hour match in front of a large Crookston High School gym crowd 15-2, 13-15, 15-12, 11-15, 15-3.

"I would like to replay the first and last games," said Jorgenson. "Outside of those two games, we played pretty well."

Six first-game Win-E-Mac service aces made it look like the Patriots would make short work of the Nordics, who were making their first sectional tournament appearance in 11 years.

"We made too many serve receive errors," acknowledged Jorgenson. "We could not make a decent pass to set up an attack."

But the scene changed in Game 2 when a kill by Kristi Kilen and back-to-back aces by Mandi Blawat helped turn a 6-6 tie into a 10-6 Marshall County Central lead.

Win-E-Mac came back to tie it at 11-11; fell behind 13-11 on two errant hits; then pulled even again when Jackie Ostenna put away a spike from the back row and teammate Gwen Grundyson got one at the net.

Marshall County Central picked up the tie-breaking 14th point when the Patriots were unable to get the ball over on three hits, and finished it off on a Holly Augustine ace.

"We were more aggressive," explained Jorgenson. "We had some good attacks."

Win-E-Mac went back on top 2-1 with a third-game victory, but it wasn't easy. The Patriots watched a 13-8 lead shrink to 13-11 when the Nordics' Tera Davidson had a pair of blocks, plus a kill attempt on which Win-E-Mac was called for being in the net.

That same net call, this time against Marshall County Central, made it 14-11. A mis-directed hit by Win-E-Mac gave the Nordics a 12th point.

A loud cheer erupted from the Marshall County Central side when Emily Kragness came up with an outstanding back row dig on a hard-hit ball by Ostenna, but with nobody there to finish the play, it was a short-lived celebration as Win-E-Mac completed a 15-12 win and a 2-1 scoreboard edge.

Game 4 was even more entertaining. Back-to-back aces by Christa Hagen helped stake Marshall County Central to an early 3-0 lead. Ashley Bergman answered with consecutive kills then a point-producing block as the Patriots went on top 5-3.

It stayed close the rest of the way. An ace by Holly Jones enabled the Patriots to open up an 11-8 lead, but an ace by Kragness and two out-of-bounds Win-E-Mac hits resulted in an 11-11 tie.

After a Blawat kill against a double-block gave the Nordics a 12-11 edge, there were eight side-outs before another point was recorded. It came on a Blawat back-row pick-up on a slam by Bergman that turned into a 13-11 Marshall County Central lead when Kragness dropped the ball down the line.

Kristi Kilen added an ace and when a Blawat spike found a hole near the back line, the Nordics had themselves a 15-11 win.

That created a fifth game showdown that would send the winner to the Saturday afternoon finals, while ending the 1999 season for the losers.

Blawat, after recording a side-out block, served an ace for a 3-2 Marshall County Central edge.

But a block by Kayla Ness began a run of 13 unanswered points by the Patriots.

It was 9-3 when Jones stepped to the service line. She opened with an ace and was still serving when Bergman bounced a hit off the top of the net that fell in to make it 13-3. Marshall County Central hit one out of bounds for a 14-3 game; and Grundyson put away a kill to end it.

"They just took off on us in the fifth game," said Jorgenson, "and we started playing not to lose instead of attacking."

The Patriots also mixed it up on offense, complementing the crunching hits by Bergman with some well-placed taps.

"We did a pretty good job blocking, but they started dinking it over the net, and we didn't adjust," offered Jorgenson. It might have helped, he said, if Alicia Halvorson had been available as a defensive substition. But she went down with a third-game ankle injury and never returned.

Bergman finished with a match-high 24 kills. Ness had 15. Blawat and Kilen led the Nordics with 13 and 10 kills, respectively. Win-E-Mac setter Heather Hoffmann had a busy night with 48 assists. Augustine finished with 15.

Sub-Section 31A champion Marshall County Central ended the year 20-7.

TRF girls preparing for debut

■ Prowlers' hockey opener scheduled Nov. 16

Twenty players in grades 9-12 make up the first Thief River Falls girls high school hockey team that will make its debut Tuesday, Nov. 16, at home against Warroad.

Varsity high school status was granted to the program this year by the School District 564 board of education following an introductory period when girls hockey was operated through the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association. Because of numbers, the Prowlers will field a varsity-only team this winter. Girls 15-under will continue to skate under the TRFAHA umbrella.

"We're having a lot of fun," said Tray Hanestad, who will serve as co-head coach of the new program, along with Tim Magnuson. "It's a dedicated bunch of kids," he added. "They realize they are role models for a new program. They want to do well."

A schedule that includes Warroad, International Falls, Pequot Lakes, Alexandria, Park Rapids Area, Duluth Denfeld/Central, Brainerd, Moorhead, Fergus Falls, Bemidji, and Long Prairie is a mixture of new teams like the Prowlers, and established programs. Thief River Falls' aim is to be competitive every time the puck is dropped, said Hanestad. "We've got some things going for us," he said. "We've got a couple of kids who are very good skaters, and we'll have some strong goaltending."

Junior Melissa Clark, who came up through the TRFAHA boys program and played on the Prowlers' junior varsity team, is the No. 1 goalie. Senior Amber Gilbertson is a solid back-up, according to Hanestad.

Although just a freshman, Steph Hoard is expected to be the Prowlers' top scoring threat after picking up her share of goals while skating with the boys in TRFAHA competition. "She'll be one of the better players in the area," predicted Hanestad.

Seniors Jenny Rude, Jenni Gonsorowski and Lindsay Ehrenstrom are also expected to share some of the offensive load, while junior Lindsey Nordhagen and senior Dede Dally are being counted on to anchor the defense. Dally is making the conversion from being an accomplished figure skater to hockey this winter.

Other forwards the Thief River Falls roster include seniors Keli Waterworth, Kim Almquist and Melanie Barth; junior Therese Bruggeman; sophomores Abbie Houske and Emily Tweet; along with freshmen Kara Larson and Michelle Johnson.

Rest of the defensemen include senior Andi Sorvig; junior Danica Schroeder; plus sophomores Allisa Holmass and Megan Lunke.

Gonsorowski and Ehrenstrom are the captains.

"It should be interesting year," offered Hanestad, who will coach the forwards while Magnuson directs the defense. "We're looking forward to it."

As a special promotion to their debut next week, the team will give out pucks with their new Prowler logo to the first 150 girls ages 15-under entering the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center that night.

National volleyball statistics...

Two from NCTC on NJCAA charts

Shelli Eriksen

Sandy Brekke

Two Northland Community and Technical College volleyball players are listed among the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III statistical leaders for the recently-completed 1999 season.

Sandy Brekke, a freshman middle hitter from Win-E-Mac, averaged a NJCAA-best 1.70 blocks per game and ranked fifth in the nation in hitting efficiency with a .372 average.

"Without the support of my teammates, I could not have accomplished this achievement," said Brekke through a Northland news release. "It is a great honor, and I am proud to receive it."

Shelli Eriksen, a freshman middle hitter from Thief River Falls, gained national ranking in the same two categories. She was fifth on the blocking list with 1.44 per game and seventh on the hitting efficiency chart with an average of .366.

"I was very surprised and pleased to be recognized among the nationally selected this year in volleyball," said Eriksen in this week's release. "I am very thankful to my coaches and teammates who helped make this achievement possible for me."

"Sandy and Shelli have earned their success through hard work, practice, and with the help of their teammates," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "I hope both players return next season to continue the success they had this year."

Flu Season get off to early start

Two cases of laboratory-confirmed influenza have been reported to the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), marking what appears to be an early start for the 1999-2000 flu season in the state.

MDH has received reports of influenza A in two Ramsey County women, aged 75 and 91.

The influenza strain in the two reported cases is similar to one of the strains targeted by this year's influenza vaccine, so the vaccine should provide protection for people who have been immunized.

It's not too late to consider getting a flu shot, MDH officials emphasized.

Although it takes about two weeks for the influenza vaccine to take effect, the state probably won't begin to see large number of flu cases immediately. There should be enough time to develop at least some protection before the flu season gets fully underway.

The shots are especially recommended for people at high risk of developing complications from the illness. Those at risk include people over 65, and people with heart disease, lung disease, diabetes or immune system problems. Influenza immunizations are also recommended for health care workers, pregnant women, and children and teenagers with diseases like arthritis, which are commonly treated with aspirin. In children, aspirin can increase the risk of developing a serious complication of influenza called Reye syndrome.

During the 1998-99 flu season, the MDH laboratory received and examined virus specimens for 422 confirmed cases of influenza. Officials caution, however, that the number of specimens received by MDH may not provide a reliable indication how many people actually have the flu. Most people never seek medical attention for the illness, they noted, so most cases go unreported. The virus specimens are collected and analyzed as part of an effort to determine which strains of flu are currently circulating in the community.

MDH also monitors influenza in the state by tracking reports of the illness in schools and nursing homes. During the 1998-99 season, probable outbreaks of influenza were reported in 141 schools statewide, and possible outbreaks were reported in 81 more. Confirmed or suspected outbreaks were reported in 43 nursing homes.

People over 65 and people with chronic health problems should also see their doctor to find out if they need a shot for pneumococcal pneumonia, a common complication of influenza. Unlike the influenza vaccine, which has to be given every year, the pneumococcal vaccine generally has to be given only once.

The influenza vaccine normally has to be reformulated every year, to protect against those strains of the influenza virus that are most likely to make an appearance during the upcoming flu season. This year, however, the vaccine is formulated to protect against the A Beijing, A Sydney and B Beijing strains — the same strains targeted by last year's vaccine. Because the vaccine's effects wear off over time, officials are emphasizing that people still need to get their annual flu shot, even if they got one last year.

The symptoms of influenza, which tend to appear suddenly, can include a sore throat, coughing, fever, headache, muscle aches and fatigue. People who become severely ill with influenza-like symptoms should see a physician.

Small business "Legal Guide to the Internet" available

It was announced that a new publication, "A Legal Guide to the Internet," is available without charge from the Small Business Assistance Office at the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development in St. Paul. The publication is a collaborative effort of the DTED and Merchant & Gould, P.C., a Twin Cities intellectual property law firm.

The publication focuses on a number of legal issues involving the use of the Internet by business, including how to get an Internet business started, how to acquire domain names, trademarks, patents and trade secret protection, copyright law, commercial transactions, contracts, application of the Uniform Commercial Code and employment law, among others.

In his introduction to the publication, Michael R. Cohen of Merchant & Gould explains that "No one can question the profound impact the Internet is having on our society. The ways we communicate, conduct business and entertain ourselves are all changing as more individuals, businesses and organizations become members of this new electronic community.

"The purpose of this guide is to explore some of the new legal questions fostered by the continued growth in the scope and use of the Internet. While there are clearly new and unique issues that are exclusive to the Internet, you will also find that many existing principles of law still apply."

Free copies of the publication can be obtained at DTED, 500 Metro Square, 121 7th Place E., St. Paul or by calling the Small Business Assistance Office at 651-269-3871 or 1-800-657-3858. The publication is also available at www.dted.state.mn.us/PDFs/internet.pdf on the Web.

End of season is time for farm business review

The wrap-up of the crop season in the fall is a good time to review a farm business. Looking at how crop varieties performed in the past year is a logical first step, says Dave Resch, educator with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Take time to analyze all crop varieties for yield, stand-ability, and disease resistance, as well as initial cost," says Resch. "This is key information for deciding what varieties to buy and grow in 2000."

The marketing plan also deserves some attention. Resch recommends reviewing the plan for accuracy of the projected outcomes and for profitability. The review can include both grain and livestock, with consideration of target prices and acceptable prices.

Another step is to look at farm equipment. "Consider the age and condition of all equipment," says Resch. "If some is old, worn out, or not correctly sized to the operation, the end of the year may provide opportunities to make changes. Dealers may offer favorable terms and trade-in values if sales have been down."

A business review should include a complete inventory of all equipment and commodities, says Resch. The equipment inventory will be useful in compiling a balance sheet for a lender. The commodity inventory will show what grains and forages are available to feed to livestock or sell. Both inventories will be useful in cash flow projects for the next year.

After completing a review of the business, Resch suggests looking at business and personal goals and going over them with the entire family. If goals were met, consider what led to this accomplishment. If not, consider what changes may be necessary.

An alternative to an individual review of the past year is to create a farm business review team. "The review team could include neighbors, bankers, veterinarians, feed dealers, farm equipment dealers, Extension staff, farm management professionals, or any other person with ideas to share," says Resch. "For help in setting up a review team, contact your county office of the University of Minnesota Extension Service."

Her funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at Immanuel Lutheran Church where she was a member.

HOW TO TELL IF A KID DRUGS and what to do about it!

HOW TO TELL - SIGNS OF DRUG USE:

The sooner a drug problem is recognized, the easier it is to stop it. Look for sudden changes in mood and behavior, such as:

- Unusual hostility, irritability, or secretiveness
- Withdrawal from the family
- Changes in friends
- Resistance to discipline
- A pattern of dishonesty, stealing and trouble with the police
- The possession of large amounts of cash
- A drop in grades
- A sudden increase in absences, tardiness
- Poor concentration and short-term memory
- Slurred speech
- A loss of motivation and interest in regular activities
- Drug-related messages or symbols on possessions
- A lack of concern for appearance or hygiene

Notice changes in your child's physical well-being, such as:

- An unhealthy appearance
- Bloodshot eyes
- Dilated or shrunken pupils
- A constant runny nose or cough
- A major change in eating or sleeping patterns
- Sudden weight loss
- A lack of energy

Be aware that these signs may indicate a problem other than drug use. Drugs, traces of drugs, and drug paraphernalia are more direct evidence of drug use.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT!

If you suspect that your child is using drugs, question everything. Make sure you monitor what your child is doing as much as possible. If you fee you have strong evidence and decide to intervene, wait until your child is sober. Call on other family members or friends to support you in the confrontation, if necessary.

- DOS & DON'TS
  - Don't panic or blame yourself
  - Do self-examine, consider the example you've set.
  - Don't be sarcastic, accusatory or sympathy-seeking
  - Do express concern and understanding
  - Don't be swayed by denials if you have hard evidence.
  - Do be firm, stick to established discipline.
  - Don't try to sway the child with emotional appeals
  - Do present the evidence calmly and rationally, without giving the child a chance to lie.

Be prepared that your child will probably lie, and you may have to seek outside help.

- COMMUNICATION IS THE KEY TO PREVENTION

The best way to prevent a drug problem from ever beginning is to provide and environment of open and honest communication. Try these tips for successful communication:

- Be calm. Anger can cloud your ability to communicate to your child rationally.
- Give your undivided attention. Don't interrupt or pass judgement until the child asks for it.
- Concentrate on understanding rather than always offering advice. Repeat what is said if you need to.
- Be aware of body language, both your child's and your own, and send positive messages.
- Speak for yourself. Emphasize your feelings. Begin sentences with "I" rather than "You."
- Be firm. Family rules, behavioral expectations and likely consequences need to be communicated to children and agreed upon by all family members.

- HOW TO FIND RESOURCES

Among those that can refer you to a drug treatment program in your community are:

- Your Doctor
- Your Hospital
- The County Mental Health Society
- The School School District's Substance Abuse Counselor
- Certain Drug Abuse Hotlines
- Parents Of Children Who Have Been Through Such Programs

GET INVOLVED NOW!

- Begin talking to your child about drugs as early as possible.
- Involve your children in establishing family rules and the consequences for violating them.
- Be firm and enforce discipline from the very beginning.
- Set a good example with your own actions.
- Know how to recognize a drug problem if it develops and how to get treatment.
- Encourage involvement in healthy activities and show your support by attending these activities when possible.

Brendon Ortloff was the winner of the candy jar at the Arctic Lites Gymnastics carnival. The object of the contest was to guess the number of candies in the jar.

Prizes awarded at Arctic Lites carnival

The Arctic Lites Gymnastics club had a good turnout for their festive Saturday, October 23 Haunted House and Carnival. This happy, spirited event hosted over 45 children as they participated in the games, munched on treats and went through the eerie haunted house.

Brandon Ortloff, son of James and Melanie Ortloff, won a jar of candy because he came closest to guessing how many pieces of candy were in the jar. Brandon was the guest of Ashley Borchardt, daughter of Julie and Joe Borchardt.

Winners of the costume judging were as follows. Tied for first place in the cutest division were Ashley Borchardt who was dressed as a bunny and Brooklyn Dawn Anderson, daughter of Nicki and Mike Anderson, who was dressed as a polar bear. Molly Hagen, daughter of Don and Connie Hagen, and Danielle Holmes, daughter of Greg and Nancy Holmes, came dressed as bottle baby sisters and were second place cutest and third place overall and third place winners.

The scariest award went to Justin Economos, child of Dave and Connie Economos, who came as a Confederate soldier turned werewolf. The classic award went to Breanna Columbus, daughter of Bruce and Pam Columbus, who came as a vampire.

Funniest award and second place overall was awarded to Marit Dalen, daughter of Deon and Renae Dalen, who came as jelly beans. First place overall and most unique was awarded to Cassie Columbus, daughter of Bruce and Pam Columbus, who was dressed as a jester.

The Champion Trophy for most flower sales went to Lorie and David Erickson, children of Paul and Corie Erickson. Best decorated pumpkin awards went to: Justine Erickson, first place; Lorie Erickson, second place; and David Erickson, third place.

The next session for Arctic Lites Gymnastics starts November 30. Two free classes are available to new members. The Cart-Wheel-A-Thon will be held November 12 from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the ALG gym. If anyone would like to make a pledge, please call the gym at 681-8461.

Community reminded to observe Veterans Day

All across the country citizens of the United States of America will join with this nation's 26 million veterans in celebrating Veterans Day on November 11. Let us not break faith with those who fought and died for our freedom, let us observe Veterans Day as well.

Whether we pause in our daily activities or join the public observance at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls at 11 a.m. on Thursday, November 11, it is right that we honor American veterans living and dead. They served, and sometimes died, for their country to protect our right to live in a free country.

How can veterans find relevance in the observance of Veterans Day in today's society? Alan G. Lance, Sr., national commander of the American Legion and the attorney general for Idaho, asks, "What is it about America's veterans that brings us together on Veterans Day? Are we living in the past — attempting to capture a fleeting moment in time that has long since past? Certainly not!"

In his comments, Lance finds relevance in today's society for veterans. "What brings veterans together for Veterans Day is a bond formed in uniform. It is the bond that is entwined with our hearts and minds, which is simply stated: I shall not fail those with whom I serve."

That bond, Lance says, is observed in all veterans who have served their country and continue to serve their country. In his comments, Lance points out a recent discovery that a drug given troops during the Gulf War could be the cause for "Gulf War Illness." It is tragic that it took nearly a decade, he says, to make this discovery, and more tragic that it has taken considerable pressure on the government to conduct studies and support veterans. "As veterans," Lance says, "we ask that our government keep faith with us."

"That is why we gather on this Veterans Day. That is why all Americans should gather with veterans this day. For America's veterans are a special group of men and women — bonded through service, committed to the future."

Why is it important to the citizen who did not serve in the armed forces? Minnesota Secretary of State Mary Kiffmeyer, stated in a recent address, "Whenever I think about the heroic contributions made by America's war veterans, I think about how those of us fortunate enough to be living in peace today can still serve our nation. The opportunities we have are comparatively easier — for example voting, serving as election judges, volunteering in our neighborhoods, instilling in our children the value of good citizenship. These activities are the least we can and should do."

"On the morning of this Veterans' Day — November 11 — I intend to join other Minnesotans in taking a moment at 11 a.m. to honor America's war veterans, past and present. (Why 11 a.m. on November 11? In 1918, on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day in the eleventh month, the world celebrated the conclusion of the "war to end all wars," now known as World War I.) This day, I encourage everyone to consider the contributions they themselves might make on an on-going basis to perpetuate the peace and freedom won for us by our nation's war veterans. Finally, I hope everyone will participate in the education of Minnesota's children by modeling active citizenship and teaching its importance."

What readers want, and what readers get

Occasionally, reporters look the heavens and wonder why they ever became reporters. I like to think that we all have those kinds of days. One common theme among reporters, however, has to do with what readers want and what they perceive they are receiving. This little story crossed my desk recently, and I thought it explains what I mean. I've taken it from the West Central Tribune of Willmar, but they say it first appeared in the Wetaskiwin Times in Alberta, Canada in 1974, so it's been floating around for some time.

From the reader. .

I'm going to give 50 cents to the newspaper staff. Divide it up anyway you wish.

Now for that 50 cents I am giving you tonight, I want you to deliver tomorrow morning to my house, a newspaper that will contain more reading matter than the current best-selling novel.

I want all the news. And, I want every bit of it to be fresh. I want pictures of all local accidents, fires, meetings and events that I'm interested in and I don't want to see any that offend me, either.

I expect you to tell me who dies, who was born, who was divorced and who was married in the last week, including the last 24 hours.

I want to know what those guys in government are doing with my tax money. I want to understand all of the important events, plans and results, but I don't want to have to waste more than a couple of minutes on your story.

I want to read just as much about the Republicans as the Democrats or Reform Party.

I want to read all the sports, national and local. I want to see sports photos.

Don't tell me you can't do it. That's what I invested my 50 cents for.

I want all the supermarket prices, a list of people with used cars for sale, the movie and TV times and the closing stock market prices.

I want to know who breaks the law and what the sentence is but. . . if I break the law; I don't want you to print my name in the paper, and I have a friend who is in trouble too, so leave that out.

Another 'ting. I'm sick and tired of misspelled words in your paper. For 50 cents, you ought to do better.

By the way, I have breakfast at 7 a.m., so my paper had better be in my front door before that. Not on the steps, not in the rain, not in the front yard, but either in my Tribune box or in my door.

When I meet you on the street, I expect you to tell me all the inside dope. I expect you to serve as publicity chairman for every committee in town, too.

If I call the paper and ask how many kids Al Capone had or what round Dempsey knocked out Tunny (or was it the other way?), I expect you to know and tell me. Right then!

Next week, I'm going to start a business, and I want a news item about it. A picture too would be nice.

Advertising? No, if you run the story and picture I won't need any advertising.

But . . . if you straighten up, I will give you another 50 cents for the day after tomorrow.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

As a frequent motor vehicle operator, I am keenly aware of area gasoline prices. I have noted that here in Thief River Falls, regular pump prices range as high as $1.29 per gallon. Prices are even higher in other parts of Minnesota. However, I am very thankful that one station is doing its best to maintain the lowest price in this part of the state. Our local Kum & Go has regular priced at $1.20.9, a full nine cents per gallon savings. That may not seem like a lot, but $9.00 is saved for every 100 gallons purchased. This can amount to a major savings in one year. I for one will continue to show my appreciation by patronizing this station.

Sincerely,
Dave Strong

To the Editor:

As a former football player and now a parent, I feel that we owe a lot of thanks to Coach Jeff Mumm. I am sure that every player and parent of a player will agree that he has given a lot to the community and the students that he has either taught or coached.

I remember the first time I met him, yes, he was a little rough around the edges, but he was young and facing his first season as a head football coach. Now 13 or so years later I can truly say that he has been one of the greatest influences on my life. I am sure that I am not the only one that he has affected in this way.

If we were to say that each class of seniors in the last 13 years has had 30 football players in it, it would be safe to say that he has affected the lives of almost 400 athletes. That's just the football players. He has also had an impact on the lives of the basketball and little league baseball teams that he has coached, and students in his classes.

I am not sure that the community knows what it takes to be a full-time teacher, coach, and family man. I have seen the time he puts in, and I don't know if I could do it. It seems like he is always there to pick up something extra when someone is needed. I remember when I was in seventh grade and the basketball coach quit; he was already coaching the eighth grade, but found time to coach us, too.

When Coach Mumm first took the job as head football coach, the program was coming off a few hard seasons, but look at what he has turned the program into today. I am not sure, but I believe the football team hasn't had a losing season in the last eight or nine years. We have Jeff Mumm to thank for that. He has put together a staff of coaches that assist him in molding young athletes into the people they are today. That group of coaches has always seemed to bring out the total athlete in every player, even when a team doesn't look like it will be as good as the previous year, they always surpass expectations.

I have had the opportunity to have him as a coach, and now I am happy to know that I have him as a friend. The football careers of many past and present seniors are over, but the effect that Coach Mumm has on their lives is still there.

So, citizens of Thief River Falls, next time you see Jeff Mumm, thank him for what he has done for the students and athletes of Lincoln, and also congratulate him on another great season of Prowler football.

Sincerely,
Josh Balmer

P.S. Don't even think of going anywhere coach. My son is only four.

To the Editor:

Correct me if I'm wrong, but how can one starve to death 15 horses, before getting turned in, and get a maximum misdemeanor charge of 90 days, $700 or both (not even the price of one horse), and someone else gets caught shooting a grey wolf, which is also a misdemeanor, but could get up to six months in prison, $5,000 or both! What's up? At least a wolf has a chance to run away, where if horses are penned up, they are unable to fend for themselves. I don't get it.

CITY ELECTION
Was the Quietest One Ever Held In Thief River Falls.

"The city election was held Tuesday, and it was the quietest one ever held in Thief River Falls. But 216 votes were cast, and it is safe to say that had there been opposition, at least 500 votes would have been cast in the city. Hardly any of the men employed in the mill voted and numerous residents of the city failed to appear at the polls and exercise their right as citizens. Up to noon hardly 50 votes were cast, but when it began to be noised about that a number were writing the name of George Williams in for alderman at large, much more interest was taken in the outcome. The vote in the city resulted as follows: for mayor, Carl Kretzschmar 183; for treasurer, J. W. Wallla, 176; for alderman at large, C. J. Knox, 139; Hans Langseth, 98, George Williams, 83; for alderman, first ward: John Aos, 80; for alderman, second ward, Math Barzen, 56; for alderman, third ward, L. P. Stranahan, 38; for justice of the peace, first ward, C. E. Traverse, 81; for justice of the peace, second ward, N. W. Tarrant, 51; for justice of the peace, third ward, S. T. Johnson, 28, H. E. Mussey, 18.

"Had George Williams' name been on the ticket, he would undoubtedly have been elected. Many people were not aware of the fact that he was a candidate."

WATER IS LOW
And The Steamboat Traffic Is At a Standstill.

"The water in the Red Lake river is lower this fall than it was ever known to be before, and is causing considerable trouble to the steamboatmen. The cause for this, it is said, is on account of a large number of logs being put in the outlet and also the fact that considerable sand has washed in from the lake. The Thief River Falls Lumber company has many tons of freight it is desirous of shipping up by the steamboats, but, in all probability it will now have to be taken up by teams."

The weather in northwest Minnesota in November is quite a bit different than the first two weeks last year, when each weekend we had the worst blizzards of the whole winter. We sure were wondering what kind of a winter was in store for us when even the schools closed. It made many folks aware that a generator to keep the furnaces turning out the BTUs for us, was a necessary item to have around. Many felt like we were living in galvanized tepees instead of substantial homes. We are so thankful for this beautiful weather, it will reach 75 above today, the weatherman say.

The warm weather awakened all the squirrels around here and they played hide and seek all afternoon. They had enlarged the hole in the bluebird house that hangs in the big boxelder tree so they could come running on the top of it and just swing themselves right into it. They would then peek out and as soon as another came by out the hiding one would run to catch him. Roy had been cleaning the rain gutters and the wind had blown the mess on the windows, so we were washing them again. I wonder why we were entertained by the squirrels and if it had been a rat or heaven forbid a snake, I would have beat the squirrels up the tree.

Hunting is about the only thing people talk about and those who are able to sit up are out doing those short days. The Bethesda Lutheran Church had a big dinner and bake sale followed by the fourth annual Hunters' Service. Of course everyone was invited and it was a real success.

On Thursday, Douglas Holmstrom and Donevan Larson of Farmington came to Dean and JoAnne Holmstrom to go hunting this weekend. They went home on Monday, hunting accomplished. Everyone in the group had one dach. As warm as it is, care has to be taken as soon as possible or the meat will spoil. On Friday evening, Dean, JoAnne, Douglas and Donavan brought dinner to Elsie Lefrooth's home where they had a good supper and visit.

Jimmie and Josie Kleinvachter of Sauk Center visited with Judy Kleinvachter this week. Those who came to visit were Pat Larson, Bud and Marie Steffen of Argyle, Betty Pietruszewski, and Ben Kasprowicz. It is always nice to visit Judy.

Pearl Thompson and her granddaughter, Karen Thompson of Thief River Falls visited Elsie Lefrooth after the "appreciation for pastors" dinner and music practice afterwards.

Last Sunday, Eva Bernard, Morris and Hazel Anderson and Cindy Wetterlund of Grand Forks had dinner at Paul and Shirley Anderson's home.

Becky Johnson and Karen Thompson visited Peter and Pearl Thompson on Sunday.

On Friday evening, Pearl Thompson and Myrtle Vagle accompanied Betsy Thompson to Orsylon where they joined a group of ladies from the Karlstad Assembly of God Church for dinner at a restaurant there. The ladies had a great time.

Johnson Take Trip to Virginia

Irwin and Pearl Johnson returned recently from visiting with Irwin's cousin Dorothy Johnson at Norfolk, VA. Many historical points of interest were seen. Two separate days were spent at colonial Williamsburg. This was the capitol of Virginia from 1699-1780. There they toured the governor's palace, capitol and homes. Sunday morning they attended services at the Bruton Episcopal parish church there. It has been in continuous use since 1715, but has encountered some restoration.

Another day was spent at the Jamestown settlement, touring the Pohatan Indian village, that describes the life style of the people who inhabited Virginia when the settlers arrived. They also viewed replicas of the three ships which left England in 1606 to bring 104 settlers to Virginia, a voyage that took four and one-half months.

A cruise on the schooner "American Rover" that went down the Elizabeth River showed the sightseers many Navy ships. A drive through the naval base brought back memories to Irwin as he was stationed there while in the Navy. But so much had completely changed. A walk on the "Board Walk" and seeing the Atlantic Ocean concluded their visit to Virginia.

A small community party was held on Saturday night at the Gunderson Apartment meeting room with Darrel Swenson providing entertainment on the keyboard. Residents and friends attending and it was fun!

Lillian Sundby of Alvarado spent the weekend at the Gordon Skjerven home and attended the confirmation for Sarah Sundby at Trinity Lutheran Church on Sunday. The Gordon and Arnold Skjerven families also attended. A family dinner was served at the Todd Sundby home in honor of Sarah.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ranum attended the Thief Lake church supper on Saturday night.

Last Sunday Hal and Ardelle Anderson were dinner guests at the Renee Mobey home at East Grand Forks, along with other relatives and friends in honor of Renee's daughter Jena, who was confirmed that morning.

On Tuesday, Lloyd and Sidney Ranum and Elsie Hodik went to Neche, ND, to visit brother Stanley Ranum. They had a nice time there.

Irwin and Pearl Johnson visited with Oleus and Frances Buringrud at Fargo on Monday afternoon.

On Saturday afternoon, Hal and Ardelle Anderson went to Jon and Shelly Melby's home at Badger for granddaughter Alexi's third birthday.

The Town and Country Garden Club met at the Elmer Rooker home last week. The lesson was on "Use and Cultivation of Rosemary" and also "Window Sill Gardening." The club awards were given to Marshall and Pennington County clubs. Those who attended were Bert and Joyce Kron, Alvin and Bernyce Grandstrand, Vernelle Stokke, Joyce Erickson, Elmer and Clarice Rooker, Nina Halvorson, and Hazel Olson.

Morris and Elaine Meruska of Angus were coffee guests at the Irwin Johnson home on Tuesday afternoon.

Melvin and Irene Grandstrand went to Brooks to help John and Stacy Berberich celebrate their birthdays.

On Monday night, Jim, Angie and children were callers at the Melvin Grandstrand home.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
JULY 27TH, 1999 5:00 P.M.

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls, MN Tuesday, July 27, 1999 at 5:00 p.m. Members present: Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, Donald Jensen, and Arden "Bud" Comstock. Members absent: Oliver "Skip" Swanson (5:10 p.m.).

Howard Person, County Extension and Solid Waste officer met with the County Board to review a letter written to SWIS CORP regarding the Stipulation Agreement. He went over the pros and cons about entering into another agreement. The County Board wanted a response date of August 6, 1999 at the end of the letter.

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency would like to meet August 19, 1999 at 1:00 p.m. in Detroit Lakes with SWIS CORP, Pennington County Solid Waste Committee, and Pennington County Attorney, David Olin. This meeting will be the first round of comments for the negotiated Stipulation Agreement. MPCA wants the Stipulation Agreement in place by October 1, 1999.

Steve Nordhagen from Lee's Sanitation requested the opportunity to meet with the Solid Waste Committee before the MPCA meeting on August 19, 1999. The County Board set a Solid Waste Committee meeting with Lee's Sanitation and others for August 4, 1999 in the County Board Room at 1:00 p.m.

County Engineer Delton Schultz and Assistant County Engineer George Broadwell met with the County Board at this time. Others in attendance with them were Lyle Kannel, Don Longeven, Hubert Rodrigue, and Verona Rodrigue. A petition was signed by the owners along County Ditch #35 to spot clean the ditch one and one-half miles in Sections 10 and 11 of Smiley Township.

Also a request from the group was to remove trees that were along County Road #61 in Section 1. The trees create a driving hazard for the school buses and others in the winter, because of the snow build up. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to accept the petition to spot clean County Ditch #35. Motion unanimously carried.

The request for the removal of trees along County Road #61 was turned over to the County Highway Road and Bridge Committee for review.

Lowell Lindemoen contacted the County Engineer about the possibilities of installing an approach on the east side of C.S.A.H. #18 in Section 35, Township 154N, and Range 44W. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to authorize the installation of another approach to Mr. Lindemoen's property with all expenses to be paid by him. Motion unanimously carried.

At the last County Board meeting the County Engineer received approval for new networking and telephone systems in the Government Joint Use Facility. The furniture and other items were to be reviewed by the Highway Road and Bridge Committee and be brought back to the current meeting for authorization. After discussion Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to approve the following items: furniture $37,337.83; copy machine $3,495.00; walls to enclose the two offices (lowest quote). Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to approve a change order of $7,000.00 increase on the Government Joint Use Facility to include windows on the south side of the building. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Engineer stated that he had a discussion with Ray Sauve regarding the re-determination of benefits for County Ditch #1 Rocksbury/North. The Engineer wanted a cost estimate for viewing the ditch. Mr. Sauve stated he would like to review the ditch system first before a cost estimate could be given due to the benefactors and location of the system. Mr. Sauve would not be in Thief River Falls until the end of August 1999 or the beginning of September 1999 and would not be able to review the ditch until that time.

The County Board asked that a Joint Ditch Board meeting be scheduled to discuss the re-determination of benefits on J.D. #41 and C.D. #31. The benefitted landowners of these ditch systems along with Ray Sauve will be invited to the meeting.

The County Engineer discussed the MECC Center with the County Board. He stated he was approached about providing gravel for another parking lot, installing another culvert, and regraveling the east and west frontage road. As far as the County Board was concerned they had provided their in-kind share of the project already. The County Board took no action on these items and required the County Engineer to receive full Board approval before any more funds are spent.

County Engineer Delton Schultz received two crushing gravel quotes: Thorson Inc. at $2.25/CY, and Schenky at $1.32/CY. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to accept the quote from Schenky to crush gravel for Pennington County out of the Wold Pit. Motion unanimously carried.

A construction status report of upcoming and current highway projects was given to the County Board.

Sheriff Mike Hruby met with the County Board to discuss the problem of providing meals for the Minimum Security Facility. The sheriff reviewed his options and found that Best Inc. would be able to meet the County's needs. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to direct the sheriff to establish cost quotes with Best Inc. The County Board wants two different cost estimates. One estimate would be if the County would install and pay for all the equipment needed for meal production. The other estimate would be if Best Inc. would install the equipment needed. The County would have a long-term contract with Best Inc., and would own the equipment at the end of the contract. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Sheriff questioned when the fees for the civil service of papers could be reviewed. The County Board stated the fee schedule could be brought before the Board once a year. The County Sheriff was to revise the fee schedule and have it reviewed by the County Board at a later date.

The following resolution was moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Comstock on Operation NightCAP and upon vote unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED, that Pennington County enters into a Grant Contract with the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, State Patrol Division for the program entitled Operation NightCAP.

Over 1,000 attend Arctic Cat race school in TRF

Arctic racers and snowmobile enthusiasts turned Thief River Falls into a city of pickups and trailers Sunday and Monday. According to Arctic Cat, over 1,000 racers and snowmobile enthusiasts registered for the Eighth Annual Team Arctic Racing Seminar on Monday.

The seminar, workshop, forum, and trade show, offered Arctic Cat racers and snowmobile enthusiasts valuable information and resources for the upcoming snowmobile season. The seminar providers racers, mechanics and technicians an opportunity to learn about Arctic Cat's new technology, visit with vendors, and make contacts that they'll use all season.

That's why over 1,000 people have registered for the event, said Joey Hallstrom of Arctic Cat.

At the "Ice Breaker Reception" Sunday, the 2000 ZR 440 Sno Pro and Z440 Sno Pro were unveiled. It was obvious from the list of specifications made available to participants, that Arctic Cat has made significant changes to the snowmobiles.

Most of the changes were to the engine and chassis. At the seminar Monday, Greg Spaulding presented information about the changes to the engine, and Kirk Hibbert presented information about changes to the chassis. The Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center was packed with individuals who wanted to learn about the changes.

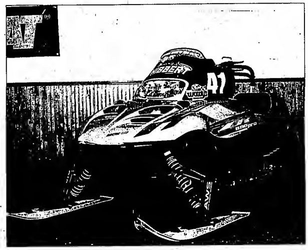
Hallstram noted that the 440 is Arctic Cat's flagship snowmobile. The 440 sets the tone for marketing, he said.

Marketing keys on the success of the research and development, and the effort and successes are applied to the many other snowmobiles manufactured by Arctic Cat. That's why it's so important.

Hallstrom noted that many other snowmobile manufacturers are now doing the same thing, because of the successes Arctic Cat has had.

In addition to the seminar, between 600 and 700 snowmobiles would be picked up by racers and enthusiasts at the factory, which explains why there were so many pickups and trailers on the road between Arctic Cat and the Fairgrounds.

Hallstram said the test drivers had recently returned from testing in Alaska and they were really excited about engine performance. Hallstram said, according to test drivers, Arctic Cat is in the best shape it has ever been in going into a race season.



Arctic Cat unveiled its 2000 ZR 440 at the start of its annual Team Arctic Racing Seminar Sunday. The goals for the 440 liquid twin this season were improved torque and bottom-end power, consistent operation in all conditions and improved durability. The addition of an all-new exhaust and ignition system highlight the many changes that accomplished these goals. Complementing the new hood and belly pan are an array of chassis and suspension improvements that produce a snowmobile capable of snowcross, cross-country or oval racing. The 440 liquid, which is produced mainly for racing, is the flag ship of Arctic. It sets the tone for research and development, and marketing for all other sleds produced by Arctic.

TRF to hold Christmas tree Lighting ceremony Saturday

Lighting of the community Christmas tree in Thief River Falls will take place at 6 p.m. on Saturday, November 20, in Floyd B. Olson Park.

Ron Winter, chairman of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, will give the opening address; and Heidi Hoks of the public library will give the reading of the Christmas Story.

Music and refreshments will also be a part of the ceremony. Sunrise Singers under the direction of Ruth Stenson will take part in the ceremony. There will be a community sing-a-long, followed by the lighting of the Christmas tree, and prayer offered by Rev. Tim Bauer. Refreshments will be served during the lighting ceremony.

A special guest appearance by a resident of the North Pole is also expected.

Following the lighting of the Christmas tree, Larry Bakke will be offering horse-drawn carriage rides to observe the lights in the Oakland Park area. The cost will be $5 per person, but a special rate will be offered for families. They will be loading the carriage at the Evergreen Eating Emporium.

The event is sponsored collaboratively by the Community Education Department of School District 564, the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, and a number of local businesses.

Council canvasses results of election

The Thief River Falls City Council declared the results of the November 2 election at the Tuesday, November 9 regular meeting.

City Administrator Roger DeLap briefly reviewed the November 8 recount. He explained that the voter used an ink pen, rather than the pencil provided and that the counting machine could not read the ballot.

Mayor Mark Borsheim noted that ink is non-reflective, which is why the machine did not read it.

DeLap explained that in the future, the counting machine can be programmed to reject a blank ballot so the ballot could be checked manually.

The council approve a recommendation that a city employee be suspended for two weeks after testing positive on a routine drug test. City policy requires that the employee attend a drug and alcohol rehab program and be subject to random drug tests over the next two years. If the employee tests positive again for drugs or alcohol, he will be automatically terminated.

The test is required by law for all city employees with a commercial driver's license.

In other business, the council:

Approved moving Deb Stenseth from the previous Jobs, Inc. secretary position to the new Community Development secretary's position effective November 1, 1999.

Renewed the Class C (Bingo) premises permit for the Heritage Community Center.

Accepted the Planning Commission's recommendations regarding the certificate of survey for lots 15-20 of Kratka's subdivision. It was noted by Donald Stewart, Community Development Director and Zoning Administrator, that the lots are being developed for single family housing.

Approved a resolution designating the week of November 14 through 20 as Kiwanis Key Club International Week.

Many people in the area are thinking the same — Let It Snow. Warm temperatures greeted visitors and shoppers last weekend. Many were shopping in Thief River Falls because of the craft shows. Crafts pictured above were created and displayed by Wenda Dudley of Warren.

LHS to present "Auntie Mame" November 19-20

Flappers, fast cars, airplanes, radio, bobbed hair, crossword puzzles, avant garde art — the roaring 20's were roaring with fads and fun — America was kicking up her heels. It is this era that will come alive on the stage of Lincoln High School, Friday, November 19, and Saturday, November 20, when the drama department will perform "Auntie Mame," directed by Connie Stock.

"Auntie Mame," written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, was based on the novel by Patrick Dennis. It later became the musical hit "Mame" starring Angela Lansbury and the successful film version starring Lucille Ball. It takes the audience on a mad-cap romp with the irrepressible Mame Dennis and her eccentric entourage through the 1920's, the stock market crash, her marriage to a southern oil man, and her love and devotion to her nephew, Patrick Dennis. Only one word can sum up Mame's philosophy of life — live!

The play opens with the reading of Edwin Dennis' a will and our introduction to his parentless son Patrick, played by John Marben. Patrick and his Irish nanny, Norah Muldoon, played by JoAnna Swantek, make their way to Number 3 Beekman Place, New York City, to meet Patrick's only living relative, Mame Dennis, brought to life in this production by Meghan Reed. They are greeted by Ben Owen, otherwise known as the endearing Japanese houseman, Ito. What they happen upon is one of Mame's outrageous parties complete with dancing and "interesting" characters. Here we meet an orthodox Lithuanian bishop who speaks no English (Dane Proiland), Osbert, a be-sandled mystic (Chad Halvorson), Ralph Devine, a "progressive" educator (Aaron Northup), and a host of other dancing party-goers including Jennifer Halvorson, Tad Tureson, Brenda Wood, Marsha Lubitz, Kay Steiger, Rebekah Solem, AshLeigh Anderson, Amber Curry, Heather Pellman, and Sally Phillipp. After some confusion, Mame introduces her nephew, and the fun (and lessons) begin.

Concern for Patrick's education displayed by his rather conservative trustee, Mr. Babcock, played by Adam Quesnell, often collides head-on with Mame's idea of education causing comedic and poignant conflict within the play. Contributing to Patrick's "life lessons" are Mame's friends, Vera Charles (Yvonne Asp) a famous British actress from Pittsburgh, and the always reasonable Lindsay Woolsey (Josh Mattison). An entertaining addition to the show is a play within a play seen from backstage including Vera as the leading lady upstaged by Mame. Other members of the "cast" include the maid Sally Phillipp, the butler Aaron Northup, Lord Dudley Dane Proiland, the stage manager Gabby Lee, and the theater manager Chad Halvorson.

Adding to the complications of Patrick's life is Mame's marriage to a true Southern gentleman, played by Casé Melotyre. She meets "Beau" while working at Macy's after the stock market crash and then heads south to meet the rest of the Burnside family. Interesting characters abound with Mother Burnside (known for her delicate digestive system), Taryn Pream; Beau's old girlfriend, Sally Cato (Mami Schafer); her obnoxious little brother Emory, Cody Knutson; Cousin Jeff, Chad Halvorson; and Cousin Pan, Marsha Lubitz. Other family members are Sally Phillipp, Heather Fellman, Sophie Boiter, Carisa Ptacek, Amber Curry, Stacy Schultz, Ashleigh Anderson, Rebekah Solem, Nick Olson (the huntsman) and Aaron Northup (the vet). A fox hunt ensues, and, of course, everyone ends up loving Mame, from which the hit song, "Mame," emerges.

The play runs its course through several years and several crises, and eventually Patrick grows up. During this time, Mame writes a book which introduces comedy and complications through the characters of the not-so-worldly Agnes Gooch, played by ShawnDee Price, and the very worldly Brian O'Bannion played by Anders Brawn. Adding to the complications is Patrick's proposed marriage to Gloria Upson (Heidi Young). She and her parents, Claude Upson (Luke Miller) and Doris Upson (Hailey Stephenson), represent exactly the opposite of what Mame has tried to teach Patrick through the years, to accept people and not to judge them by money and status. Of course, Mame takes matters into her own hands, and Patrick eventually marries the decorator, Pegeen Ryan, played by Bethany Brown. The play ends where it began, only this time the young life Mame is about to mold is that of Michael Dennis (Colt Bergeron), Patrick and Pegeen's son.

Once again, Mame and Mr. Babcock clash over their opinions about how Patrick should be educated as Lindsay unsuccessfully tries to intervene. Lincoln High School's fall play, "Auntie Mame," will be performed Friday and Saturday, November 19 and 20. Pictured from left are Meghan Reed as Mame, Josh Mattison as Lindsay, Adam Quesnell as Mr. Babcock, and John Marben as Patrick.

Pennington Co. assessor notes changes to law

Article 5, section 13 of the 1999 Omnibus Tax Bill allows agricultural homestead classification for farms of at least 40 acres where the farm owner does not live on the farm, bat lives within foar cities or townships from the farm, if the owner actively farms the land, is a Minnesota resident, and neither the owner(s) nor the spouse claim another agricultural homestead in Minnesota.

This section replaces the old, "Agricultural homestead; special provisions" statute, which remains in law but qualification is limited only to those who qualified and received this "special provision" for previoas assessments.

Any property in the county receiving this classification should continae to receive it as long as they continue to qualify. However, it is no longer available to other property owners beginning with the 1999 assessment.

The new legislation provides for homestead for non-contiguous farmland under the following conditions:

Agricultural property consisting of at least 40 acres shall be classified homestead, to the same extent as other agricultural homestead property, if all of the following criteria are met:

1) The owner is actively farming the agricultaral property;

2) The owner of the agricultural property is a Minnesota resident;

3) Neither the owner nor their spouse may claim another agricultural homestead in Minnesota; and

4) The owner does not live farther than foar townships or cities, or a combination of foar townships or cities, from the agricultural property.

This new legislation is effective beginning with the 1999 assessment, taxes payable in 2000 and thereafter.

The following definition constitutes "actively farming." Persons engaged in actively farming must participate in the day to day labor, administration and management of the farm. They must assume all or a portion of the financial risks and they must participote in any profits or losses.

Additionally:

- The applicant must own the farmland in question;
- The farmland must be a minimum of 40 acres in size and;
- The farmland must meet the definition of agricultural property contained in Minnesota Statutes 273.124, Subd. 14(b).

* Land enrolled in CRP and or RIM do not qualify for the homestead classification. It will continue to be classified as agricultural.

This legislation provides another important departure from the past homestead requiremeats. Namely, the applicant can live in their own home but they can still qualify even if they live in an apartment, a rental home, a manufactured home park, a condominium or a cooperative.

Homestead application: this special homestead provision is only available to qualified individuals that make application by the filing deadline of December 15. Because the property owner must attest to certain facts that the assessor cannot possibly know, this classification cannot be given without a completed application. In order to monitor this homestead provisioo, the owner will be required to make annual application. This special homestead provision requires much more compliance on the part of the applicant than an ordinary homestead, particularly in the area of actively farming.

Law enforcement agencies crack down on buckling up

More than 6,000 law enforcement agencies in all 50 states will be conducting their fifth coordinated enforcement blitz on drivers with unbuckled children, called the Operation ABC Mobilization, during Thanksgiving week, Navember 22-28.

ABC stands for: America Buckles up Children.

A new survey finds that more than 13 percent of Americans who drive children admit they don't always have the children use seat belts. Three out of four of these people say they know traffic crashes are the number one killer of children and that driving with an unrestrained child is against the law.

According to this survey 6.5 million children are at deadly risk in vehicles in the event of a crash.

"Drivers who fail to ensure that their passengers — especially children— are buckled are needlessly endangering them and violating the law. Law enforcement authorities should take the necessary steps to aggressively enforce those laws," said Jim Hall, chair of the National Transportation Safety Board.

In just two years since periodic crackdowns began, child fatalities have dropped by 12.3 percent, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. This puts the nation within reach of its goal of decreasing child fatalities by 15 percent by the year 2000. The Department of Transportation also credits the mobilizations with helping to boost restraint use for children ages one to four from 60 to 87 percent in just twa years.

During the fifth wave of the Operation ABC Mobilization, tens of thousands of officers froro all 50 states will step up enforcement by conducting child safety checkpoints, saturation patrols, and looking for violations of child passenger safety laws. Officers will also be enforcing adult seat belt laws, because research shows that buckled drivers are three times more likely to buckle up a child than unbuckled drivers.

NCTC recognizes Aviation History Month, anniversary

Northland Community and Technical College is recognizing November as Aviation History Month, and honoring the 40th anniversary of their Aviation Maintenance Technology program. An open hoase will be held from noon to 5 p.m., Tuesday, November 30, at the aviation Center in honor of the anniversary.

Since the Wright Brothers took flight in 1903, there have been coantless innovations in aviation technology. Today, the aviation industry remains one of the most rapidly booming trades in today's business environment.

Realizing the potential of the booming flight industry, NCTC began to develop an Aviation Maintenance Technology program, with the intent that their program would become one of the best in the nation. Their goal quickly became reality.

In 1959, NCTC received accreditation from the Federal Aviation Administration to develop and offer a two-year Aviation Maintenance program. That year the program started with 18 students and one instructor in a hangar remodeled for classrooms and labs. In the 40-year history of the program, Aviation Maintenance Technology has grown to encompass an 86,000 square-foot facility with multi-million dollar classrooms and laboratories. Hundreds of students each year receive their training in a state-of-the-art facility that has been nationally recognized within the aviation community.

Lauro Cavazos, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Education, has high praise for the program. He said, "The Thief River Falls Aviation Technology program is one of the nation's outstanding vocational technical programs."

Indeed, Cavazos was right. In 1991, the College was honored with the National Award for Excellence from the United States Office of Education for the Aviation Maintenance Technology training program. The program was cited as being one of the 10 best technical education programs in the nation.

In 1996, the NCTC program was again recognized when it became the first American college to receive accreditation from Transport Canada to train Canadian citizens in aviation maintenance. Again, the program was called the best in the United States.

The Aviation Maintenance Technology program at Northland is also articulated with the four-year Airway Science Program at the University of North Dakota. A comprehensive, customized training program has been developed to complement this four-year program, and customized training classes have been offered in Tarbes, France; Minneapolis; Sacramento, CA; Dallas, TX; Frederick, MD; and San Antonio, TX.

The Aviation Maintenance Technology training program operates from its own campus on the grounds of the regional airport, located just outside the city limits of Thief River Falls. The Aviation Center has 11 classrooms, one of which is configured to provide the latest in computer instruction and one state-of-the art classroom is equipped for transmitting and receiving instruction via a two-way interactive television system served by fiber optic cabling.

What truly sets the Northland Aviation Center apart from all other schools, is the availability of the number of aircraft accessible for hands-on student training. In one of two hangars you will find a Boeing 727-100, three MD DC-9 commercial aircraft, 11 fixed-wing reciprocating engine aircraft, two turboprop aircraft, two jet aircraft, and six helicopters.

Students enrolled in the College aviation program can earn an Associate of Applied Science Degree and licensure as a FAA certified Aviation Maintenance Technician. Students interested in transferring to the University of North Dakota as juniors can earn a Bachelor of Science Degree in Aviation Maintenance Management, with an additional two years of education.

Northland Community and Technical College is inviting members of the community to attend an open house celebration honoring their 40 years in aviation industry. The open house will be held from noon to 5 p.m., Tuesday, November 30, at the aviation Center, located just two miles south of Thief River Falls on the airport road. Cookies and coffee will be served and tours of the center will be available. The Open Hoase will feature demonstrations of aviation equipment. Informational sessions will be held by Don Brown, representing the Federal Aviation Administration and others to be announced.

Meetings to offer marketing plan information

Understanding and developing written marketing plans is the focus of a series of meetings to be held throughout Minnesota in late November.

"There is a lot of distress these days about low commodity prices," said Keith Banta, marketing specialist with Country Hedging. "Yet 1999 will go down as a year when the advantages of using a written marketing plan were clearly demonstrated."

Banta says farmers who contracted half of their corn crop before harvest are enjoying a 50-to-80 cent per bushel better cash price. "Over time, producers who use a written marketing plan, will tend to make more money on the sale of their crops and livestock," says Banta.

Banta says the goals of a marketing plan are profitability and risk control. "View your marketing plan like a coach's game plan," he says. "How many coaches wait until the 4th quarter ta implement their game plan?"

Growers participating in the meetings will actually begin the process of putting together a marketing plan that will work for them.

Meetings scheduled for this area include: November 19 - 8:30 a.m., Northwest Technical College, Moorhead; November 19 - 6:30 p.m., Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston; and November 23 - 6:30 p.m., Best Western, Morris.

Each meeting will last approximately twa hours, and a workbook will be provided ta each participant.

The meetings are sponsored by the Minnesota Wheat Growers, Minnesota Corn Growers, Minnesota Soybean Growers, the U of M Extension Service, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, the Minnesota Farm Network, Farm Credit Services, and the Red River Farm Network.

There will be no charge to attend the seminars, but RSVPs are required. To reserve a spot, call 612-233-0333.

TRF youths to perform with Greater Grand Forks Youth Symphony

(The following article was submitted by Marilyne Sayler, the mother of two of the Thief River Falls youth who will perform in the upcoming musical performance in Grand Forks. Local youth participating in the orchestra are Ben and Dan Sayler, sons of Ben and Marilyne Sayler, Anthony Wold, son of Rick and Trudy Wold, and Emily Passey, the daughter of Jeanine Fortin. This is the fifth year Ben, 16, and Dan, 14, have performed with the orchestra, and it is the second year for Anthony, a ninth grade student at Lincoln High School. Emily is a student at Franklin Middle School and will perform with the Greater Grand Forks Junior Orchestra.)

Four Thief River Falls musicians will be in concert with the Greater Grand Forks Symphony Association Youth Orchestras Sunday, November 21 at 2 p.m. in the Community Performing Arts Center, 1420 4th Avenue Northwest, East Grand Forks.

Violinists Dan and Ben Sayler, violist Emily Passey and bass player Anthony Wold will join over sixty other young people from northeastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota to launch the 1999-2000 season of youth symphonies in Grand Forks, ND.

Tickets will be on sale at the door.

There are two branches in the youth orchestra program. The junior symphony, for middle school students, is an all-strings orchestra. The youth symphony, for high school and college students, incorporates winds, brass, and percussion with strings. Acceptance into the Greater Grand Forks Youth Symphonies is by audition. After listening to over 80 young people play their individual instruments this fall, both conductors were impressed by the preponderance of talent throughout the region.

Directing the Junior Symphony, which is beginning its second season, is Mrs. Naomi Welch, who also directs orchestra programs at three elementary schools and Valley Middle School in Grand Forks.

"The kids in this group are hard-working and energetic, as well as fun to work with," she reports enthusiastically. With an obviously heartfelt concern for the musicians, she continues, "Several young people who are in the Youth Symphonies don't have anywhere else to play in an orchestra. It is nice to see them get that opportunity in Grand Forks. Families are starting to participate, too. Some of the older siblings may be in the youth symphony, while the younger ones play in the junior symphony. Many of them drive quite a distance to rehearsals. I commend the parents for their commitment to bringing their children to rehearsals week after week."

For the November 21 concert, Welch's 20-member junior symphony will be playing three pieces arranged for string orchestra: Brandenburg Concerto II by Bach, Londonderry Air, also known as Danny Boy, and Capriccio Espagnol by Rinski-Corsakov.

As Welch contemplates the upcoming engagement for her musicians, she notes some contrasts. "A lot of publicity seems to be given to the negative things that happen with kids. I'd like to see that changed. Here are kids who are doing something good. Let's give them positive reinforcement for their hard work and effort. Let's get out and applaud them," she invites.

Students in the youth symphony will be playing under new leadership this season. Bruce Morlock, who conducted the youth symphony from its inception in 1995 until spring of this year, was appointed Director of Bands at Red River High School beginning in the fall of 1999. Morlock passed the conductor's baton to Dr. Gordon Brock, Director of Bands at the University of North Dakota. While some might feel reticent to take on a group of freelance high school and college-age musicians, Brock views it as a welcome opportunity. "I am very glad to do it," he says. "Some of my fondest memories of making music are with this age level."

Brock is referring to several years spent conducting weekly honor band rehearsals at Canada's second largest conservatory in Edmonton, AB. "What I find most gratifying is having the opportunity to make music with an ensemble of highly talented young musicians," he says.

He speaks about each piece the orchestra will perform on November 21. He notes the Hungarian Dance #5 was originally written for keyboard before Brahms transformed it into a score for orchestra.

Intermezzo Sinfonica is from the first opera for which Pietro Mascagni received worldwide recognition. "The portion we are playing is quite passionate," reveals Brock. "It is a beautiful excerpt from the opera."

Being professionally and personally acquainted with composer Elliot Del Borgo, Brock feels a special closeness to Chant and Joyous Dance. His enthusiasm for Del Borgo's work is obvious — he concludes that it should make a strong connection with the audience since it "enters the ears easily."

"How appropriate," concludes Brock, "that with the approach of a new millennium we end the concert with a modern composition."

He is referring to The Millennium by Richard Meyer, the 1998 National School Orchestra Competition winner.

Brock and Welch have chosen the music for this concert carefully.

"We feel a responsibility to render an accurate and engaging performance," admits Brock. "We strive to have something in the program for every mood. Like a phrase, I like the concert to have a shape and direction. We do that by including music that has increasing and decreasing energy levels."

He continues, "My expectations for the orchestra are high, but achievable. Whatever they bring to each rehearsal, I respond in kind. Like all musicians, they want direction and guidance and that is what I provide. In essence, I become the composer's advocate and the musicians in turn sell our collective concept to the audience. We are all responsible for bringing the music to life."

It is an ambitious undertaking to engage young people in the fine art of being advocates for some of the masters of music composition. Brock and Welch have capably embraced the task and the youth symphony musicians are eager to demonstrate the exciting results. But musicianship is only part of what is needed for this endeavor.

"The other part," concedes Welch, "is building a musical audience." With this in mind, the Greater Grand Forks Symphony Association invites the community to Sunday's performance, for it is with a receptive audience that the music has its best opportunity to truly come alive for others. And for the two conductors and 60 musicians of the Greater Grand Forks Youth Symphonies, that is the goal.

Inquiries about the youth symphony concert or other youth orchestra programs may be directed to Jennifer Ettling, executive director, 701-777-3395.

Area youth, including (from left) Dan Sayler, Anthony Wold and Ben Sayler of Thief River Falls, will perform with the Greater Grand Forks Symphony Association Youth Orchestras on Sunday, November 21 at 2 p.m. at the Community Performing Arts Center in East Grand Forks. Dan, Anthony and Ben will perform with the youth symphony, and violinist Emily Passey will perform with the junior symphony.

Minnesota continues stepped-up adoption efforts

Families' efforts, federal funding and collaboration between government and private organizations are paying off but Minnesota has a lot more work to do to ensure almost 1,000 Minnesota children have safe, permanent, adoptive homes.

In 1998, families adopted 427 children who had been under state guardianship, mostly in the state's foster care system. That number, a 66 percent increase over the average number of adoptions for the previous three years, earned Minnesota more than half a million dollars in bonus funds from the federal government as part of the federal Adoption 2002 Initiative. The increase was due in part to the efforts of the Minnesota Department of Human Services, counties and 11 private adoption agencies to match children with adoptive families more quickly.

"Adoption Month in November highlights the needs of these children," said Minnesota Human Services commissioner Michael O'Keefe. "All children deserve safe, permanent, nurturing homes and our job is to find those homes and families for children under state guardianship as quickly as possible. Gov. Ventura is very committed to helping parents parent their children. For these kids, the first step is finding those special individuals who will fill that role."

This past legislative session, Minnesota designated $6 million over the 2000-2001 biennium to expedite adoption of children with special needs. In addition, $1.8 million over a three-year period will help provide an array of post-adoption services through contracted agencies to families and $345,000 will go toward recruiting and increasing the number of foster and adoptive families.

"This funding and the commitment of the department, counties and private agencies to increase adoptions will help us ensure children are in adoptive homes with parents who are committed to them and can meet their needs," said Erin Sullivan Sutton, Minnesota Human Services acting assistant commissioner of the Children's Initiative.

Currently, 1,640 children are under the guardianship of the state. Of those, 947 are immediately available for adoption and 693 are already in pre-adoptive homes, many are with foster parents or relatives who are likely to adopt them, others are in long-term foster care or are at least 14 years old and have chosen not to be adopted.

Most are registered on the State Adoption Exchange, an electronic database with information on children available for adoption and prospective adoptive parents throughout the state. The Minnesota Adoption Resource Network (MARN) is under contract with the state to maintain the exchange and publish "Minnesota Waiting Children," a bimonthly magazine that introduces children to prospective adoptive parents.

Children who are under state guardianship and available for adoption come from all ethnic backgrounds and range from infancy to 18 years. Of these children, 44 percent ar 6 to 11 years old; 69 percent are siblings who need to stay together when they are adopted; and 71 percent have been chronically neglected or abused and may have special needs due to physical, emotional or behavioral disabilities.

"For families considering adoption, I urge them to consider adopting children who are under state guardianship and already waiting for families," said O'Keefe.

Prospective adoptive parents who would like more information about adopting children who are under state guardianship may contact their county social service agency or MARN at 612-861-7115.

Minnesota again ranked healthiest state in nation

For the fourth consecutive year and the seventh time in 10 years, Minnesota is the healthiest state in the country, according to a national report released recently.

The report, previously prepared by ReliaStar and this year by United Health Group, ranks the health of all 50 states using several criteria, including lifestyle, access to health care, occupational safety and disability, disease and mortality. Minnesota comes out on top due to low premature death rates, low unemployment, low risk for heart disease, high rate of high school graduation and high rates of health insurance coverage.

According to the report, Minnesota "... ranked in the top 20 in all measures except adequacy of prenatal care and number of limited activity days." The report notes that adequacy of prenatal care has improved over the last decade but not as fast as the national average.

"Many people contribute to our great health in Minnesota, including public health workers, health care providers, public officials, non-profit organizations and individual residents," said Malcolm. "We all deserve to give ourselves a round of applause, but let's not let the applause drown out the fact that we still have serious issues to address."

The Minnesota Department of Health recently identified several public health priorities that need attention over the next two years. They include eliminating the health disparities affecting populations of color and other at-risk populations and preparing for emerging health threats such as bio-terrorism and drug-resistant bacterial infections.

Blood drive November 23-24 at Redeemer church

Thief River Falls next blood drive will be held on November 23 from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. and November 24 from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

Blood drives held around holidays are especially important because United Blood Services will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, November 25, and extra blood will be needed to build up the supply before the holiday and bring the supply back to normal after the holiday.

Many people do not realize that they are qualified to give blood. Generally, most healthy people between the ages of 17 and 79 who weigh at least 110 are able to give blood. People who are taking hormones, birth control pills, diet pills, high blood pressure medication or antibiotics for acne may donate blood. Donors need to bring a list of medications they have taken in the past 30 days.

Every donor must bring identification to the blood drive. Identification must include the donor's legal name plus one of the following: photo, date of birth, social security number or United Blood Services assigned number.

If you can but don't donate blood, it may not be readily available when a patient needs it. More donors are needed as the demand for blood products is constantly increasing, and the need doesn't take a vacation holiday. Blood is needed every day by someone. While many people say that they are too busy to donate blood, patients are betting their lives that those people are not too busy to spare an hour a few times a year.

Those interested in donating blood can contact Marilyn Winters at (218)681-7268 to schedule an appointment.

Heidi Young, Lincoln High School

My heart pounded rapidly in my chest as my fingers moved briskly across the hand-held, gray and black controller. Shouts of, "Jump over...oohhhh. DUCK! No, no, no, not there, not there...jump! C'mon you're almost there. Yeah, yeah, oh good...oh NO! I'm sorry, Heidi, you lose again. MY TURN!" My friends patted me on the back in show of support and sympathy for my 67th loss. The evil turtles, the Koopas, had defeated me again.

As a child, my parents never bought me the one thing all my friends had...a Nintendo game system. They told me that it was not educational, not needed, and a waste of good time. Because of my Nintendo-less childhood years, I now have no ability in helping Mario and Luigi defeat the evil turtles, porcupines, and other bad creatures out to get them. As much fun as losing 67 times is, I find it hard to not become emotionally frustrated with losing on a consistent basis.

During our last "girls night," my friends and I decided to be silly and pull out the old Nintendo. After splitting up into teams, the game began. My partner, Taryn, and I were determined to do well... or at least beat my other friends. Slowly I began to learn and adjust to what each button on the controller did. I had the most difficult time with running, jumping, swimming, flying, twirling, ducking...and pretty much everything else that had to do with making the little guy named Mario on my screen move. The more I played...and lost, the more frustrated I became. Not only were my friends excellent at this mind-boggling game, but they knew where every little bonus point, extra coin, and other perks that made each game look like a piece of cake. I discovered that night, that looks can be deceiving. As the night progressed, the more angrier I became. After Mario had completed many hard levels, it had come down to his last life. Taryn decided she would take the controller and play for us since she was the one who could actually win a level. Taking a deep breath, she pressed the start button and Mario flew onto the screen. Through this level, he avoided many terrifying creatures, deep, death-black holes, bombs, and other life-threatening challenges.

As Mario continued on his quest, I glanced over at Taryn. Her tongue was sticking out of her mouth, just enough that I could tell she was in a concentration-filled trance. Her entire body moved simultaneously with Mario and the rapid, suspenseful music. Looking at her made me even more nervous, so I returned my focus back to the screen. To signal the end was nearing, the music intensified and increased in volume. After a few more efforts by the evil Nintendo creatures, Taryn made it through to the end of the course successfully.

My whole body shook with excitement until I could no longer contain myself. I had gotten so emotionally involved in the game; the excitement of winning was overbearing. Tears of joy started to form around the edge of my eyes; I had never known the rush of Nintendo. It's a thrill that only first-time Nintendo players can relate to.

My friends started giggling playfully at me as the tears continued to roll down my excited face. Slowly the giggles turned into roars of laughter until they were rolling on the floor, clutching their bellies. Seeing me cry isn't a very frequent event since I always seem to have a bright, optimistic smile on my face. This sudden burst of tears was a treat for them, especially since the tears were directed at something as ridiculous as Nintendo.

Because of my uncontrollable tears of joy, I am not the center of nearly every playful personal joke told by my friends. I may never live this down.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Ah, the fun of doing business in a small town. My recent search for a 35-foot stretch of perforated four-inch black plastic drain tile took me further than I had ever dreamed.

The carpenters informed me that they needed this tile and fast. I called the local sewer man to see if he had any on hand.

No, he said. The lumber yard has it, but they won't sell you any less than a 100 foot roll. Kind of a waste. He scratched his head. You know, he said, Swenson south of town had some extra from his septic project last year, maybe you should give him a call.

Swenson only had 15 feet, so I called the sewer man back. "Meet me at the shop in the morning," he said.

I had no idea what this drain tile was going to cost. Every time I asked about price, the sewer man said he had no idea. It was sounding bad.

I dragged myself to the sewer man's shop before sunrise. Pickup after pickup pulled up to the shop. The coffee was on. Somebody brought donuts.

The sewer man sipped his coffee, deep in thought. Finally, in a break between hunting stories, he turned towards the man who brought the donuts. "Hey, Gordo, you have some drain tile left from this spring, don't you?"

Sure enough, Gordon had a 50 foot stretch of black four inch perforated drain tile in his barn. I vaguely knew of Gordo, mainly because his bachelor party 20 years ago is a local legend. He jumped into his Silverado, and I followed him ten miles out to his farm.

We dragged the tile from the back of the barn. Cats scurried in all directions. I stuffed the tile in my pickup while Gordon disappeared into the house to figure out the price. I was prepared for the worst.

Minutes passed. No Gordon. I watched the sunrise. I watched the cats fight over their food. I got to know the dog. Finally, Gordon poked his head out the door and told me to come in.

The floor of the entry was covered in old slips from Menard's. Hundreds of slips. Gordo was trying to find the one for the tile. No luck.

Finally, an idea. "I'll disguise my voice and call the lumber yard."

Turns out, a hundred foot roll of drain tile would cost thirty-four dollars. For Gordon's fifty foot stretch, we figured seventeen dollars would be fair. I counted out the cash, and the transaction was complete.

All of this rigamaroll to save seventeen dollars, you might say. But in the pursuit of a little drain tile, I got a donut and a cup of coffee. I heard some good hunting stories and a little gossip. I got to see the inside of Gordon's barn and his entry.

Most precious of all, I get to brag that I got a good deal.

...What Did You Learn In Sunday School?

Last week we talked about mistakes in church bulletins. This week we'll take a peek at something else "churchly." The following statements were written by young people in Sunday or Sabbath School lessons. These, supposedly, have not been corrected and have the actually spelling and any other errors left in.

You know, it seems to me I remember some of these from my Sunday School lessons. What's so funny about them, anyway?

The first book of the Bible, Guinessis, God got tired of creating the world, so he took the Sabbath off.

Adam and Eve were created from an apple tree.

Noah's wife was called Joan of Ark. Noah built and ark, which the animals come on to in pears.

Lot's wife was a pillar of salt by day, but a ball of fire by night.

The Jews were a proud people and throughout history they had trouble with the unsympathetic Genitals.

Samson was a strongman who let himself be led astray by a Jezebel like Delilah.

Samson slayed the Philistines with the axe of the Apostles.

Moses led the Hebrews to the Red Sea, where they made unleavened bread which is bread without any ingredients.

The Egyptians were all drowned in the desert. Afterwards, Moses went up on Mount Cyanide to get the ten ammendments.

The first commandment was when Eve told Adam to eat the apple. The seventh commandment is thou shalt not admit adultery.

Moses died before he ever reached Canada. Then Joshua led the Hebrews in the Battle of Geritol.

The greatest miracle in the Bible is when Joshua told his son to stand still and he obeyed him.

David was a Hebrew king skilled at playing the liar. He fought with the Finklesteins, a race of people who lived in Biblical times.

Solomon, one of David's sons, had 300 wives and 700 porcupines.

When Mary heard that she was the mother of Jesus, she sang the Magna Carta. When the three wise guys from the east side arrived, they found Jesus in the manager.

Jesus was born because Mary had an immaculate contraption.

St. John, the blacksmith, dumped water on his head.

Jesus enunciated the Golden Rule, which says to do one to others before they do one to you. He also explained, "A man doth not live by sweat alone."

It was a miracle when Jesus rose from the dead and managed to get the tombstone off the entrance.

The people who followed the Lord were called the 12 decibels.

The epistles were the wives of the apostles.

One of the opossums was St. Matthew who was also a taximan.

St. Paul cavorted to Christianity. He preached holy acrimony, which is another name for marriage.

Christians should have only one spouse. This is called monotony.

Traditions Can Strengthen Families

It is the holiday season again and here we are doing a lot of the same holiday-type things we've done for the past umpteen years, and we will keep doing them over and over and over again. Psychologists say that there are important reasons why we do such things every year as eat turkey, decorate evergreen trees and light candles. These and other traditions help us define who we are. They give us a sense of belonging and therefore a sense of well-being. They link us to the past and help us transfer our spiritual, religious and cultural values, and our history, to our children.

Kids especially need rituals. As they grow, rituals become symbols that give reassurance of their safety, their own self-worth and the dependability of their parents' love and protection.

So spend some time thinking about and creating traditions for your family. Traditions can be as simple as putting up a homemade decoration each year or they can be as elaborate as a family meal at grandma's house.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the traditions your family has.

Farmers invited to learn about future of GMO crops

Farmers concerned about whether or not they should plant genetically modified soybeans and corn are being invited to an informational meeting in Worthington, Minn., on upcoming world agricultural trade talks on Saturday, Nov. 20, according to three Midwestern state lawmakers.

U.S. Sen. Paul Wellstone is also scheduled to attend the event, which will be held from 12:30 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, in the Fine Arts Auditorium of the Minnesota West Community College at Worthington, Minn. The meeting is being co-hosted by Sen. Wellstone and Minnesota State Rep. Ted Winter, South Dakota State Sen. Frank Kloucek and Iowa State Sen. Jack Kibbie.

"This is a chance for family farmers to educate themselves about the World Trade Organization and the questions to be debated at the trade talks that will have a major impact on farm families and production agriculture," said Winter (DFL-Fulda, MN). "One of the prime concerns for many farmers is how the trade talks will affect markets for genetically modified crops, such as BT corn and Roundup-Ready soybeans. It will pay every family farmer to learn about the process and issues at stake before they make planting decisions for the 2000 growing season."

Neil Ritchie and Steve Suppan, policy analysts with the Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy and Doug Sweetland, president of Southwest State University, will be the main presenters at the meeting. Sen. Wellstone will give his perspective on trade issues and discuss what the United States positions in the talks are likely to be.

The WTO trade talks kick off on Monday, Nov. 29 in Seattle. Sessions are expected to last a week. However, the talks are not expected to result in changes in trade policy until 2003 or 2004.

Kloucek (D-Scotland, SD) said issues to be discussed at the Worthington meeting will include whether farmers should plant GMO crops, the potential markets for those crops and access to markets.

"The major seed companies are pushing farmers hard to buy into GMOs, but right now it's uncertain how international markets will treat them," Kloucek said. "It's worth it to the average farmer to get some information before they make a commitment - and that's why we set up this meeting."

Sen. Kibbie (D-Emmetsburg, IA) said the meeting will also include more general information on prospects for world ag trade that will also affect farmers' pocketbooks.

"We're starting to hear talk about world-wide supply management mechanisms, so that farmers all around the world don't keep trying to outproduce each other and driving the price down," Kibbie said. "Agriculture needs to be on the front burner in these trade talks. This series of discussions will have a significant impact on the future of Midwestern agriculture - not only for the near future, but for decades to come."

There is no cost to attend the meeting.

Pennington Co. DFL Board to Meet

Rick Nelson, chair of the Pennington County DFL board, and Associate Chair Dian Johnson, announced that their final meeting of the board of directors for 1999 will be held at 7 a.m. on Friday, December 10, at Dee's Kitchen.

Agenda items include the finalization of the Pennington County Precinct and County Convention to be held in March of 2000. Nelson said, "with the change in party structure and organization, we will be able to hold our precinct caucus and county convention on the same day in March. This will allow people to be involved in the grass roots process, not only during precinct caucus, but at the county level as well. We feel this is good for those of us who live in rural Minnesota and allow us to stay in touch with the process and have a voice in democracy given to us by the Constitution of the United States of America."

If you would like to learn more about the Pennington County DFL board, contact Rick Nelson at 681-6543, or Dian Johnson at 681-2607.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Where is the Social Security Administration as far as Y2K computer issues are concerned?

A. Ready. As most people know, this question is concerned with the ability of computer systems to tell the year 2000 from the year 1900.

Several years ago, the SSA was one of the first federal agencies to begin preparing its computer software for year 2000 changes. All of the agency's computer systems have been updated and verified by independent testing to be ready for the new year. In fact, updated monthly benefit programs have been in use since 1998 for both mailed checks and those electronically sent to banks for direct deposit.

Other agency programs, such as those used to calculate benefit amounts, have also been updated.

For more information about the SSA and the Y2K issue, visit the agency website at www.ssa.gov and click on "SSA is Y2K OK" located near the top of the page in the "New and Noteworthy" section. You will be able to view related articles and will also find links to some other sites containing Y2K topics.

Q. Will the tax rates for Social Security change next year?

A. The tax rates for the year 2000 are not changing, but the amount of earnings taxable will increase. The rate for employees and employers will remain at 7.65 percent which is the combined rate for both Social Security and Medicare. Of this the Social Security portion is 6.2 percent, and the Medicare portion is 1.45 percent. The self-employed continue to pay the combined rate of 15.3 percent.

The Social Security tax will apply up to the new maximum taxable earnings of $76,200, but the Medicare portion of tax withheld continues without ending any particular amount. In 1999, gross wages and net self-employment earnings up to $72,600 were taxed for Social Security. Those seeing a change in the amount of Social Security tax in 2000 will be those earning over $72,600.

Kmart intends to enter 2000 with 90 percent of its stores boasting the Big Kmart designation. Big Kmart's affect on Thief River Falls goes beyond shopping convenience. The new store represents a $600,000 investment in the local economy. Dignitaries at the ribbon-cutting event included Betty Peterson and Keith Poissant of Kmart, Don Stewart, community development director, Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim, Nick Bosh, Grant Wantz, chamber of commerce ambassador, Ron Winter, chamber of commerce chairman, Julie Olson, chamber of commerce president, and Terry Sohlar, district manager for Kmart.

the texture of the show with people on the street, shoppers, and theater goers played by Eryn Clow, Maggie Stock, Sarah Kopecky, Amber Drury, Nick Olson, and other aforementioned characters from the party and southern scenes. 1920's dancers include magnet arts dance students Brea Hammer, Kara Skiple, Shannon Langlie, Kim Almquist, Misty Bjugen, Jamie Swanson, and Heather Juhl. Dances in this production of "Auntie Mame" have been choreographed by Michelle Duffy. Adding to the color and "life" depicted on stage are the wonderful 20's costumes designed, found, or sewn by Diane Marshall, aided by Key Teeters-Asp, and student, Ruthie Bunnell. The set was built by Art Heinze, Lyle Hanson, Mike Melby, Scott Bornholdt, Terry Lubitz, Jeff Knutson, Howard Rokke and students Philip Hoks, Stacy Kleinwachter, Marsha Lubitz, Cody Knutson, Peter Ihle, Mike Hickey, Saroh Kopecky, and Clifton Hanson. Gigantic paintings on the set, which are "re-hung" by the paperhanger Kelly Poissant to indicate the changes in time and mood, were created by magnet arts students Ian Anton, Stephanie Rasmussen, and Teri Krogstad, advised by Marilyn Adams. The styles range from Japanese to abstract. The designs on the set walls were painted by Jeremi Hanson. The sound and lighting technician is Scott Bornholdt.

"Auntie Mame" is a show about life. The colors, set design, costumes, lights and characters all work together to bring the production alive for an entertaining evening about life. Tickets, which are available at the door, are $4 for adults, $2 for students.

Goodridge Lion Tamers sponsor blood drive

Goodridge Lion Tamers will conduct a blood drive for United Blood Services on Thursday, November 18 from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at St. Ann's Catholic Church in Goodridge. Individuals interested in volunteering and or donating blood should call Frances Aandal at 681-4893, or Barb Lorentzen at 378-4551.

Opinion polls tells us that one of the main reasons people don't donate blood is because they say they are "too busy" or find donating blood "inconvenient." This is especially troubling for U.S. blood centers because blood usage is on the rise. One blood donation, which is made into blood components (red blood cells; platelets; and plasma), can save as many as three lives. These components help treat people with specific needs — children with leukemia, heart disease patients, organ transplant recipients, cancer patients and accidental victims. Without donations from more than 14 million people each year many people — people you probably know — would not be able to undergo life-saving medical procedures. More support is necessary if we are to meet the growing demand.

The Prowlers finished third in the eight-team event.

Two TRF divers head to state

■ Chelsea Haviland, Naomi Olson advance; Haviland will compete in two events

Thief River Falls sophomore Chelsea Haviland won a pair of titles in record-setting fashion Saturday during the finals of the 1999 Section 8A girls high school swim meet at Warroad.

Haviland successfully defended her title in diving by accumulating 466.20 points, and added a win in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:19.85. Both figures were meet records.

This is the third year of two-class girls swimming in Minnesota, and the third straight Section 8A diving title for Haviland.

The state meet will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 22-24, at the University of Minnesota Aquatic Center. It's a familiar setting for Haviland, who was a state qualifier as a seventh grader, state runner-up as an eighth grader and state champion as a freshman.

A year ago Haviland, in addition to winning the Section 8A diving title, also advanced to state with a second place effort in the 100-yard breaststroke.

She will be joined at the 1999 state meet by teammate Naomi Olson, a senior who extended her high school diving career by collecting 258.65 points and finishing third on the one-meter board at Warroad.

Top two finishers in each swimming event, along with the top four divers, earned state meet berths.

Warroad won Section 8A team honors with 451 points, followed by Park Rapids Area with 355.50, Thief River Falls 318.50, Fosston/Bagley/Clearbrook-Gonvick 277, Detroit Lakes 255, Roseau 204, Crookston 106, and Perham 80.

"We had an excellent performance," said Thief River Falls coach Mary Helen Houlihan. "We scored that many points because we had so many swimmers scoring in so many events."

Points went to the top 16 place finishers – those who advanced through Friday's prelims. Top eight swam in Saturday's championship finals. Those finishing 9-through-16 on Friday competed in the second-day consolation finals.

"We took 20 swimmers to the meet, and 18 of them advanced to Saturday's competition," noted Houlihan. "It was an excellent showing. We're very pleased with the performances. Our goal at the beginning of the year was to get more kids qualified for sections, and to have a couple of them get to state. We accomplished that. Next year we'll try to do even better."

In addition to the state-qualifying efforts by Haviland and Olson, Houlihan praised personal-best performances by seniors Kristin Naplin and Jenny Sorvig in the 100 backstroke, Lindsay Ehrenstrom in the 100 breaststroke, and Andrea Olin in the 500 freestyle. "I'm proud of those kids for swimming their best races in their last meet," she said.

Naplin also had a strong race in the 50 freestyle, noted Houlihan, who said younger swimmers like freshman Michelle Johnson (100 butterfly) and eighth grader Cami Hendrickson (100 freestyle) showed promise for the future with solid Section 8A swims.

The 230-yard shot was the first time she had fired her new 30-06 rifle. Her hunting party included dad Kevin Meurstad and other family members.
